Courtyard Marriott in Greenville, SC, Features Works by Grant Penny and Nancy Hilliard Joyce

Work by Grant Penny

The Courtyard Marriott hotel, located in historic downtown Greenville, SC, adjacent to the Peace Center, will present Intentionally Subjective: Grant Penny meets Nancy Joyce, featuring 13 works by these two Western North Carolina artists, on view from Oct. 18 through Nov. 15, 2014. A reception will be held on Oct. 18, from 5-8pm.

The two artists, working in different mediums, selected six "Intentional Subjects," creating twelve works that both correlate and contrast - plus a thirteenth collaborative piece by both artists.

The show will consist of six pairings of artworks of parallel subject matters: six original works by artist Grant Penny, six original works by Nancy Hilliard Joyce and one larger-scaled collaborative piece, created by both artists on the same panel. The show's subjects lean towards nostalgia, good humor and simple pleasures. From bicycles to paper airplanes, artists Penny and Joyce create a room full of intentionally subjective works of art that will give each viewer an interesting insight into how art/ideas/feelings can be interpreted in various ways.

Grant Penny will utilize his well-known minimal collage techniques of layering and cutting hand-made papers, while Nancy Joyce will take her mixed-media and gestural approach using everything from acrylic paint to oil-based pen. Each pairing will be consistent in size, while techniques and unique compositions will vary.

Grant Penny was born in Sanford, NC, a small town 35 miles southwest of Raleigh, NC. His mother, Marsha Grant, was an artist, art educator, and graphic designer. Through his mother, Grant was exposed to the world of art. He has been working as graphic designer for over 16 years. From this disciplined line of work, he has found creativity, inspiration and beauty in the simplicity of both objects and space. Grant has lived in Asheville, NC, for more than eleven years.

Nancy Hilliard Joyce, a native of Greenville, SC, was accepted into the Governor's School for the Arts in visual art at the age of 16. She originally moved to Asheville, NC, in 1997 after completing her Masters in Art Education from the University of New Mexico. She left Asheville a few years later to live and travel throughout the United States and returned to Asheville again in June of 2011. Today, Joyce sits on the Board of Trustees at the Asheville Art Museum and is an active member of the River Arts District Association.

Twenty percent of all sales will be donated by the artists to the Governor's School for the Arts (a selective public high school) in an effort to provide funding for food scholarships to students in need.

Hampton III Gallery in Taylors, NC, Features Works by Leo Twiggs

Hampton III Gallery in Taylors, NC, is presenting Leo Twiggs: Toward Last Flags, on view through Nov. 8, 2014. A reception will be held on Oct. 9, from 7-9pm, with an artists' talk at 8pm. A Coffee and Conversation will be held on Oct. 11, from 11am-noon.

The exhibition of batik paintings by Twiggs features the image of the Confederate Flag that Leo has explored for over four decades.

As an African-American artist growing up in the 30's in rural South Carolina, Twiggs lived through the era of segregation. He saw first-hand the inequities in his community and state. "I was born in the South and needless to say, the things I remembered, the scents, the atmosphere, all acted to shape the imagery I use in my paintings."

After attending Claflin University in Orangeburg, SC, Twiggs was unable to enroll
