City of North Charleston, SC, Features Works by Ella Kokinda and Elizabeth Kalman

The City of North Charleston, SC, will present two concurrent exhibits by North Charleston artists on display throughout January, including: Spaces: In Spaces, featuring fiber works by Ella Kokinda and Liminal Places: Stories in Glass, featuring works by Elizabeth Kalman, on view in the Park Circle Gallery, from Jan. 2 through Feb. 1, 2025. A reception will be held on Jan. 3, from 5-7pm.

In Spaces: In Spaces, North Charleston based PhD student and artist Ella Kokinda presents an intimate view of three important spaces in her life, showcased through tufted rugs. Rather than constraining creativity to a single theme, this exhibition celebrates the rich diversity of inspiration found in her sewing and crafting room, her kitchen, and garden. Through this trilogy of mini exhibitions, Kokinda explores how artistic practice is not limited to one style, theme, or idea and embraces how every aspect of our lives can be inspiring to make and create.

Work by Elizabeth Kalman

Kokinda has been an artist all her life, with various pieces from K-12th grade being displayed at the Coastal Carolina Fair, as well as participating in AP Art in high school. She created work off and on for herself and friends until 2020 when she started her laser and fiber art business and has been attending local artisan markets and maker fairs over the last 4 years. Kokinda has created work for Redux Contemporary Art Center and MUSC's Healing Arts Program and has exhibited in the SC Palmetto Hands Juried Fine Craft Exhibition at the North Charleston Arts Fest and the James Island Arts and Cultural Center.

Elizabeth Kalman's Liminal Places: Stories in Glass is a compilation of mosaic works that are the essence of her life on the edge of Noisette Creek. Kalman has found tremendous creative energy in places that are thresholds, both as essayist and visual artist, and Liminal Places is an exploration of the tension she finds in a neighborhood on the edge of revitalization, in the flowers of the pandemic, on the shore, and beyond to the sea.

Kalman is an essayist and mosaic artist whose essays have been published by the Thoreau Society and the Nantucket Historical Association, as well as other journals and publications. She earned an MFA from Seattle Pacific University and lives in North Charleston, SC. Kalman made her first mosaic piece, a flowerpot, fourteen years ago. She saw the possibilities for building kitchen backsplashes using pattern and form that would be both functional and suggestive of the natural world. She rapidly transitioned to stained glass tesserae to create joyful artwork featuring subjects in nature, drawing inspiration from her observations in such places as the Lowcountry saltmarsh, Nantucket beaches, as well as hurricanes, flowers, and city gardens. She has most recently been using the buildings and landscapes in her North Charleston neighborhood as inspiration.

The Park Circle Gallery is located on Jenkins Avenue in Old North Charleston, near Park Circle. Admission is free and free street parking is available on Jenkins Avenue in front of the gallery, as well as on the adjacent streets and in parking lots close by.

For further information check our SC Institutional Gallery listings, call the gallery at 843/637-3565 or e-mail to (culturalarts@northcharleston.org). For information on other Cultural Arts programs and artist opportunities, visit the Cultural Arts Department section of the City's website at (<https://culturalarts.northcharleston.org>).

Charleston Artist Guild in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Danette Ulrich

The Charleston Artist Guild (CAG) Gallery is delighted to feature Danette Ulrich as the January 2025 featured artist. Her exhibition, The Art of Fly Fishing, presents a captivating series of gouache and oil paintings that explore the beauty, culture, and intricacies of fly-fishing inspired by Ulrich's personal connections and lifelong passion for nature, on view from Jan. 1 - 31, 2025. A reception will be held on Jan. 3, from 5-8pm.

Work by Danette Ulrich

The Art of Fly Fishing was sparked by a personal request from Ulrich's daughter, an avid fly-fisher. Tasked with creating a salmon fly painting for her daughter's marriage announcement, Ulrich was introduced to the unique world of fly-fishing—a sport with its own distinct culture, artistry, and passion. The project evolved into a larger exploration of this compelling subject, blending Ulrich's love for nature, history, and storytelling.

"The artistry of fly-fishing and the passion of its enthusiasts have opened new doors of inspiration for me," Ulrich shares. Her works capture intricate fishing flies, dynamic fish, and serene landscapes, offering a glimpse into the sport's beauty.

Editorial COMMENTARY

by Tom Starland, Editor and Publisher

On Our Cover This Month

On our cover this month is a digital drawing by Kira Bursky of Asheville, NC, entitled River Arts District. Bursky explains, "After Hurricane Helene came through my town, I drew to process my feelings. The 31 drawings were created once a day during October. These drawings are dedicated to all those affected by Hurricane Helene and those who have gone through other experiences that have shaken up the world they know. I am inspired by art's power to give us space to process, reflect, and heal."

Bursky is currently self-represented. Her business, All Around Artsy, can be reached by calling 845/642-1449, e-mail to (kira@allaroundartsy.com) or visit (www.allaroundartsy.com).

Bursky's (12" x 12") signed art prints and the full art collection book are available in her online shop. 20% of profits will be donated to BeLoved Asheville and ArtsAVL towards Hurricane Helene relief efforts. Check them out at (<https://allaroundartsyfashion.com/collections/hurricane-helene-art-prints>).

A list of upcoming exhibits featuring works by Bursky can be found at (https://docs.google.com/document/d/1HJb5E3Uk5R2W5A4aBp_9PmUyIUDyKgf0xK2rIk_wMg/edit?usp=sharing).

We want to thank Kira Bursky for adapting one of her prints to fit our cover.

It's 2025, 38 years from when Linda and I started our first arts publication, Charleston Arts in 1987. We were in about our 14th year of running IF Labs in Charleston, a black and white custom photo processing lab. It was the beginning of the one-hour processing era and the beginning of the age of digital cameras, which meant photo processing by hand was soon on the way out. We were managing the SC Sierra Club's monthly newsletter, which was in the form of a newspaper. We dealt with a lot of folks in the arts - artists, advertising agencies, and art museums, and we had opened and run a photography art gallery, so it didn't seem that much of a leap to do an arts publication. I guess I was thinking it might be a hedge against a dying business - photo processing. Years later Apples' iPhone came along really putting a dent in the traditional photography thing.

An arts publication wasn't as profitable as our photo processing biz, so Linda decided to take a job where we would get health insurance coverage. It seemed to cost a fortune for a tiny business to be able to provide health insurance. So for a while we were doing some photo processing, publishing an art newspaper and Linda was working full time. Did I mention she had our son at the same time we started the arts publication? They were some busy days!

It's funny, as there was a time during our photo lab days when we felt we had time on our hands and were bored. No one is laughing now. They say, "Find something you love to do and you'll never work a day." I think what they meant is there will never be a day when you're not working. My grandparents on my Mother's side were dairy farmers, so I guess it was in my genes. We both came from working class families.

Anyway, now we're both kind of retired and just producing Carolina Arts, an online publication, which is much easier than producing a printed publication which has to be physically distributed. You produce one copy, launch it in cyber-space, and people can download a copy for free, anywhere and anytime they like - easy peasy. Some publishers are LOLing right now. It's easier than some ways of publishing and a lot less costly.

Here's where I say, "Thank you, to the recession of 2008!" We were forced by 2010 to give up printing our publication, but it turned out to be the best thing that ever happened to Carolina Arts - in many ways. We could be in full color, we could have many more pages and cover a lot more areas of the Carolinas. I wasn't spending a week on the road burning gas like it was free. In 2008, they were not giving gas away for free. And, people only had to go to their computer and eventually smart tablets and phones to get a copy of each monthly issue - for free. And, for our supporters, advertising was a lot cheaper and we have maintained the same prices since we went digital in 2010.

So some folks ask us how long we are going to do this? My only answer so far has been, that I'm shooting for 40 years, which would be two more years, and after that, it would depend on if I come up with what we or I want to do after Carolina Arts. The field is wide open.

This Small Issue

January is always a much smaller issue than those leading up to the holiday season. Folks who usually send us info about their exhibits got too involved in those crazy times we call the holidays, so they didn't send us anything. Some clever folks plan their exhibits to cover both December and January taking off the pressure of dealing with the holidays and their normal duties, which makes for less articles this month. It's also a transition time from one year to the next, which shows up in the gallery listings - all adding up to a smaller issue in January. It's OK with me, we can use the break too. And, next month will be the beginning of the run up to Spring.

The deadline each month to submit articles, photos and ads is the 24th of the month prior to the next issue. This will be Jan. 24th, at 5pm for the February 2025 issue and Feb. 24, at 5pm for the March 2025 issue. After that, it's too late unless your exhibit runs into the next month. But don't wait for the last minute - send your info now to (info@carolinaarts.com).

Charleston Crafts Gallery in Charleston, SC, Welcomes New Artists To The Gallery

Charleston Crafts Gallery in Charleston, SC, will present New Times Three: New Artists, New Work, and a New Year, on view from Jan. 2 through 31, 2025. An Open House will be offered on Jan. 3, from 5-8pm, in conjunction with the Charleston Gallery Association's Art Walk evening celebrations.

January marks the new year; in the New Year, comes the opportunity for new beginnings. This month, Charleston Crafts Gallery features the works of our newest members, some who joined us in the fall, and others who just joined this month!

Work by six of our newest artist members featuring Polymer clay artscapes, ceramics, jewelry, Mosaics, paper cutting art, and woodworking.

Jennifer York, was named Lowcountry artist of the year in 2024, was a new member of the Cooperative Gallery, beginning in fall of 2024. This month, the gallery will be featuring her paper cutting artworks, which feature unique architectural details, as well as her original drawings on paper cuttings, embedded in installation pieces.

Ruth Ballou is a ceramicist who creates unique sculptural constructions out of ceramics with stunning subtle glazes that delight the eye. She learned this process while studying in France, and now brings this process to the Lowcountry.

Jenn Brower is a jeweler who makes stunning pieces of art fashioned completely from tiny rings of silver or gold. Modeled upon chain maille, an ancient form of hand crafted armor, her work has elevated the craft into art jewelry in the form of unique earrings, necklaces and bracelets.

Thia Beniash creates unique images in polymer clay, which are framed and ready for display in the home. She draws on her love of the Lowcountry for her inspiration in her images.

Randy Aschenbrenner creates fine examples of the woodworker's craft in his work. He is new to the Gallery, joining less than one month ago. Come see his work and say hello!

Aimee Fitzgerald is a Mosaic artist. She creates stunning images from tiny pieces of hand painted, broken tiles, refashioned into art. Her images are evocative of the ocean, sea birds and Lowcountry life.

While these members are in the spotlight, the work of all the Gallery's members are also on display and available for purchase, including jewelry, wood puzzles, encaustic paintings, mixed media collages, fiber art, apparel and accessories, as well as functional and decorative objects in wood, ceramic and glass.

Charleston's destination for fine craft since 1989, the gallery is located on East Bay Street, in the heart of the French Quarter, on "Gallery Row". The gallery is staffed by its friendly and knowledgeable member-artisans. Charleston Crafts Cooperative Gallery is a dynamic commu-sible, relatable, and profoundly inspiring. “Whether you’re an artist eager to infuse sacred geometry into your work, a seeker curious about the intersection of science, spirituality, and the natural world, or simply someone who loves exploring new ideas, this event is for you!” said Owens.

Owens, an accomplished visionary artist, photographer, and yoga teacher, combines her expertise in graphic design with her passion for spirituality and nature to create intricate mandalas, surreal landscapes, and fine art photography. Her latest collection, Elemental Alchemy, draws inspiration from the five elements - Earth, Air, Fire, Water, and Ether - inviting viewers to connect with themes of growth, transformation, and consciousness.

“In times of uncertainty, my art reconnects us to awe, peace, possibility, and a sense of something greater than ourselves,” Owens shared.

A longtime graphic designer with over 40 years of experience, Owens’ work bridges the gap between traditional artistic techniques and modern digital innovation. Each piece is meticulously crafted, printed on substrates like canvas and metal, and presented as limited-edition prints. No AI is involved. Her art has been described as “transcendent,” “luminous,” and “evocative.”

This exhibition marks an exciting opportunity to experience Owens’ unique artistic vision, which merges sacred geometry with the natural world. It is a must-see for art enthusiasts, yoga practitioners, and anyone seeking awe & inspiration.

Born and raised in New York City, Owens earned her BFA from SUNY Purchase and built a thriving graphic design career. Her journey into yoga and spirituality deeply influences her artwork, which has been featured at events such as the United Nations’ Culture of Peace symposium. Owens moved to Bluffton in 2020. She is currently an active member of SOBA and continues to share her talents as both an artist and yoga teacher.

SOBA is the heart of the flourishing art hub in Old Town Bluffton’s historic district at the corner of Church and Calhoun streets. As a non-profit art organization, SOBA offers regular art classes, featured artist shows, exhibitions, scholarships, outreach programs and more.

Greenville County Museum of Art in Greenville, SC, Offers Three Artists From Carolina & Works by Jamie Wyeth

The Greenville County Museum of Art in Greenville, SC, is presenting Art and Artists of South Carolina: Three Mighty Gamecocks, on view for an ongoing time.

Three Mighty Gamecocks features works in various media by Corrie McCallum (1914 – 2009), Jasper Johns (born 1930), and Grainger McKoy (born 1947), all of whom graduated from high school in Sumter, South Carolina.

Corrie McCallum, a Sumter native, graduated in 1932 from Sumter High School, after which she enrolled at the University of South Carolina, and later studied at the Boston Museum School of Art. In addition to sustaining her career as a painter and printmaker, McCallum pioneered art education in the South, teaching at the Gibbes Art Gallery (now Gibbes Museum of Art), Telfair Academy in Savannah, GA, Newberry College, and the College of Charleston. In 1960, she became the first professional Curator of Art Education at the Gibbes.

Jasper Johns graduated as the valedictorian of his 1947 class at Edmunds High School, which was known as Sumter High School until the 1939-1940 school year. After attending the University of South Carolina, he relocated to New York City, where he gained prominence in the mid-1950s for his paintings of American flags, targets, alphabets, and numerals (“things the mind already knows,” as Johns famously said). He is considered one of the most influential painters of the Post-World War era and America’s preeminent living artist.

Grainger McKoy graduated in 1965 from Edmunds High and has spent most of his life in Sumter. After studying architecture and biology at Clemson University, he joined his knowledge of the sciences with his uncanny skills as a carver, draftsman, and painter to achieve unique sculptures that fool the eye and defy gravity. His works are found in major public and private collections, most notably at Brookgreen Gardens and the Greenville County Museum of Art.

On view through Feb. 16 is the exhibition, Jamie Wyeth: Unsettled. The exhibition traces a persistent vein of intriguing, often disconcerting imagery over the career of renowned artist Jamie Wyeth (b. 1946). This major exhibition - organized by the Brandywine Museum of Art (Chadds Ford, PA) and five years in the making - features more than 50 works drawn from museum and private collections across the country that focus on the artist’s arresting, visceral imagery, revealing ing fascinating insight into Wyeth and the art of visual storytelling. A celebrated figure in contemporary art and fiercely independent in the face of prevailing art world trends, Jamie Wyeth stands apart in a shadowy and strange world of his own creation. While frequently countered and even hidden by the artist’s fuller body of work - particularly his well-known coastal views, farmscapes, and portraits - an unsettled mood.

Unsettled begins with a presentation of eccentric portraits that illustrate Wyeth’s most powerful means of evoking disquieting moods. The exhibition continues by immersing viewers into natural and supernatural worlds, from works inspired by the artist’s time spent in Maine - which frequently acknowledge the power of the sea and its fearsome ability to render humans helpless - to forest-based works from Pennsylvania that delve into the supernatural side of nature. The animal kingdom also offers opportunities for Wyeth to stretch his dark imagination, with portraits of frenzied birds, mesmerizing sheep, and decapitated deer in vivid paintings. The exhibition concludes with an exploration of haunted spaces that breach thresholds to explore uncertain interiors.

Jamie Wyeth: Unsettled is accompanied by a fully illustrated catalog co-published by Rizzoli Electa and Brandywine. Following its presentation at the Greenville County Museum of Art (Greenville, SC), the exhibition will travel to Dayton Art Institute (Dayton, OH), and the Frye Art Museum (Seattle, WA). This exhibition is made possible with support from Mac and Frances Weymouth, Linda L. Bean, Diana Bean, Chase, D.D. Matz, Helen C. Alexander, Cina Alexander-Forgason, Morris and Boo Stroud, and an anonymous donor.

Also on view for an ongoing time is the exhibition, Watermedia in the Age of Wyeth. When he was only 20, Andrew Wyeth (1917 – 2009) enjoyed a sold-out exhibition of his watercolors at New York City’s Macbeth Gallery in 1937. The young artist was heralded for revitalizing the medium, and his career was launched. Over the next 72 years, as his methods evolved from broad abstracted washes of color to the intricate hatching of his signature drybrush technique, Wyeth firmly established his mastery of modern watermedia, which may include watercolor, gouache, tempera, acrylic, or ink (and combinations thereof).

Work by Corrie McCallum (1914 - 2009)

Selected from the GCMA permanent collection, this exhibition offers the opportunity to witness Andrew Wyeth’s artistic evolution over time and invites comparison with other accomplished watermedia luminaries who worked during Wyeth’s life. Beginning with the Impressionist movement (Childe Hassam, Jane Peterson) of the 1920s through early variations on Modernism (Charles Burchfield, Will Henry Stevens), the exhibition includes examples of Regionalism (Thomas Hart Benton, Anne Goldthwaite), Abstract Expressionism (Hans Hofmann), Post-war multiplicity (Jasper Johns), and contemporary Realism (Stephen Scott Young, Hubert Shuptrine), before arriving at Wyeth’s son Jamie, allowing viewers to trace the broad sweep of both subject matter and technical innovation in water-based media of the 20th century.

Upstate Heritage Quilt Trail Organization Ask - "So You Want to Display a Quilt Where?"

In every civilization, art and history are frequently bound into the patterns of objects made for everyday use by everyday people. We at the Upstate Heritage Quilt Trail (UHQT) are devoted to preserving and celebrating the art and history of one of these objects - quilts.

While we do display original quilts two to three times a year in a variety of venues, that doesn't fulfill our goal to make these marvelous creations part of the daily experience of both residents and travelers in our beautiful little corner of the world which, for UHQT, includes Pickens, Oconee and Anderson counties in South Carolina.

What we have done to accomplish our goal was, first, to align ourselves with quilting clubs, well known quilters, and even a quilt historian or two. With the input of these resource people, we identified patterns of interest and beauty. Initially, most of the patterns selected for display were those that had an interesting history or whose creators contributed to local history in some way.

Next, after much research and securing financial backing, we began to create "quilt panels" that would accurately reproduce the patterns and colors of an original quilt. We paint these patterns onto large aluminum panels that are treated so they are not altered by weathering and mount them onto barns, homes, businesses, schools and more.

Perhaps you have seen these outstanding bits of artistry punctuating the landscape and taken note of their beauty and charm as you drive about the Upstate. In many of these sites, the quilt's story as researched and written by the members of UHQT are also displayed. These stories may include family memories as well as the pattern's history and physical location.

In more recent years, the members of UHQT have expanded their vision of what continued above on next column to the right quilts we will accept for panel production beyond only historically significant ones and our only requisite now is that there must be a real quilt from which we will work. When the real quilt is not physically available, however, we have made a quilt panel from a photograph.

As of 2024, we have over 300 panels on a variety of structures in many different sites, including some docks. We have come to question that if you can enjoy seeing these wonderful creations from the road, why not be able to do the same from the water? And so, we come to the reason for this article which was first published in KEOWEE Magazine.

As of this writing, we have only five quilt panels on Lake Keowee and two in construction. Why not consider having a quilt panel on your dock? If you are interested in commissioning one, go to our website at (UHQT.org), click on "Get Involved" and then on "Quilt Panel Application" where you will see costs and other information.

While on our site, click on the Trails/Map selection to see all the quilt panel locations in Anderson, Oconee, and Pickens counties as well as those in Greenville even though those are not managed by UHQT. By clicking on each of the individual quilt panel locations, you will see the quilt's information and a thumbnail photo.

UHQT, South Carolina's first quilt trail, uniquely allows panels to be made only from a real quilt. The volunteers who paint the panels make every effort to capture the shading and intensity of the quilt's colors and attempt to recreate the textures as well. If the person who commissions the panel wants total authenticity, our artists will go so far as to reproduce rips, stains and even stray threads.

Once you choose to commission a panel, you are in charge. You can choose the quilt to be used or have UHQT choose one for you and you (and whomever else you'd like to involve) can participate as much or as little as you'd like in the panel's creation.

Quilt panels range from 1' x 1' up to 8' x 8'. (4' x 4' and 8' x 8' are the most popular, but rectangular sizes can be provided for an additional charge.) The materials that are used to create these special panels begin with a professional sign board consisting of two sheets of aluminum with a polycarbonate center. After painting, the quilt panel is treated with a marine sealer so that it is fully protected from the environment.

We would love to see a time when there are enough panels on enough docks to eventually create a self-guided "discovery cruise" for visitors and residents alike. Please consider helping this goal come to fruition.

The movement was created in Adams County, Ohio, in 2001 by Donna Sue Groves. In talking with friends and neighbors, Donna Sue realized that the project had wide appeal and could be beneficial to the community, encouraging tourism and economic development.

Instead of a single personal tribute, she worked with the community to create a "clothesline of quilts," which began with an Ohio Star, dedicated in 2001.

The Snail's Trail quilt block was added to Donna Sue and Maxine's tobacco barn in 2003 after her friends said it was time to place a quilt block on their barn. Honoring her mother, Maxine, with her favorite quilt pattern. Maxine was a prolific fifth-generation quilter and was devoted to the art of quilting and supporting Donna Sue in her "clothesline of quilts" efforts.

Greenville Technical College in Greer, SC, Offers An Exhibition Focused on the Landscape

Greenville Technical College in Greer, SC, will present Landscape Now, featuring works by Todd Anderson, Brittany Gilbert, Julie Mixon, Amanda Musick, Patrick Owens, and Anderson Wrangle, on view in the Benson Campus Galleries, from Jan. 13 through Feb. 7, 2025.

Throughout history we have been awed by the power and permanence of the landscape, its bucolic balm, and its bounty of resources. Artists have recorded this beauty and bounty across time. Our industrialization has slowly challenged landscapes' permanence and bounty through misuse and misunderstanding. Now even mountains, rivers, seas are no longer permanent. The bucolic woodlands are subdivisions or landfills. Our once bountiful earth and its climate is becoming inhospitable and fragile. The artists in Landscape Now are addressing our landscapes and in turn, climate's hostility toward supporting our industrialized life and culture. Each artist has an individual focus, but the sum of their singular visions is a view of desolation and fragility.

Work by Anderson Wrangle

Landscape Now includes six artists living and working in South Carolina. Some of them produce images based on South Carolina landscapes. Others speak from national parks but all focus on global land and climate issues.

offered, "The artworks insist that climate breakdown is categorical while beauty remains. The artworks aim to speak to our contemporary moment and over time play a small role in helping future generations understand the challenges we faced as a people in the early 21st century."

Brittany Gilbert, painter and Associate Professor at Francis Marion University says, "Through sequential and perceptual landscape painting, my practice creates an archive of sustained engagement with perpetually fluctuating environments."

Julie Mixon, photographer and Associate Professor at Francis Marion University offers, "When water is captured without the presence of man it could be viewed in a way in which time does not matter or is not represented."

Amanda Musick, artist working in Upstate South Carolina said, "The processes of deconstruction and reconstruction I employ speaks to our continually changing landscape as well as our attempt to preserve and piece it back together."

Patrick Owens, photographer, sculptor, and lab manager/gallery assistant at Greenville Technical College says, "Once verdant natural landscapes or farmland temporarily become scenes of destruction to make way for dense, fabricated, cookie-cutter communities or monolithic, cemented warehouses."

Anderson Wrangle, photographer, Associate Professor at Clemson University offered, "The Outer Banks of North Carolina has always been a place at an extreme limit of geographic possibility, and is literally shifting sand in a dangerous sea. It is a place which is threatened by rising seas due to Climate Change, and which is hampered in its natural capacity for regrowth by development."

The images initially appear desolate and bleak with scant evidence of human existence, but that desolation can also be experienced as beauty. This serene beauty could contain the seeds of hope and regeneration. Our industrialization in its race to conquer the environment through research and invention could also use those resources to end land destruction and mitigate climate change.

Hampton III Gallery in Greenville, SC, Offers Works by Enid Williams

Hampton III Gallery in Greenville, SC, is presenting Fanfare, featuring works by Enid Williams, on view through Jan. 25, 2025.

Williams says, "My work reflects a long standing interest in a vocabulary of semi circular shapes that explore the possibilities of shifting configurations in pictorial space and optical occurrences. Changing dichotomies such as the notion of static time and change, absence and presence are among the coexisting themes I continue to explore, often referenced in titles."

"The practice of layering and subtracting the physical surface allows a more nuanced treatment of shape and color to emerge. The resulting spatial quality is an image that continues to appear in continual flux and is ambiguous in nature," adds Williams.

Work by Enid Williams

Williams was born in Midland, TX, in 1958 and grew up in Stephenville, TX. She received her MFA in painting from Kent State University. Her work has been exhibited at the Carnegie Museum in

Spoonbill Gallery in Greenville, SC, Features Works by Becca Splawn and Shelley Cade

A bold new joint exhibition explores the essence of nature through personal and artistic transformation, reimagining and reconnecting with one's experiences. Nature Deconstructed will debut at Spoonbill Gallery in Greenville, SC, on Jan. 10, 2025, with an artist reception from 6–9pm, where attendees can engage with both Splawn and Cade. The show runs through Feb. 1, 2025.

The exhibition is a collection of artworks featuring Becca Splawn and Shelley Cade reinterprets the natural world in abstract and dynamic ways, inviting viewers to consider the fundamental shapes, colors, and forms that compose the landscapes around us. This collaboration between two of Greenville, South Carolina's highly acclaimed artists is set for release in January 2025.

Both Splawn and Cade take their exploration of nature to new depths in Nature Deconstructed. This series is about breaking down what we see in the natural world and reassembling it into something unexpected. It is an invitation to reflect and to see nature not just as a whole, but as a series of interconnected elements that come together in surprising ways much like how life experiences shape and mold us as individuals. Each piece in the exhibition serves as a meditation on nature's (and our own) resilience and vulnerability, offering a fresh perspective on the landscapes (and life) that often go unnoticed in their simplicity.

Through her atmospheric compositions, Shelley Cade takes audiences on a personal journey of transformation, blending grief, healing, and rediscovery into a visual experience of color and form. "This body of work has never been about landscapes," Cade reflects. "If you were to say I paint landscapes, I might deny it. It's not about capturing a scene but creating an emotional space that invites people to explore their own experiences and find peace in the turbulence." After a time of personal upheaval and reflection, Cade's work evolved from escapism to a more profound engagement with emotion, using oil paint as a means to process loss and embrace renewal.

Work by Becca Splawn

The inspiration behind her work emerged when Cade returned to her studio amidst a period of personal loss, working to transform her grief into something tangible and uplifting. "What came out of these dueling emotions of grief and relief were pillowy palettes, blending dark and light, and colorfully blended cloudscape," she explains. "Each painting ushers out the storm and welcomes in much-needed clarity - an inner assurance that even life's most turbulent storms bring a silver lining."

Above all, Cade hopes her work offers audiences a moment of reprieve. "When someone sees my work, I hope it draws them in, encourages them to stay a while," she says. "More than anything, I want it to bring quiet moments of reflection and relief from the storms they may be facing. And, if possible, a silver lining for themselves."

A captivating blend of abstract and contemporary landscape styles, Becca Splawn's work delves into the powerful connection between color, memory, and emotion, inviting viewers on an introspective journey across vivid and layered compositions. Splawn, whose travels have deeply influenced her art, reflects on her creative path. "I think I was born with a kind of creative wanderlust," she shares. "The landscapes in this collection aren't just representations of places. They are reflections of my internal state, the feelings evoked by my memories of places." Through dynamic abstraction, her work explores natural forms with a fresh perspective, blending color and composition to evoke unique moods and emotions.

The inspiration behind Nature Deconstructed lies in Splawn's fascination with the transformative power of color. "Color has the power to conjure memories, alter moods, and transport us," Splawn explains. "In my work, I capture these fleeting moments, creating a dialogue that's both intimate and universal." Her process involves meditating on a memory or place before developing a curated palette, translating the essence of her experience into gestural, layered forms that blur the line between the abstract and the tangible. "I hope my work gives viewers a space for contemplation," she says, "a chance to immerse themselves in color and form and perhaps discover something new or remember something they thought they'd lost."

Through Nature Deconstructed, Cade and Splawn extend an invitation to explore a world of vibrant emotion and memory, hoping their journeys inspire others to find moments of beauty and reflection within themselves.

Shelley Cade of Railside Studios in Greenville, SC, splits her time between two visual passions; impressionist skies and expressionist portraits. Her preferred techniques include both acrylic and oil paint with the self-allowance to evolve and add or mix mediums. Whether it is the soft touch of a brush to canvas and chasing the perfect blend or a less controlled approach in the way of fast scratchy lines and impulsive marks, creating never loses its magic for this artist who paints by mood and emotion.

Becca Splawn is an award-winning contemporary landscape artist living in South Carolina's foothills. Her June/July 2024 solo show, Dreamscapes, was featured in The Greenville Journal and The Daily Greenville, and her work has been spotlighted by the Koger Center for the Arts at the University of South Carolina. Splawn was also the recipient of the Anderson Art Center's 2021 Purchase Award, was selected to exhibit her work at the 2024 The Other Art Fair in LA this past September, and will be an Artist in Residence at The Lakeside Inn on Lake Michigan for May 2025. She is a Clemson University graduate with a BFA in Studio Art and is represented by Spoonbill Gallery in Greenville, SC.

Splawn's works are crafted using mixed media on canvas and are inspired by the expansive landscapes explored in her travels in the southwest, rural South Carolina, and northern Michigan, where she spent much of her childhood. Her paintings draw on vast open skies and fields that suggest the contemplative transience of nature. Her compositions blend abstract elements with subtle realism to capture the ephemeral essence of the natural world while maintaining a sense of its enormity and depth.

Spoonbill Gallery is vibrant and experiential providing a unique and immersive art experience for the Greenville, SC, community and beyond. Founded by nationally award-winning artist, Joseph Bradley, and located adjacent to his studio, the gallery's collection features a variety of national artists complemented by a showcase of rising talents. Spoonbill Gallery is dedicated to fostering a deeper appreciation for art and culture, serving as a hub for artistic expression and creativity in the southeast.

Artists Collective | Spartanburg, SC, Offers Works by Robert Urban

Artists Collective | Spartanburg, in Spartanburg, SC, will present Push & Pull: New Work, by Robert Urban, on view in the Solomon Gallery, from Jan. 1 through Feb. 22, 2025. A reception will be held on Jan. 16, until 8pm, as part of the Spartanburg Art Walk.

Spartanburg artist Robert Urban's latest mixed media works use trees "as a metaphor for family and the relationships we all hold dear within the family circle and beyond."

The 30-plus pieces in the show will be offered for purchase with prices ranging from $150 to $5,000.

"Nature, and specifically trees, are used as metaphors to represent the passage of time, within nature itself, of course, but also within our human relationships – our family, friends and communities," says Urban, originally from Wisconsin. "The exhibition title refers to the many different forces and ways that we experience either a 'push' or a 'pull' – our interactions within nature, relationships and our communities."

The art in the exhibit was inspired by Urban's family and friends, he adds. "Trees have a complex network of branches and roots that also represent the complexities of our relationships and how they grow and develop. Trees symbolize strength, resilience, growth and the interconnectedness of everything around us."

Urban says visitors to the exhibit will see a contemporary approach to landscape art. "Vivid colors, often layered many times in the buildup of each artwork, reflect the passage of time in the artwork itself, but also as a metaphor for time passing within our lives. I hope people will appreciate my mixed media approach to contemporary landscape art."

His approach is not a traditional one, he says. "My art primarily reflects the ongoing struggle to coexist between nature and humankind. This is achieved through the development of my own personal symbolism, representing this ongoing saga and my perception of it."

"This is my effort to create a sense of meaning from the world – order from chaos and chaos from order," Urban continues. "This is revealed through numerous layers that build up over time, much like the layers that create our lives. These layers are added and then removed through various methods. Thus, my theme of opposition is represented in the artistic process itself – creation and destruction.”

Personal interactions within the environment – a bike ride, hike, trail run, park visit or some other outing in nature – often serve as his muse, Urban says. “The layering process I use when I paint is evolutionary; I never quite know exactly where it will take me visually or conceptually. The idea and the artwork grow, sometimes over several weeks depending on the size I’m working on, as I create the image. As I paint, more details emerge regarding the artwork’s meaning, thus finding me, so to speak. This way of working creates an element of surprise, which I find exciting.”

“Depicting the beauty of nature, even in a non-traditional way, reflects an obvious appreciation for what the natural world offers to us,” he continues. “Environmental concerns for Earth affected by human interaction, remain just below the surface of each artwork I create.”

Urban attended the South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts, which he says allowed him to recognize his passion for art. “I knew then that art would be a major force in my life.”

His love of long-distance running, another of his “life’s passions,” influenced his appreciation for the outdoors. “Nature provided ample motivation for my creative pursuits,” he says. “Endurance sports also provided me with reflective time to meditate and the ability to look inward while taking in the beauty of the landscape.”

After earning his BFA in 1990 from the University of South Carolina, Urban packed his art supplies and moved to California. While there, he pursued graduate work in studio art at California State University at Sacramento and the San Francisco Art Institute. He returned to South Carolina and earned a master’s degree in art education and spent five years teaching in the Columbia area before accepting his current position at Dorman High School in Spartanburg, where he has taught for the past 26 years.

In 2007 he was awarded the South Carolina Secondary Art Educator of the Year Award and the following year his work was selected for inclusion in the inaugural international art publication Art Buzz: The 2008 Collection. Once again in 2011, his artwork was selected for the fourth edition of Art Buzz: The 2011 Collection. Also in 2011, Urban was selected for the book Artists Among Us: 100 Faces of Art in Spartanburg.

In 2015, he was one of 18 Upstate South Carolina artists whose artwork was selected for inclusion of the interior of the Greenville Aloft Hotel. He was named Dorman High School’s “Teacher of the Year” in 2018 and was chosen as the Spartanburg County School District Six “Teacher of the Year” in 2019. Urban’s artwork is in collections throughout the Carolinas, the United States, Denmark, Switzerland and South Korea.

“I am thankful for the opportunity to present at the Artists Collective | Spartanburg, the largest body of new work I have ever exhibited,” Urban says.

The Artists Collective | Spartanburg, located on W. Main Street, provides a forum and home for the arts and creative population of Spartanburg, providing facilities and services to artist members for exhibits, performances and creation.

Artists Collective | Spartanburg, SC, Offers Exhibit of New Members

Artists Collective | Spartanburg, in Spartanburg, SC, will present In the Wood ... From the Earth, featuring works by six new ACS members, on view in Galleries II & III, from Jan. 7 through Feb. 1, 2025. A reception will be held on Jan. 16, from 5-8pm, as part of the Spartanburg ArtWalk.

“The Artists Collective | Spartanburg is a welcoming and collaborative environment that inspires creativity for its members and visitors alike,” says Cassandra Stephens-Johnson, who is coordinating the exhibit. “We look forward to visitors seeing the beautiful and varied works by these talented new ACS members.”

The participating artists will be Darryl Jones, Garry Turpin, Tipton Jones-Boiter, Mariam Tucker-Jones, Karina Manukyan and Christine Blackburn.

Darryl Jones, a woodturner, says he seldom has a plan for his creations. Describing a piece that will be exhibited in the show, he says he worked on it multiple times, not satisfied each time he added or changed the piece. “This piece describes who I am as a creator because I very seldom have a plan,” he says. “I would have to almost describe the piece in reverse, from the end to the beginning, because I generally don’t have a plan and let the piece become what it’s going to be.”

An “IT guy” by profession, Jones was inspired to do woodworking by a history teacher’s collection of flutes the teacher had made. “I feel like I kind of came in the back door because I didn’t know there was a whole woodturning community,” he says. “I just kind of stumbled into it. The same thing happened with the art side. I kind of feel like I fell into it backward because I had already been creating the art. When I make a piece, I like to leave natural elements, such as a bark edge or the range of colors that you find around rot and different types of inclusions in the wood. I like to leave those in to celebrate the fact that it is a natural material with imperfections.”

Garry Turpin, a native of Sylva, NC, who grew up in Greenville, SC, has worked for printing companies as prep foreman, magazine publishers as art director and started GT Graphic Studios in the mid 1980s. He managed the company until 2000, when he closed the company, and he started oil painting full time. He helped establish two cooperative art studios – the Artists Collective | Spartanburg and the Artist Guild Gallery in Greenville. Both continue as thriving organizations.

Of his paintings, Turpin says, “I try to give the best rendition of what I see; to let the viewer understand why I painted a particular view in a landscape or expression in a person, place or thing. Painting water and the elements around it is always exciting. The blend of colors in a fall leaf, movement in the clouds, dogs running, people walking on the beach. Inspiration is everywhere you look.”

Turpin adds that he carries a camera, “when I’m hungry to paint. I look for compositions that are visually interesting or information driven. In many instances, continued above on next column to the right my paintings are time travelers for me, in that they’ll take me back to the time and place where the image first caught my eye and the joy of the site or person that I have rendered hopefully will be captured by the viewer in a similar or different way, kind of paying it forward.”

Tipton Jones-Boiter, a native of Greer, SC, says growing up in a “very artistic family” shaped her creative side. The visual artist and songwriter adds, “I believe we can communicate emotions through art and music that cannot easily be communicated through words alone. I lean more towards the abstract and surreal. I believe I provide pieces, but how those pieces form meaning is up to the viewer or listener.”

Jones-Boiter has been painting professionally for 30 years, starting at 16 as a muralist and faux finisher, then shifting to portraits of people and pets. She prefers using acrylics on canvas and coffee on paper. Through the Anchor Bat Co., she has painted what she calls “mini murals” on baseball bats for the actor Bill Murray, the Greenville Drive, the US Marines and The Citadel. She’s currently a member of and has an art studio at the Artists Collective.

Karina Manukyan’s mother was an archeologist, so she grew up surrounded by replicas of ancient pottery at home. “Every time we went to a history museum, I would get a lecture on all the knowledge you can get from ceramic remains,” she says, admitting she may not have paid enough attention at the time. “By a stroke of fate, I started getting interested in historic pottery a couple of years ago. I have always been drawn to expressing myself through visual means, and photography has been my passion for a long time, but after moving to the US, my spark for it had greatly diminished. That eventually led me to take my first pottery class.”

After taking a hand-building course, Jones-Boiter knew she had “found something I deeply connected with. The tactile sensation as you handle the clay while the pot emerges underneath your fingertips is a truly magical experience. Since then, I have been experimenting with different shapes and techniques in the search for my voice as a ceramic artist.”

Karina Manukyan, a native of Sofia, Bulgaria who moved to the United States in 2015, creates “a combination of functional and decorative pieces, aiming to create either playful or stand-out pieces, whether it’s something you put on a shelf, or it is something you eat out of. I am a firm believer that everyday objects can be

art. I draw inspiration from ancient pottery and organic shapes with a more contemporary look. The main techniques I use are coil-and-pinch and slab-building.”

Miriam Tucker-Jones, a Spartanburg native and a retired surgical technologist at Spartanburg Medical Center, has been drawing “since I could hold a crayon or a pencil,” and took her first oil painting class at 16. “The smell of the oil paint and turpentine were intoxicating,” though now her works are mainly in acrylic and watercolor.

Art is a family affair, with daughter Tipton Jones-Boiter also participating in the new member exhibit and the two along with Miriam’s husband, Barry, have exhibited together at Carri Bass Photography and Art Studio in Tryon, NC.

As a jewelry artist, Christine Blackburn says, “I am driven by a passion for crafting pieces that evoke a sense of wonder and joy in those who wear them. My work is a celebration of the unique beauty found in minimalism and geometric forms. Each piece is meticulously designed to harmonize with the wearer’s individuality while embodying a timeless elegance.”

Blackburn specializes in crafting sterling silver jewelry, drawing inspiration from “nature and the beauty that surrounds us. Inspired by the inherent beauty of simplicity, my designs embrace clean lines and subtle curves, reflecting a modern aesthetic that transcends fleeting trends. Every angle and detail are carefully considered to achieve a perfect balance between aesthetics and wearability.”

“My greatest joy as an artist comes from knowing that my creations bring happiness to people’s lives,” Blackburn continues.

has become more and more attuned to the subtle changes in weather and atmosphere. In his pastels and oil paintings, the energy and impact of light is realized in harmonized color whose saturation and temperature have been pushed and raised beyond previous limits. In doing so, he has captured dramatic and compelling moments of morning and evening light over the farmlands of the Midwest.

Jerald Melberg Gallery is located on South Sharon Amity Road near the intersection with Providence Road.

Columbia College in Columbia, SC, Features Works by Michael Webster and Grey Eckert

Columbia College in Columbia, SC, will present two exhibitions including: PULSE, Reaction, featuring works by Michael Webster, on view in the Goodall Gallery, from Jan. 8 through Feb. 27, 2025, and you told me once but i forgot, featuring works by Grey Eckert, on view in the Loft Gallery, from Jan. 2 through Feb. 28, 2025. A reception will be held on Jan. 23, from 6-8pm, for both exhibits.

Michael Webster offers the following Artist Statement, "Through projects that span sculpture, installation, and lens-based media, I respond to the becomings and undoings of space. My work begins with a social conception of space, where shifting territorial boundaries form strata between people. I seek moments where boundaries become permeable – a place where architecture dissolves into raw matter or the surveyor's tools encode a digital artifact. By finding residues where systems are revealed, I question the processes of demarcation and displacement that inscribe sites of contention on the land."

Works by Michael Webster

"My practice is responsive at its core. Rather than invent new images, I recontextualize things already in circulation or develop site-specific, participatory projects," adds Webster. "Sometimes I will live with an object for a decade before I can meet it on its own terms. This responsiveness acknowledges social and material agency outside of myself and ultimately makes my practice a symbiotic one. Other people and other things offer many insights about living in fractured geographies. Their faint echoes reverberate through every space, carrying layered histories to anyone willing to listen. I work in the amplification of echoes."

Webster responds to the social organization of space through site-specific projects, sculpture, and lens-based media. His work is context-driven and materially attuned, investigating the effects of power on social geography with a focus on long-term participatory projects rooted in the southern United States. He has attended residencies at the McColl Center, ChaNorth, Hambidge Center for Creative Arts and Sciences, Elsewhere Living Museum, and Penland School of Craft. He was the runner-up for the 2023 SouthArts Southern Prize and was selected as the South Carolina State Fellow.

Webster's exhibitions include the Ohr-O'Keefe Museum, the Czong Institute of Contemporary Art, Locust Projects, and the LIVLAB Watershed Space at Western Carolina University. He received a Bachelor of Fine Arts from East Carolina University and a Master of Fine Arts from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago. Currently, he is a member of Tiger Strikes Asteroid GVL and an Assistant Professor at Wofford College in Spartanburg, South Carolina.

Grey Eckert offered the following Artist Statement about the exhibit, you told me once but i forgot, on view in the Loft Gallery, "you told me once but i forgot involves a stereotypically feminine artform: appropriated cross stitching, pre-existing ephemera that are, even still, entrenched within gendered ideologies. Subtracting specific textual elements from their surface transforms lyrical clichés into abbreviated utterances - expressions which articulate trauma consequent of the artist's gender and feminine experience. This series, furthermore, elevates its materials, long-scorned 'handicrafts' that possess domestic associations and are, thus, demeaned alike their makers: women whose work, free of socially-acceptable cadence, states what may otherwise go unsaid."

Nellie Grey Eckert (she/her) was born in Durham, NC, where she spent her childhood convincing others to call her by her middle name. After graduating from Coastal Carolina University with dual-BAs and academic minors in studio art, graphic design, art history, and photography, Eckert attended the University of South Carolina, where she earned an MFA in studio art. She currently teaches at Coastal Carolina University. Her fiber-based work investigates the chronic disdain that stereotypically feminine interests - 'craft' art, love stories, and Taylor Swift - face.

Handmade pottery by Maggie & Freeman Jones

Turtle Island Pottery has been displaced by Hurricane Helene.

They are fortunate to have inventory that was not harmed, but their home and studio are damaged and they have to move into their sales location.

But, they need help with the move, so buy something online and there is a GoFundMe account set up for them at <https://gofund.me/52dbdf6c>.

You can see their work online at the website listed below for available items.

and studio spaces. Hundreds of artists have been displaced, with the rebuilding process potentially taking years. While there isn't a simple solution to this disaster, we are happy to provide an exhibition space to showcase just some of the great work coming from Asheville artists.

In 1985, artists started moving into the River Arts District, formally called the River District Arts. As more artists settled into the former warehouse spaces, the first official studio stroll was organized in 1994. Today, with around 450 artists, the RAD is a significant facet to what makes Asheville tick in all its weird and wonderful glory. The devastation of Hurricane Helene has put many creatives' lives on hold, but we are hopeful that this exhibition can bring a little light back into the arts community of Asheville. We look forward to having many visitors come and support these artists, which will in turn support the greater col-

Blowing Rock Art & History Museum in Blowing Rock, NC, Features Works by Page Laughlin and David Finn

Blowing Rock Art & History Museum (BRAHM) in Blowing Rock, NC, will present SHIP/SHAPE: Page Laughlin and David Finn, on view in the Museum's Fort Gallery, from Jan. 25 through May 4, 2025.

SHIP/SHAPE is a dynamic exhibition featuring more than 20 paintings and sculptures that explore and delight in the various manifestations of ships as image, symbol and metaphor. The exhibition showcases two distinct, but interrelated, bodies of work presented side by side. Although at first glance the two artists' work might appear radically different - in medium, use of color, physicality - on closer examination strong parallels emerge. Both artists' works subvert expectations with layers of complexity and meaning. This marks the first time in over 30 years that the two artists, who are a couple, have developed an exhibition together.

For Laughlin and Finn, one could understand both these bodies of work as portraiture of a sort: studies of seemingly familiar subjects. However, what is rooted in the particularities of an image can be read as emblematic of contemporary conditions. For Laughlin, vessels of a bygone era - with their slender masts and tessellating sails - become spectral forms crystallized in environments that are active, even contradictory, with gesture, color and texture.

In their titling - "Green Peace," "Blowhard," "Seeing Red"- we can begin to grasp the artist's humor and her use of the ship shape as a device for articulating complex experience through appealing appearance. Where Laughlin clarifies seafaring vessels into sly two-dimensional hieroglyphs of evocative meanings, Finn allows his sculptures to luxuriate in all their ponderous weight.

The tarred surfaces of the "Black Freighters" list under the burden of their cargoes, and their playful scale belies the emotive impact they carry. With titles like "Stateless," "Special Operation" and "Tophet/Museum," Finn's vessels conjure a vision of freedom and risk on the high seas with dark humor.

"Laughlin's oil paintings and Finn's wood sculptures celebrate the potential of their chosen medium. While their studio practices are different, their ideas and concerns interrelate,” said Stephan Dragisic, Teresa and Don Caine Executive Director of BRAHM. “Laughlin and Finn also share a life-long interest in engaging the community as a part of their artistic practices. This shared interest has been integral to both of their careers as artists and as educators. In SHIP/SHAPE, the community will be invited to actively shape one of the projects.”

Throughout the run of SHIP/SHAPE, BRAHM staff will engage with the public to explore the meaning of the suffix “-ship” and invite participants to consider words - such as friend, leader or partner - that capture their personal values and aspirations. Messages about one’s most important “-ship” will be written on paper slips and placed in small glass bottles, an interplay between the notion of “ship in a bottle” and “message in a bottle.” The bottles will be woven into a handcrafted net, symbolizing the power of art to strengthen community bonds. Visitors to BRAHM will be invited to participate in the project during the exhibition. Additionally, Museum staff will take the project to other sites across the region to expand the net of shared experiences.

“In the aftermath of Hurricane Helene, which has had a devastating impact on this region, the SHIP/SHAPE community project is a timely and powerful reminder of the power of art to connect, heal, and empower people and a community,” Dragisic said.

David Finn has held more than 15 solo exhibitions, with shows in New York, London, Milan, Hong Kong and Lund, Sweden. Finn has created art projects for the public throughout the United States. He has received numerous fellowships including grants from the Bemis Foundation, the New York Foundation for the Arts, the North Carolina Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts. He recently retired as a Professor of Art at Wake Forest University, where he taught sculpture since 1987. His work in this exhibition stems from a 2022 residency at Sculpture Space in Utica, NY.

Page Laughlin’s artwork has been selected for over 43 competitive exhibitions, including 11 museum exhibitions, 10 solo exhibitions or installations, and six published color exhibition catalogues. Her residency fellowships include the Headlands Center for the Arts in Sausalito, Calif.; the Virginia Center for Creative Arts in Amherst, VA; and the ON::View Residency in Savannah, GA. Her work is in numerous private and public collections throughout the United States, including the American University Museum at the Katzen Art Center in Washington, DC, and the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh, NC. In 2021, Laughlin retired from teaching to focus on her creative activities and is now a research professor at Wake Forest University.

BRAHM’s mission is to curate, preserve, educate, and inspire. Rooted in the creative cultures of Appalachia, BRAHM aims to cultivate a community that extends beyond its walls and region, positioning Western North Carolina as a leader in the arts. The 25,000-square-foot Blowing Rock Art and History Museum, known as BRAHM, opened its doors on October 1, 2011. Located off Main Street in Blowing Rock, NC, BRAHM provides cultural enrichment by promoting the arts and history through educational programs, exhibitions, and activities. The permanent collection of more than 600 objects includes works by Elliott Daingerfield, Maud Gatewood, Elizabeth Bradford, Mark Hewitt, and other American impressionist and post-impressionist artists. Open year-round, BRAHM welcomes 24,000 visitors free of charge to experience 25 changing exhibitions. BRAHM also has an outreach education program that encourages arts education in local schools, daycares, and senior centers.

Francis Marion University in Florence, SC, Features Works by Heather Evans Smith

Francis Marion University in Florence, SC, will present Blue, featuring works by Heather Evans Smith, on view in the Steven F. Gately Gallery, located in downtown Florence, from Jan. 14 through Mar. 6, 2025. A reception will be held on Jan. 23, beginning at 5:30pm.

Heather Evans Smith, an acclaimed photo-based artist known for her evocative portrayals of memory, family, and loss, will exhibit Blue at Gately Gallery, a body of work that delves deeply into her own experiences of grief and depression. Through symbolic compositions drenched in blue - the color historically linked to melancholy - Smith navigates the emotional complexities of midlife and profound personal loss.

“For some, my dad’s death might be seen as the spark that ignited my depression, but the sadness had been quietly simmering for years,” Smith explains. “I was just beginning to recognize it a few years into my 40s. Searching online, I found articles on how women are often most depressed at 44. And at that very moment, I was 44.” Her images are a visual manifestation of that weight, portraying the unique burdens faced by women at this life stage as they contend with aging parents, maturing children, and hormonal shifts.

Smith’s new series serves as both a personal reckoning and an invitation for viewers to reflect on their own transitions.

Work by Heather Evans Smith

The arresting use of blue throughout her work reinforces the themes of introspection, sorrow, and resilience that emerge as she grapples with shifting roles and seeks a renewed place among loss and change. Known for her imaginative yet poignant visual storytelling, Smith has exhibited at prestigious venues worldwide, including the Fox Talbot Museum in Lacock, England, the Nasher Museum of Art at Duke University, and Leica Galerie Milano in Italy.

Smith is also a recipient of numerous accolades, including the Critical Mass Top 50 (2014, 2018, 2021), the 2022 Silver List, and the 2022 CENTER Me & Eve Grant. Her evocative body of work continues to resonate deeply with audiences across the globe.

Burroughs-Chapin Art Museum in Myrtle Beach, SC, Features Works by Mary Edna Fraser

The Franklin G. Burroughs-Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum in Myrtle Beach, SC, will present Mary Edna Fraser | Awakening, on view from Jan. 11 through May 18, 2025. A reception will be held on Jan. 11, from 4-6pm.

Artists find inspiration in many places. For artist and environmental activist Mary Edna Fraser, it's the bird's-eye views of North and South Carolina coastlines and waterways seen from her grandfather's vintage 1946 Ercoupe plane. An exhibition of her awe-inspiring images of these views in batiks and oils.

Fraser's half a century of producing batiks on silk (an ancient process using wax and dye on cloth), oil paintings, short documentaries, exhibitions and events have had a single aim: to overcome apathy and educate her viewers about our fragile environment. With her stunning batiks installed to look like draped silk sculptures, as well as both large and intimate-sized oils, the artist seeks to inspire an awe of and a protective affection toward the planet.

Working out of her studio on James Island, SC, with an expansive view of a tidal creek, Fraser is able to create the world's largest batiks. Beginning with her photographs of aerial views as well as on-land painting, the artist translates her images into large scale renderings on silk, canvas or linen.

"Conveying breathtaking perspectives of space, earth, and deep sea is my life's work, developed with leading experts in the fields of planetary science, coastal geology, and oceanography," Fraser writes in her artist statement.

"Botany Bay," by Mary Edna Fraser

"Whether photographing the coast from the open cockpit of my family's vintage plane or painting plein air in the backwoods of national parks, each adventure is distilled into a moment of visual poetry."

A native of Fayetteville, NC, Fraser attended East Carolina University (Greenville, NC), where she double majored in clothing and textiles and interior design. She then pursued graduate courses in resist and direct dyeing techniques and also went on to study with master dyers.

Her work has been featured in over 100 one-woman exhibitions, including the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum's (Washington, DC) first textile show, as well as its first solo exhibition by a woman. Other institutions that have featured her work include the National Science Foundation, the National Academy of Sciences, National Geographic, United States Geological Survey. She was honored by NASA as artist of the year in 1996. Awakening will be Mary Edna Fraser's largest solo exhibition since her Smithsonian exhibition in 1993.

Mary Edna Fraser | Awakening is generously sponsored by Jo Ann Marino and Springmaid Beach by Hilton.

Also, on display at the Museum through Feb. 23 is an exhibition of abstract paintings titled Paul Yanko: Primary Structures. Admission to the Museum is free at all times, but donations are welcome.

So you're the Marketing Director of a visual arts organization, art museum, arts center, arts council or artist guild and you're wondering why you never see the exhibits presented at your facility included here. Maybe you're the owner of a commercial art gallery and you've never seen your exhibits included with others presented in your area. You might even be an individual artist who is having an exhibit in a non-profit space or commercial space and you don't see your exhibits included. My question to you is - How long will you put up with that before you ask someone, "Why that is the case?" If you're not included - it's your fault. Send your info about exhibits to "Carolina Arts" by e-mail to (info@carolinaarts.com). Our deadline is the 24th of the month, at 5pm "prior" to the month your exhibit starts.

Hillsborough Gallery of Arts in Hillsborough, NC, Offers Works by Ten NC Artists

The Hillsborough Gallery of Arts in Hillsborough, NC, will present Moving Heaven and Earth: An Invitational Show, featuring the works of 10 North Carolina Artists, from Jan. 7 through Feb. 9, 2025. A reception will be held on Jan. 31, from 6-9pm.

The participating artists are: Jane Filer, Sarah Graham, Katie Hayes, Ian Herdell, Alexis Joyner, Ley Killeya, Oami Powers, Suzan Scribner-Reed, Darcy Szeremi, and Nadine Zenobi. This dynamic exhibition will include works in a variety of media - paintings, block prints, jewelry, wooden sculptures, graphite drawings, ceramic sculptures, and handmade wooden furniture.

Although there will be a rich variety of media and artistic styles represented in this show, a common denominator among all of the exhibiting artists is a dedication to creating works with great depth of meaning. The title of the show, Moving Heaven and Earth, is meant to encompass the range of their subject matter, from the earthy to the mystic, as well as express admiration for the artistic skill and the emotional energy shown by this talented group of creators.

Jane Filer's acrylic paintings invite viewers into a world of what she describes as "magical realism," featuring both real and imagined creatures in landscapes that are simultaneously familiar and fantastic. Filer says, "In our immediate experiences and memories are locked the sweetness of a moment and interesting animated visual impressions. I work with this to express my love and amazement for life."

Sarah Graham's painted abstract landscapes draw on her lifelong engagement with the natural world. Graham writes, "I believe we take in natural beauty and goodness as we do food; it sustains us, it becomes us." She imagines her paintings as the direct result of these moments. "They are thank you notes, love letters back to our generous, breathtaking, mysterious world."

Work by Darcy Szeremi

Katie Hayes draws on her Western North Carolina roots to create naturalist-inspired block prints. Her hand-pressed, limited-edition prints show respect to all creatures, from salamanders to crayfish to herons. Hayes created New South Pattern House, located in Hillsborough, NC, "to highlight the vibrant cities and amazing ecosystems of the Southeastern US".

Ian Herdell uses wood to create his handmade furniture and artwork at his Hillsborough studio, Cambrian Company. Herdell writes, "Through storms of sawdust I seek the stories that trees can tell. I strive to forge a connection between nature and human intention, making something new and beautiful to share."

Alexis Joyner creates figurative wood carvings with an emphasis on familial relationships. "I find myself drawn to the special bond between mother and child," Joyner notes. "I often address social issues and concerns and I like to gently remind young folk that they don't need to reinvent the wheel."

Ley Killeya uses acrylic paint and a range of printmaking techniques to create her abstract figurative paintings. Her pieces are meant to represent the body, "without clear markers of person or place," instead allowing Killeya and the viewer to consider, "how our identities, and the ways others perceive them, are used to confer power, limit rights, exercise control, and interrogate identity."

Oami Powers creates contemporary ceramic sculpture, installations, and graphite drawings, all of which are "inspired by personal history and a lifelong love for Myths and folklore." Created with simple elements such as mud, fire, and graphite, her pieces "use gesture and expression to evoke the intimacy and complexity of the human experience."

Suzan Scribner-Reed creates her mixed media paintings using multiple layers of acrylic paint, oil pastels, pencils, vintage papers, and wax on birch panels. Inspired by nature, poetry, and weathered surfaces, her pieces are meant to contain an element of mystery. Scribner-Reed writes, "Each layer and mark I make adds depth, history, and richness. I use line, form, color and unexpected imperfections to build a narrative that feels familiar to our own individual memories."

Darcy Szeremi's handcrafted sterling jewelry often tells stories, many of which feature animals or people who cavort around the pieces in poses that are meant to make the viewer smile. She is especially drawn to horses and cats for her animal imagery, and says that, "the people in my work are either dancing or reaching for stars, depending on my mood. I hope that my art brings joy."

Nadine Zenobi's interest in the healing arts influences her unique jewelry creations. She gives careful attention to the choice of stones and metals in her work, and takes inspiration from the natural world for her designs. Zenobi is a painter as well as a jeweler, and one of her pieces in the show will feature a section taken from a painting that, "signals the energy of sound without boundary."

The Hillsborough Gallery of Arts is owned and operated by 21 local artists and represents these established artists exhibiting contemporary fine art and fine craft. The gallery's offerings include watercolor, oil and acrylic paintings, metal and figurative sculpture, ceramics, scratchboard, painted gourd sculpture, jewelry, glass arts, metals, encaustic, enamel, fiber arts, and handcrafted furniture. The gallery is located on N. Churton Street, Hillsborough.

Ackland Art Museum in Chapel Hill, NC, Presents Works From the Terra Foundation for American Art

The Ackland Art Museum in Chapel Hill, NC, will present Triple Take: Dialogues with the Terra Collection-in-Residence, on view from Jan. 31 through May 11, 2025

The Ackland is fortunate to have American paintings on long-term loan from the Terra Foundation for American Art. These paintings are the centerpieces of the three sections of Triple Take: Dialogues with the Terra Collection-in-Residence. Each section of about twenty objects has different curators, who have gathered works from the Ackland that connect in often unexpected ways with the Terra Foundation loans.

This three-part exhibition begins with Lyonel Feininger's Denstedt (1917), a powerful and expressionistic view of a German village. This painting serves as the starting point for an exploration of the artist's achievements across his career, curated by Peter Nisbet. Dana Cowen explores themes of looking, the mirror, and privacy through Archibald Motley's Between Acts (1935). Ammi Phillips's Girl in a Red Dress (c. 1835) and Robert Henri's Sylvester (1914) anchor a selection of representations of children chosen by Lauren Turner and Carolyn Allmendinger. This final part of the exhibition explores how knowing or not knowing the names and biographical details of the people depicted can affect our experience of the artworks.

Cumulatively, Triple Take invites the visitor to experience the Terra Foundation loans in a new way. The three contrasting curatorial approaches show how Ackland's rich and deep collection can create a space for reinterpreting works of art.

Robert Henri, American, (1865 – 1929), "Sylvester", 1914, oil on canvas. 32 x 26 in. (81.3 x 66 cm); frame: 39 1/4 x 33 1/4 in. (99.7 x 84.5 cm). Terra Foundation for American Art, Daniel J. Terra Art Acquisition Endowment Fund, 2017.2, L2023.2.4

This exhibition is supported in part by the Terra Foundation for American Art and Laura & Walter Elcock. It was organized by Peter Nisbet, deputy director for curatorial affairs; Dana Cowen, Sheldon Peck curator for European and American art before 1950; Lauren Turner, associate curator for contemporary art and special projects; and Carolyn Allmendinger, interim director and director of education and interpretation.

Some Exhibits That Are Still On View

Our policy at Carolina Arts is to present a press release about an exhibit or event only once and then go on, but many major exhibits are on view for months. This is our effort to remind you of some of them.

The Mint Museum Uptown at the Levine Center for the Arts in Charlotte, NC, is presenting Southern/Modern: Rediscovering Southern Art From the First Half of the Twentieth Century, on view through Feb. 2, 2025. This is the first exhibition to present a comprehensive survey of works by artists working in the American South in the first half of the 20th century. Created in collaboration with Georgia Museum of Art, the exhibition includes more than 100 paintings and works on paper by artists working in states below the Mason-Dixon line and as far west as those bordering the Mississippi River, as well as some artists living outside of the region who made significant bodies of work during visits. Curated by the Mint's Senior Curator of American Art Jonathan Stuhlmán, PhD, and independent scholar Martha Severens, Southern/Modern: Rediscovering Southern Art From the First Half of the Twentieth Century takes a broad view of the South and is structured around key themes that traverse geographic regions, including time and place, race, family ties, and social struggles. The City of Charleston Office of Cultural Affairs in Charleston, SC, is presenting Calling Me Home: A Visual Ode to the Low-Country by Marcus Middleton, on view at the City Gallery, located at Joe Riley Waterfront Park, through Feb. 9, 2025. An artist's talk with Marcus Middleton will be held Feb. 9 at 2pm. Calling Me Home: A Visual Ode to the Low-Country is photographer Marcus Middleton's tribute to Wadmalaw Island, or what he likes to call a "living museum." "The American South is both turbulent and beautiful, and my hope is to share that dynamic and sometimes contradictory experience with the audience; to capture Wadmalaw as it is, unspoiled by progress," says Middleton. "Crossing over Esau Jenkins Bridge is like going back in time. And I believe that nostalgia is medicinal. Whenever I return home, I feel recharged and refreshed. It's the little things, right? I live in a big city, but low-country living is a part of my culture. This body of work is an attempt to express the gratitude I feel for where I grew up. I will forever be enamored with this place I call home." Middleton's visual tribute to his home includes more than 100 images. View of Edward Gay Exhibition

The Florence County Museum in Florence, SC, is presenting Edward Gay: An American Landscape Painter, on view through Feb. 23, 2025. New York based artist Edward Gay (1837 - 1928) began visiting and painting in South Carolina after his daughter Vivien, an architecture student at Cornell University, was married to James Lide Coker, Jr., of Hartsville, SC. Years later, the artist's son Duncan married James Coker's sister, Jennie. Because of these intermarriages, many of Gay's paintings entered Southern collections. "There's a story to be told here," said museum curator Stephen W. Motte, "This is an exhibition we have been looking forward to for a long time." The National Academy was the country's most influential art institution in the 19th century. Gay was a member for almost 60 years. Block Gallery, by environmental artist Deborah Kruger who is based in Durham, NC, on view through Apr. 25, 2025. Human-induced climate change and habitat fragmentation contribute to these problems. Saturated colors characterize Kruger's work which mimics bird plumage. She hopes to raise awareness, and inspire action about these impending losses that affect all of us. "Artist Deborah Kruger addresses concerns about the environment through her thoughtful and meticulous studio practice. Block Gallery is proud to present an exhibition of her unique work," said Stacy Bloom-Rexrode, Curator of Exhibitions and Collections. Jamie Wyeth (b. 1946) "Berg," 2011, watercolor, gesso, and enamel on joined rag boards ©Jamie Wyeth / Artists Rights Society (ARS), New York

Greenville County Museum of Art, 420 College Street, Greenville. Through Feb. 16 - "Jamie Wyeth: Unsettled." The exhibition traces a persistent vein of intriguing, often disconcerting imagery over the career of renowned artist Jamie Wyeth (b. 1946). This major exhibition—organized by the Brandywine Museum of Art (Chadds Ford, PA) and five years in the making—features more than 50 works drawn from museum and private collections across the country that focus on the artist's arresting, visceral imagery, revealing fascinating insight into Wyeth and the art of visual storytelling. A celebrated figure in contemporary art and fiercely independent in the face of prevailing art world trends, Jamie Wyeth stands apart in a shadowy and strange world of his own creation. While frequently countered and even hidden by the artist's fuller body of work—particularly his well-known coastal views, farmscapes, and portraits—an unsettled mood. Ongoing - "Three Mighty Gamecocks," features works in various media by Corrie McCallum (1914 – 2009), Jasper Johns (born 1930), and Grainger McKoy (born 1947), all of whom graduated from high school in Sumter, SC. McCallum, a Sumter native, graduated in 1932 from Sumter High School, after which she enrolled at the University of South Carolina, and later studied at the Boston Museum School of Art. In addition to sustaining her career as a painter and printmaker, McCallum pioneered art education in the South, teaching at the Gibbes Art Gallery, Telfair Academy in Savannah, Newberry College, and the College of Charleston. In 1960, she became the first professional Curator of Art Education at the Gibbes. Johns graduated as the valedictorian of his 1947 class at Edmunds High School, which was known as Sumter High School until the 1939-1940 school year. After attending the University of South Carolina, he relocated to New York City, where he gained prominence in the mid-1950s for his paintings of American flags, targets, alphabets, and numerals ("things the mind already knows," as Johns famously said). He is considered one of the most influential painters of the Post-World War era and America's preeminent living artist. McKoy graduated in 1965 from Edmunds High and has spent most of his life in Sumter. After studying architecture and biology at Clemson University, he joined his knowledge of the sciences with his uncanny skills as a carver, draftsman, and painter to achieve unique sculptures that fool the eye and defy gravity. His works are found in major public and private collections, most notably at Brookgreen Gardens and the Greenville County Museum of Art. Ongoing - Watermedia in the Age of Wyeth. When he was only 20, Andrew Wyeth (1917 – 2009) enjoyed a sold-out exhibition of his watercolors at New York City's Macbeth Gallery in 1937. The young artist was heralded for revitalizing the medium, and his career was launched. Over the next 72 years, as his methods evolved from broad abstracted washes of color to the intricate hatching of his signature drybrush technique, Wyeth firmly established his mastery of modern watermedia, which may include watercolor, gouache, tempera, acrylic, or ink (and combinations thereof). Selected from the GCMA permanent collection, this exhibition offers the opportunity to witness Andrew Wyeth's artistic evolution over time and invites comparison with other accomplished watermedia luminaries who worked during Wyeth's life. Ongoing - "Art and Artists of South Carolina: For Real". The GCMA's newest exhibition is drawn from the Museum's permanent collection. Celebrate the Palmetto State with a diverse selection of watercolors by Mary Whyte and Stephen Scott Young, sculptures carved by Grainger McKoy, and varied South Carolina landscapes. Ongoing - "Collection Highlights: African-American Art," features 17 works by as many artists. At the forefront of the exhibition is a realistic sculpture by John Wilson, whose monumental bronze head of Martin Luther King, Jr. captures the dignity and strength of the civil rights leader. Post-World War II non-objective painting is reflected in works by Beauford Delaney, Hale Woodruff, and Frank Wimberley. A lighter, but no less powerful, touch is embodied in a brilliant Color Field painting by Thomas Sills. The exhibition also includes evocative examples by Romare Bearden, Frederick Brown, Jacob Lawrence, Betye Saar, Merton Simpson, and Bob Thompson. Ongoing - "Andrew Wyeth: Running with the Land". This stunning retrospective showcases 59 works on paper, capturing Wyeth's preference for painting intimate subjects that were tied to the homes established by his father in both Chadds Ford, Pennsylvania, and Cushing, Maine. Wyeth drew inspiration from the distinctive characteristics and denizens of these locations, revealing universal traits in his depictions of landscapes, objects, and people. Ongoing - "All in the Family (Connections)," which assembles work by three generations of Wyeths--the first family of American painting--taking advantage of several rarely exhibited loans from a private collection and complementing the exhibition "Andrew Wyeth: Running with the Land". Admission: Free. Hours: Wed.-Sat., 10am-6pm and Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 864/271-7570 or at (www.gcma.org).

Work by Anderson Wrangle

Visual Arts Institute, on the Greer Campus of Greenville Technical College about 4 miles north of Greer on Highway 290, Locust Hill Road, Taylors. Benson Campus Galleries, Jan. 13 - Feb. 7 - "Landscape Now," featuring works by Todd Anderson, Brittany Gilbert, Julie Mixon, Amanda Musick, Patrick Owens, and Anderson Wrangle. Throughout history we have been awed by the power and permanence of the landscape, its bucolic balm, and its bounty of resources. Artists have recorded this beauty and bounty across time. Our industrialization has slowly challenged landscapes' permanence and bounty through misuse and misunderstanding. Now even mountains, rivers, seas are no longer permanent. The bucolic woodlands are subdivisions or landfills. Our once bountiful earth and its climate is becoming inhospitable and fragile. The artists in Landscapes Now are addressing our landscapes and in turn climate's hostility toward supporting our industrialized life and culture. Each artist has an individual focus, but the sum of their singular visions is a view of desolation and fragility. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 9am-7pm & Fri., 9am-2pm. Contact: Laraine Wells, Administrative Assistant at 864/848-2023 or e-mail at (laraine.wells@gvltcc.edu).

A reception will be held on Feb. 6, from 5:30-7pm. The exhibition is a meditation on the simultaneous and fleeting nature of rural landscapes and the callous tendency to denote human boundaries in natural spaces where there were none before. Drawing from the research of scientists like Susan Simard and Robin Wall Kimmerer and the eloquent writings found in Richard Powers' book "The Overstory", my current body of work utilizes imagery culled from hours of quiet investigation of both lush and decimated landscapes, primarily through the medium of printmaking. Ongoing - Featuring works by local and regional artists. Franklin G. Burroughs - Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum, 3100 South Ocean Blvd., beside Springmaid Beach, Myrtle Beach. Through Feb. 23 - "Paul Yanko: Primary Structures". Combining architectural and organic shapes, then layering them with varying densities of vividly colored paint, abstract artist Paul Yanko creates intricately detailed compositions that draw the viewer in like a maze and invite a closer inspection. Yanko's work has focused on developing a response to abstraction that addresses nuances of color and surface along with the representation of flat and illusionistic space. He has described his work as "an ongoing exploration in the development of disparate and complex surface qualities reconciled through various means of paint application." Jan. 11 - May 18 - "Mary Edna Fraser I Awakening". A reception will be held on Jan. 11, from 4-6pm. Artists find inspiration in many places. For artist and environmental activist Mary Edna Fraser, it's the bird's-eye views of North and South Carolina coastlines and waterways seen from her grandfather's vintage 1946 Ecoupe plane. This is an exhibition of her awe-inspiring images of these views in batiks and oils. Fraser's half a century of producing batiks on silk (an ancient process using wax and dye on cloth), oil paintings, short documentaries, exhibitions and events have had a single aim: to overcome apathy and educate her viewers about our fragile environment. With her stunning batiks installed to look like draped silk sculptures, as well as both large and intimate-sized oils, the artist seeks to inspire an awe of and a protective affection toward the planet. Ongoing - Myrtle Beach's Franklin G. Elliot in Summerton, thru the 1969 Charleston Hospital Workers' Strike...and Beyond. From 1955 through 1969, Williams was a freelance journalist for "JET" magazine. His images have appeared in thousands of magazines, newspapers, historical publications, and motion picture productions. The museum design itself is part of the founders' DNA because; upon graduating from high school, Williams wanted to attend Clemson University to study architecture but denied because of his race. He then purchased a drafting board and through the years, designed three residences; including one featured in "EBONY", and the museum's design which has evolved into a living history facility. Spartanburg

District. Contact: visit (www.chapmanculturalcenter.org).

Throughout downtown Spartanburg's Cultural District, Ongoing - The Creative Crosswalk Project is a public art initiative in which local artists and designers design and paint a series of crosswalk murals, transforming the crosswalks into works of art, on Main Street in Spartanburg, SC. The downtown cultural district area is often bustling with events and pedestrians, and the pedestrians rely heavily on a multitude of crosswalks to safely traverse the downtown Spartanburg area. The problem is that crosswalks are incredibly easy to overlook, they are rarely visually appealing, and they can even be quite dangerous. In an effort to remedy these issues, Chapman Cultural Center, the City of Spartanburg, and the Spartanburg Area Chamber of Commerce came together to organize the Creative Crosswalk Project. For more info visit (<https://www.chapmanculturalcenter.org/pages/blog/detail/article/c0/a1555/>).

His ties to the Spartanburg community originate from his longtime employment at Milliken and Company. Tait was born in Old Town, Maine in 1917 and graduated from the New Hampshire Institute of Arts and Science. In the late 1940s, he moved to New York City where he designed an exclusive line of ladies' handkerchiefs for the department store B. Altman, now considered vintage, collectible items. He also became associated with the American Artist Group designing Christmas cards, an occupation which he kept up throughout the majority of his artistic career. Krisel was a distinguished artist, architect, and teacher as well as a loving father and husband. Though Krisel may not be a household name among Spartanburg residents, he has made a significant artistic contribution to the Spartanburg community. Born in Brooklyn, NY in 1920, Krisel's interest in art and design started at a young age. He attended the American Artist School in New York city as a teenager where he met renowned modern artists, including Piet Mondrian, who greatly influenced his abstract style. After studying architecture at the New Bauhaus in Chicago from 1946-1949, he received his graduate degree from Illinois Institute of Technology in 1952. The following year, he began working for architectural firm Skidmore, Owings and Merrill when Roger Milliken hired them to design Milliken's new research facility in Spartanburg. Upon realizing Krisel was also a sculptor, Milliken hired him to design the spray fountain outside of the facility which functions as a recycler of air conditioning water. He then went on to design the Trident Fountain located outside of the Papadopoulos building on Wofford College's campus. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 10am-7pm & Sat, 9am-3pm. ty Arts Council. Sister Galleries & Suntrust Gallery, Through Jan. 17 - "The Life and Art of Charles M. Schulz". He was an artist and a storyteller who transformed images of everyday life into art that captured the humor, vulnerability, and dignity of the human spirit. Through Peanuts, Schulz connected the world with his drawings and stories. "The Life and Art of Charles M. Simons. A response to the exhibition "Reforestation of the Imagination by Ginny Ruffner, Forest Feels" invites its viewers to participate in two distinct realities of an art museum experience: to observe the work as it is in this moment, and also to change the work by contributing to its evolution. There are many ways to participate in this piece! Please interact in a way that feels right to you. Rearrange the components, create a plant (real or imagined), add on, take away, or just stay awhile and enjoy some sensations. Amanda N. Simons (b. 1984, Flint Michigan, USA) is a visual artist, writer, educator, and safety advocate whose interdisciplinary art practice currently explores the intersections of queer identity, and experience-based learning. The Van Winkle Law Firm Gallery, Through May 31 - "Anti Form: Robert Morris's Earth Projects". The Asheville Art Museum presents Anti Form: Robert Morris's Earth Projects. The suite of lithographic drawings by Robert Morris presents a series of ideas for ten works of art shaped out of earth, atmospheric conditions, and built environments. Created in 1969, the series marks an important moment when artists began to reimagine what art could be. Morris was a pioneer in conceptual art working at the forefront of Minimalism, Process art, and Land art. He theorized and championed the work of art as an idea rather than a physical form, influencing generations of artists to come. This exhibition is organized by the Asheville Art Museum and Jessica Orzulak, Associate Curator and Curatorial Affairs Manager. Debra McClinton Gallery, Through Mar. 31 - "Forces of Nature: Ceramics from the Hayes Collection". Ceramic artists throughout history have become masters of all four elements - creating clay from a mixture of earth and water to shape their work, drying it in air, and hardening it in fire. Throughout this process, the artist decides which aspects of the work will be tightly controlled, and when the elements can step in to leave nature's mark. This exhibition traces the historical, stylistic, and conceptual origins of work that either embraces or refuses the element of chance in ceramics, looking at modern and contemporary work made in Western North Carolina. The ceramics in this exhibition are all drawn from the robust collection of Andrew and Hatha Hayes, who have been collecting important regional pottery and sculpture for decades. Through their close relationships with artists, they have brought together works that show not only the different aesthetics seen in the region, but also a picture of the ceramics community. Regional artists including Cynthia Bringle, Donna Craven, Mark Hewitt, Fred Johnston, Ben Owen III, and Norm Schulman will be on view, demonstrating the many different approaches to ceramics in this region. Ongoing - The Asheville Art Museum, the hub for 20th- and 21st-century American art in Western North Carolina, has re-opened to the public. The $24+ million, state-of-the-art facility encompasses 54,000 square feet and adds 70 percent more Collection gallery space. For the first time in the Museum's history, it has the capacity to host major traveling exhibitions from nationally recognized museums. Black Mountain College Museum + Arts Center, 120 College Street, Asheville. Through Jan. 11 - "The Farm at Black Mountain College". The story of Black Mountain College (BMC) has grown to mythical proportions since the liberal arts school officially closed its doors in 1957. Countless books, exhibitions, and artworks have been created to capture what it was like to live and learn at this singular college and to chart its unparalleled cultural legacy. But before this exhibition and accompanying book, nobody had written about the farm at BMC in any great detail. Built on more than a decade's worth of deep, original archival research, "The Farm at Black Mountain College" exhibition constitutes a deep new history of BMC. By focusing on the farm, the exhibition sidesteps the popular paradigm of approaching BMC through its famous faculty and students, and instead offers a new cast of characters, one that includes mostly students, women, and farmers. It spotlights the importance of collaboration, both on campus among students, faculty, and faculty families, and in the community with farmers and organizations in nearby cities and towns. Finally, the exhibition shows what happens when communal living is no longer communal, and offers a detailed account of the final dark days of the college, a dramatic and often dangerous story. Ongoing - An exhibition space dedicated to exploring the history and legacy of the world's most acclaimed experimental educational community, Black Mountain College. Hours: Wed.-Sat., noon-4pm or by appt. Contact: 828/350-8484 or at (www.blackmountaincollege.org).

sented side by side. Although at first glance the two artists' work might appear radically different—in medium, use of color, physicality—on closer examination strong parallels emerge. Both artists' works subvert expectations with layers of complexity and meaning. This marks the first time in over 30 years that the two artists, who are a couple, have developed an exhibition together. For Laughlin and Finn, one could understand both these bodies of work as portraiture of a sort: studies of seemingly familiar subjects. Atwell, & Rankin East Galleries, Through Jan. 5 - "The Hard Edge & The Soft Line: A Retrospective of Maud Gatewood". Maud Gatewood (1934–2004) is an exceptional figure in the art history of North Carolina and the American Southeast. A painter of exacting technique with a keen eye for composition and cultural commentary, her pictures capture the Carolinas (and the expanding world beyond) across much of the 20th Century. A native of Yanceyville in Caswell County, NC, Gatewood's paintings reveal rural landscapes and their denizens in the midst of transformation while also cleverly framing the experience of modern life with acerbic wit and a surprising wealth of empathy. "The Hard Edge & The Soft Line: A Retrospective of Maud Gatewood" is a major undertaking by BRAHM. This retrospective project provides a comprehensive narrative of Gatewood's career, considering the evolution of her oeuvre and her significant contributions, as an artist and an educator, to the field of contemporary representational painting in North Carolina and the region. A recuperative exercise, the exhibition and its accompanying scholarship will feature a broad range of her works, including paintings, works on paper, and archival material, excavating Gatewood's rigorous technical experimentation, coded but no less rich explorations of gender and sexuality, and reverence for depicting the built and natural landscapes of her native state and elsewhere. Ongoing - "Reimagined Ginny Stevens Gallery: Blowing Rock, A History Exhibition," features a diorama of the iconic Mayview Manor Hotel. This immersive exhibition celebrates the town of Blowing Rock's rich history and features an extraordinary new highlight: a 1-to-87 scale diorama of the Mayview Manor Hotel, crafted by renowned Charlotte-based realist painter and diorama artist Dan Nance. The reimagined exhibition is a collaboration between Ashlee Lanier, a freelance curator with a master's degree in public history from Appalachian State University and a bachelor's degree in osteoarchaeology from North Carolina State University, and Ian Gabriel Wilson curator of exhibitions and collections at BRAHM. Samantha Burnette, graduate student in the public History program at Appalachian State University, supported the project through extensive review of available historical materials and photographs in partnership with the Blowing Rock Historical Society and BRAHM. Ongoing - the BRAHM will host exhibits, educational programs and classes that promote the visual arts, history and heritage of the mountains of western North Carolina. Ackland Art Museum, UNC - Chapel Hill, Columbia & Franklin Streets, Chapel Hill. Through Jan.5 - "Dürer to Matisse: 400 Years of European Prints". The exhibition offers an exceptional opportunity to view nearly 100 prints by some of the most recognized artists active from the late fifteenth century to the mid-twentieth century, beginning and ending with two towering giants of printmaking—Albrecht Dürer and Henri Matisse. The Ackland Art Museum holds North Carolina's largest and most comprehensive collections of art on paper, but due to light sensitivity, these works can only be displayed for short periods. Works by Rembrandt van Rijn, Giovanni Battista Piranesi, Francisco de Goya, Edgar Degas, Mary Cassatt, Vincent van Gogh, Käthe Kollwitz, Edvard Munch, and many others, showcase the craftsmanship, expressive power, and aesthetic beauty achieved through printmaking. While a more personal selection emphasizing high quality and good condition than a comprehensive history of the medium, the prints on view do chart the progression of art historical movements from the Renaissance to Cubism and beyond, through woodcuts, engravings, etchings, aquatints, mezzotints, and lithographs. Some newly acquired and never before displayed at the Ackland, and others off view for decades, these prints reveal how the use of black ink, paper, and various printmaking techniques can create a wealth of innovative and technically stunning works of art.

Jan. 31 - May 11 - "Triple Take: Dialogues with the Terra Collection-in-Residence". The Ackland is fortunate to have American paintings on long-term loan from the Terra Foundation for American Art. These paintings are the centerpiece of the three sections of "Triple Take: Dialogues with the Terra Collection-in-Residence". Each section of about twenty objects has different curators, who have gathered works from the Ackland that connect in often unexpected ways with the Terra Foundation loans. This three-part exhibition begins with Lyonel Feininger's Denstedt (1917), a powerful and expressionistic view of a German village. This painting serves as the starting point for an exploration of the artist's achievements across his career, curated by Peter Nisbet. Dana Cowen explores themes of looking, the mirror, and privacy through Archibald Motley's Between Acts (1935). Ammi Phillips's Girl in a Red Dress (c. 1835) and Robert Henri's Sylvester (1914) anchor a selection of representations of children chosen by Lauren Turner and Carolyn Allmendinger. This final part of the exhibition explores how knowing or not knowing the names and biographical details of the people depicted can affect our experience of the artworks. Through July 13 - "Processing Systems: Bonding by Sherrill Roland". In the exhibition, monumental square grids of multi-colored numbers dominate the exhibition space like giant sudoku puzzles. To create them, artist Sherrill Roland reclaims United States Federal and State Correctional Identification Numbers and repurposes them through what he considers to be a systematized portraiture making technique. The grids on view act as logic exercises that scramble and rework the former correctional IDs of the artist and his father. The resulting wall drawings create theoretical portraits of the two subjects. The shared system employed to create the two works emphasizes the various bonds shared by these family members at the same time that the formal qualities of the drawings evoke lone figures bound by cells.

Permanent Collection Galleries, Through Dec. 31, 2025 - At any one time, there are about 250 works of art from the Ackland's distinguished permanent collection on view. The displays cover many eras and cultures, including most of the Museum's collection areas: the Ancient Mediterranean, Africa, Asia, the Americas, and Europe. Occasional galleries present small selections of prints, drawings, photographs, and other light-sensitive works. You can search our online collection database and filter by works on view. Bechtler Museum of Modern Art, Levine Center for the Arts, 420 South Tryon St., Charlotte. Through Jan. 20 - "Clare Rojas: Past the Present". Over the past twenty years, Clare Rojas (b. 1976) has developed a multifaceted art practice that draws on a wide range of inspirations, from ecofeminism to diverse literary and musical sources, the folklore of her Peruvian ancestry, the crisp formalism of 20th-century abstraction, and the fantastical spirit of Surrealism, which she has shaped into her own unique visual vocabulary. Clare Rojas: Past the Present features nearly 100 examples of the artist's work from the past five years, including large-scale and intimate paintings, bronze sculptures, works on paper, and an installation of wallpaper designed in collaboration with Schumacher x Peg Norriss. While Rojas has veered between abstraction and magical realist figuration throughout her career, the compelling recent work included in this exhibition deftly conjoins these modes of artmaking in compositions that center female empowerment and that marry an exploration of the legacies—and lacunae—of modernism with contemporary experience, confronting issues surrounding representation, the fragile state of the environment, and the patterns of everyday life. The exhibition launches the Bechtler Museum's 15th anniversary celebration, and with it, a year of exhibitions and programs dedicated to important female artists of the modern and contemporary periods. Through Mar. 3 - "Chance Encounters: Surrealism Then and Now." Surrealism was an artistic and literary movement formed in Paris in 1924 that emphasized the fantastical, dream imagery, and subconscious thought. Privileging experimentation and uninhibited modes of expression, Surrealism produced radical new techniques and visual forms that continue to inspire artists today. Celebrating the 100th anniversary of the publication of the Surrealist Manifesto, the Bechtler's new exhibition, Chance Encounters: Surrealism Then and Now, pairs examples of historical Surrealism from the museum's collection with works by contemporary artists whose practices extend the legacies of Surrealist exploration. Paying tribute to the inclusive and international scope of the movement, the exhibition includes Max Ernst, Meret Oppenheim, Rufino Tamayo, alongside Heri Dono and Naudine Pierre, and includes loans from local private and public collections. Ongoing - The Bechtler Museum of Modern Art is named after the family of Andreas Bechtler, a Charlotte resident and native of Switzerland who assembled and inherited a collection of more than 1,400 artworks created by major figures of 20th-century modernism and donated it to the public trust. The Bechtler collection comprises artworks by seminal figures such as Alberto Giacometti, Joan Miro, Jean Tinguely, Max Ernst, Andy Warhol, Alexander Calder, Le Corbusier, Sol LeWitt, Edgar Degas, Nicolas de Stael, Barbara Hepworth and Picasso. Only a handful of the artworks in the Bechtler collection have been on public view in the United States. Admission: Yes. Hours: Mon., Wed.-Sat., 10am-5pm; Sun. noon-5pm; and open until 9pm the 1st. and 3rd. Fri. of each month. Contact: 704/353-9200 or at (www.bechtler.org).

McColl Center for Art + Innovation, 721 North Tryon Street, Charlotte. Through Jan. 18 - "The Audacity". McColl Center is pleased to present The Audacity, a group exhibition curated by Doris Kapner, featuring Studio Artists Maddie Foss, Melanee Hamilton, Bethany Salisbury, Melissa Stutts, Karina Walter and Betsy Rosen in collaboration with Héctor Vaca Cruz and Kass Small. The Audacity examines the conflicting and arbitrary expectations placed on women, often referred to as the "Goldilocks Dilemma." Women are criticized for being too much or too little: too loud, too soft, too assertive, too agreeable—rarely seen as "just right." Through Jan. 18 - "Ties That Bind: Portraits by Mitchell Kearney of Artists at McColl Center, 1999–2008," curated by Melissa Stutts. Twenty-five years ago, the dream of creating an urban artist's colony in a fire-ravaged church in uptown Charlotte became a reality. Since 1999, McColl Center's artist residency program has been a haven for artists—a place where they have the time, space, and resources to make their dreams a reality. Photographer Mitchell Kearney was there from the start. Founding president, Suzanne Fetscher, an artist herself, asked Kearney to capture the creative process. His charge was to offer a glimpse into how art is made by each resident artist, and to show a place that connects the community to the artist at work and not just the finished artwork. "Ties That Bind: Portraits by Mitchell Kearney of Artists at McColl Center, 1999–2008" reveals an intimate and collaborative approach. Both the artist and the photographer are at work, doing what they love. Although McColl Center is no longer a church, there is still something sacred in the act of creativity. Hours: Call about visiting. Contact: 704/332-5535 or at (www.mccollcenter.org).

Robert W. Ebendorf (American, 1938–), various artists. "ECU Charm Necklace", 2017, silver, copper, brass, enamel, mixed media, found objects, 19 x 12 1/2 x 1 3/4 in. Collection of The Mint Museum. Gift of Porter • Price Collection. 2022.49.7

Mint Museum Randolph, 2730 Randolph Road, Charlotte. Through Feb. 16 - "Objects of Affection: Jewelry by Robert Ebendorf From the Porter • Price Collection". This exhibition celebrates the work of artist Robert Ebendorf, one of the most influential artists in the studio jewelry movement, beginning in the 1960s to today. The exhibition features more than 180 works of jewelry, metalwork, drawings, and archival materials drawn from the Porter • Price Collection designed by Ebendorf, as well as faculty and graduates of the metal design program at East Carolina University. Ebendorf's work combines exceptional craftsmanship, acquired through traditional training in gold- and silversmithing, with the inventive use of found objects and other alternative materials such as acrylic and ColorCore. "Objects of Affection" follows the evolution of Ebendorf's designs from Scandinavian modernism of his early work to his first use of found objects, including tintype photographs in the 1960s; juxtapositions of colored acrylic and precious metals in the 1970s; use of found newspaper and other textual elements in the 1980s; his pivotal incorporation of animal parts in the 1990s; and the remixing and further development of many of these approaches in the 21st century. Delhom Gallery, Through June 8 - "The Delhom Service League: 50 Golden Years". The Delhom Service League (DSL) provided a half-century of generous support and impactful initiatives to The Mint Museum, helping to fund the acquisition of more than 200 works of art in the Mint's collection. The exhibition celebrates the Delhom Service League's enthusiastic support for the Mint by proudly displaying significant works funded or gifted by the affiliate group, plus selected publications, photographs and other memorabilia. In 2022, the Delhom Service League made the difficult decision to dissolve as a Mint affiliate. The league nevertheless remains an indelible part of the Mint's history, and its many contributions rightly deserve the museum's never-ending recognition and gratitude. Ongoing - "The Cole Family: A Dynasty of North Carolina Potters". From crocks, jars, and jugs to pitchers, candleholders, and vases, "turning pots" is one of the oldest and richest craft traditions in North Carolina. For more than 200 years, members of the Cole family have been potting in central North Carolina — Randolph, Moore, Lee, and Montgomery counties. Six generations of Coles, and no fewer than 18 individuals, are represented in The Mint Museum's permanent collection. More than 60 highlights of their wares are included in the installation "The Cole Family: A Dynasty of North Carolina Potters". One reason for its long-term success is that making pottery has so often been a family tradition in the state. Fathers taught the art of forming, glazing, and firing clay objects to their sons, and in later generations also to daughters, who in turn taught their children, and so on through the decades. These family dynasties not only helped to keep the potting craft alive, but ensured continuity in techniques and craftsmanship, as well as introduced artistic innovations in succeeding generations. "The Cole Family: A Dynasty of North Carolina Potters" presents a visual history of "turned pots" and the family that helped turn North Carolina into one of America's centers for handmade, traditional pottery. Bridges and Levine Galleries, Ongoing - "Contemporary British Studio Ceramics: The Grainer Collection". Focused on the collection of Diane and Marc Grainer, this installation is a survey of contemporary British studio ceramics. Comprising functional and sculptural objects made between the 1980s and today, the show features work by artists either born or residing in Great Britain, including established "contemporary classics" like Gordon Baldwin and Rupert Spira, and cutting-edge ceramicists such as Julian Stair and Kate Malone. Several recently-gifted works from the Grainers are included. Alexander, Spangler, and Harris Galleries, Ongoing - "Portals to the Past: British Ceramics 1675 - 1825". The Mint Museum's collection of eighteenth-century British pottery and porcelain is widely respected for its scope and quality. The collection numbers over 2,000 objects and includes important examples of both salt-glazed and dry-bodied stoneware from Staffordshire; tin-glazed earthenware from Bristol, Liverpool, and London; and cream-colored earthenware from Derbyshire, Staffordshire, and Yorkshire. Notable eighteenth-century porcelain factories represented include Chelsea, Bow, and Vauxhall in London, Longton Hall in Staffordshire, Worcester, Bristol, and others. Individual works in the collection are exceptional because of their rarity, craftsmanship, provenance, or as representative examples of particular types or methods of production or decoration. Ongoing - "American Glass". The nineteenth and early twentieth centuries represented a time of extraordinary growth for the American glass industry. Such companies as Boston & Sandwich Glass Company in Sandwich, MA; Steuben Glass Works in Corning, NY; and Libbey Glass Company in Toledo, OH, began operation and soon developed notable reputations for producing fashionable wares that were coveted by many middle- and upper-class consumers. "American Glass" showcases objects by these and other American glass companies, illustrating the variety of forms and styles that prevailed during this period. Glass-manufacturing techniques will be another focus of the exhibition, with representative examples of pressed, cut, blown, and molded glass. Nearly all of the works on view are from The Mint Museum's permanent collection of glass, which is second in size only to the ceramics collection in the museum's Decorative Arts holdings. Ongoing - "Arts of Africa". The African continent is remarkable in its geographic, social, political, and cultural diversity. This impressive diversity is reflected in the visual arts through a variety of media and forms including ceramics, masks, textiles, sculptures, prestige staffs, and shrines. With exceptional loans from private collectors and The Mint Museum's own collection of African Art, the museum is pleased to announce the expansion of its presentation of Arts of Africa, thereby providing visitors a more in-depth, meaningful, and exciting overview of African art. Heritage Gallery, Ongoing - Feature works of art, archival documents, and photographs documenting the growth and evolution of the museum, from its beginnings as the original branch of the US Mint to its founding as an art museum to the present and beyond. Ongoing - "Art for the Millions: WPA Prints" and "Carolina Clay," featuring a display of colorful wares made between 1920 and 1950 as potters from NC adapted their wares to a market economy. "Art in the Americas," featuring paintings, precious metalwork, sculpture, furniture and decorative arts from the 17th through the 19th centuries illustrate the unique culture that emerged from the Spanish colonization of the Americas. Crosland Gallery - Featuring a presentation of portraits with many fascinating images presented. Rankin Gallery - Featuring a presentation of the Romare Bearden Collection, including two "new" Beardens. Mint Museum Uptown, Levine Center for the Arts, 500 South Tryon St., Charlotte. Through Apr. 27 - "Coined in the South: 2024". The exhibition aims to bridge the gap between museums, galleries, and studios by showcasing thought-provoking works by the emerging artists living or working in the Southern United States. The name "Coined in the South" refers to both The Mint Museum's origins as the first branch of the U.S. Mint, as well as the act of inventing. Many of the works selected for the "2024 Coined in the South"

Work by Adrian Rhodes in "Coined in the South"

exhibition reflect on personal narratives and cultural histories. The exhibition transcends any singular aesthetic, theme, or medium, striving to mirror the rich diversity and creative spirit of the Southern arts community. Jurors who helped select works for this exhibition include: Marshall N. Price, PHD, Chief Curator and Nancy A. Nasher and David J. Haemisegger Curator of Modern and Contemporary Art, Duke University; Victoria Ramirez, PHD, Executive Director, Arkansas Museum of Fine Arts; and Stephanie J. Woods, Assistant Professor, Interdisciplinary Art, University of New Mexico. Through Mar. 2 - "Kenny Nguyen: Adaptations". Adaptation is defined as "the process in which a living thing changes slightly over time to be able to continue to exist in a particular environment." Kenny Nguyen feels this process materialized within himself, his lineage, and his methodology of making. Born and raised on a coconut grove in the B n Tre province of Vietnam, the artist lived a quiet rural life and later moved to the States at the age of 19. This dispersion from his homeland mapped a new internal geography—a subtle double-consciousness that the artist works with—traversing the spiritual and physical, the contemporary and historical. Through Feb. 2 - "Southern/Modern: Rediscovering Southern Art From the First Half of the Twentieth Century." The first exhibition to present a comprehensive survey of works by artists working in the American South in the first half of the 20th century. Created in collaboration with Georgia Museum of Art, the exhibition includes more than 100 paintings and works on paper by artists working in states below the Mason-Dixon line and as far west as those bordering the Mississippi River, as well as some artists living outside of the region who made significant bodies of work during visits. Curated by the Mint's Senior Curator of American Art Jonathan Stuhlman, PhD, and independent scholar Martha Severens, Southern/Modern: Rediscovering Southern Art From the First Half of the Twentieth Century takes a broad view of the South and is structured around key themes that traverse geographic regions, including time and place, race, family ties, and social struggles. It also takes a broad, inclusive view of the art of the region, incorporating the creativity and talent of women artists and artists of color across its various thematic sections to provide a fuller, richer, and more accurate overview of the artistic activity in the American South at the time. Through Aug. 10 - "Women of Land and Smoke: Photographs by Graciela Iturbide and Maya Goded". The exhibition includes over 50 photographs that present an overview of Iturbide and Goded's careers that span the Americas. For the past three years, the Mint has been building a significant portfolio of works by Mexico City-based photographers Graciela Iturbide and Maya Goded. Over the decades, the two photographers have created revealing, poignant, and powerful images that examine the intersection of contemporary life and centuries-long practices throughout North and South America. Craft + Design Galleries, Ongoing - "Craft in the Laboratory: The Science of Making Things," is the first installation in the Southeast to explore how craft artists and designers use science and math concepts when creating works of art. Presented by M ller Corporation, Craft in the Laboratory also celebrates a reinstatement of the Mint's Craft + Design Galleries—the first since 2010. Co-curated by the Mint's Senior Curator of Craft, Design, and Fashion Annie Carlan and Assistant Curator for Craft, Design, and Fashion Rebecca Elliot, "Craft in the Laboratory" includes 100 works from the Mint's collection that are made from precious metals, wood, steel, polymers, and even agricultural waste, that emphasize the preciseness of science used to craft works of art. Made by nationally and internationally renowned artists, the objects are organized by material and subject throughout the galleries. Now - The Mint Museum's new four-story installation "Foragers" offers a transcendent experience while celebrating the tradition of women as makers and providers. Unlike anything ever seen at The Mint Museum before, Brooklyn-based artist Summer Wheat's "Foragers" is a monumental piece of public work of art spanning 96 windows, four stories, and 3,720 square feet at Mint Museum Uptown's Robert Haywood Morrison Atrium. The myriad of vibrant panels that give the illusion of stained glass and celebrates the tradition of women as makers and providers. "Foragers" is Ivy Gallery, Weatherspoon Guild Gallery, and Gallery 6, Through July 5 - "Making Connections: Art, Place, and Relationships". boro, and broader communities. Back in 1941, the Weatherspoon was founded with the goal of serving as a teaching resource specifically for UNCG's department of art. Over the course of its 80+ years, the museum's mission has expanded to serve many more. Objects included in this iteration of collection highlights showcase the Weatherspoon's relationship over the years with various art collectors, UNCG fine art alumni and faculty, Greensboro community leaders, artists who taught at Black Mountain College and those who exhibited in the museum's signature exhibition, Art on Paper, as well as a few of the many UNCG departments that currently incorporate the museum's collection into their pedagogy.

The Bob & Lissa Shelley McDowell Gallery, Through Apr. 26 - "Crip" | Artists Engage with Disability."v This group exhibition features contemporary artists who engage with experiences and understandings of disability. They do so by thinking about the ways that one's personal experience of disability always intersects with other aspects of their life. Some of the artists in the show identify as disabled and some do not, but each has a relationship to at least one identity that is not perceived as normal. Too often, such artists are expected to "perform" these identities by making images of themselves. While those images can help diversify the art world, they can also pigeonhole artists, flatten our interpretations of their work, and make the distinctions between "normal" and "not-normal" more rigid. Artists whose work is featured in the exhibition include: Liz Barr, Emilie Gossiaux, Max Guy, Christopher Robert Jones, Carly Mandel, Darin Martin, Alison O'Daniel, Berenice Olmedo, Carmen Papalia, Brontez Purnell, Finnegan Shannon, Heather Kai Smith, and Alex Dolores Salerno. Lobbies - Featuring works of art complementing current gallery exhibitions which are rotated in the atrium and public areas throughout both floors of the gallery. Highlands

Detail of work by Will Henry Stevens

The Bascom, a center for the visual arts, 323 Franklin Rd., covered bridge entrance at the end of Main Street, Highlands. Bunzl Gallery, Through Jan. 11 - "From the Lowlands to the Highlands," featuring works by Will Henry Stevens, curated by Michael Manes. Will Henry Stevens' life (1881-1949) began and ended in a small riverboat community along the Ohio River, but the years between spent in New Orleans and Western North Carolina were defined by his tireless pursuit of a visual language for his vast creative energy. His enduring curiosity about the natural world, and his belief that there was a purpose – a design – in nature, led him effortlessly between representational and abstraction as he freely adjusted both style and medium to convey nature's essence. In this spirit, "From the Lowlands to the Highlands" includes both landscapes and abstracts capturing the two regions closest to the artist's heart, the Louisiana bayou and the Appalachian Mountains. The artist was drawn to "humble" scenes such as log cabins, cemeteries, and the mountaineers of Western North Carolina, as well as the bayou and common people of Louisiana. This monumental exhibition will showcase Stevens' love for nature, his understanding and proficiency with color, materials, and composition, and how two very different environments shaped the career of a Southern Modernist. Thompson Gallery, Through Jan. 4 - "Feel the Heal: Community Partner Exhibition." The exhibition offers many different artistic interpretations of human resiliency including illness, loss, and grief. "The Feel the Heal" initiative is based on the belief that art has the power to heal, inspire, provoke, and challenge. This initiative raises awareness about how art is a catalyst for positive change and enhances the wellbeing of individuals, society, and the environment through artists' creativity. This exhibition will give "Heartists" an opportunity to share their journey with all those who visit The Bascom. Education Gallery, Ongoing - The Bascom offers our students and instructors an opportunity to display their creative works from workshops and classes. Mount Airy

Mount Airy Museum of Regional History, 301 North Main Street, Mount Airy. Ongoing - Ours is an all American story - typical of how communities grew up all across our great nation. While our story takes place in the back country of northwestern North Carolina at the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains, it is likely to bear many similarities to the development of crossroads, towns, and cities throughout America. It had taken little more than 100 years for the corridors along the coastline of this still-new continent to overflow. As tensions grew and conflicts flared, the pioneer spirit set in. Families literally packed up everything they owned and headed into the unknown-searching for the "promised land." Admission: Yes. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 10am-5pm & Sun., 1-4pm. Contact: 336/786-4478 or at (northcarolinamuseum.org).

Gregg Museum of Art & Design, The Historic Chancellor's Residence, NC State University, located at 1903 Hillsborough Street, Raleigh. Through Jan. 25 - "Material Messages: The Tales that Textiles Tell". For thousands of years cultures around the world have used cloth as a means of visual communication—a way to document, celebrate, commemorate, and depict events large and small. Nonverbal tools play an important role in interactions within and between cultures, as verbal communication comprises only a small part of the ways that we, as human beings, share information and connect with each other. "Material Messages" features textiles created by a diversity of global artists that highlight this communication through cloth. Through Feb. 8 - "BABENGA – The Sacred Forest". Cameroonian artist Jean Michel Dissake's sculptural works use found and recycled materials to represent a balance between nature and technology by weaving natural objects such as wood, vines, termite dust, water hyacinths, and palm fronds together with computer boards, aluminum wire, license plates, and car parts. Informed by his cultural heritage as well as wisdom gained from living for nine years in the forest on the Mungo River, Dissake's work invokes a dialogue on ecological and spiritual matters and speaks to timely issues of unity, peace, love, and oneness with nature. BABENGA – The Sacred Forest is co-curated by Marriott Sheldon, a Raleigh artist and long-time curator of Dissake's work, and Roger Manley, former director of the Gregg. Dissake was invited to participate in this year's Venice Biennale, the world's most prestigious art expo. Ongoing - "Selections from the Collections". Image of a beige quilt with a skeleton riding a wolf holding an American flag. The quilt is made out of old t-shirts. Drawing from the Gregg Museum's collections of over 54,000 objects, Selections from the Collections displays a sampling of the many different kinds of pieces in its holdings. Though objects in the exhibition will rotate from time to time to facilitate their preservation and so that different artists and kinds of objects can be exhibited, the same general themes, materials, and variety of work will remain a part of this ongoing exhibition. For many years, Gregg audiences have been treated to wide ranging but relatively short-term exhibitions that explore topics or present artists' works for a matter of months, and then get changed out and replaced by entirely new shows. While this will continue, most visitors have departed without realizing that the Gregg staff also maintains vast collections used for teaching, research, supporting student projects, and, on occasion, as source material for the exhibitions in the public galleries. The semi-permanent Selections from the Collections exhibition in the historic Residence seeks to remedy that. This new rotating installation will ensure that there will always be fascinating things to see and share at the Gregg! Historic Residence, Ongoing - One of NC State University's most historic buildings is now the permanent home of the Gregg Museum of Art & Design. The Historic Chancellor's Residence, located at 1903 Hillsborough Street, along with a 15,000 sq. ft. addition, increases the museum's visibility while significantly adding to its exhibition and programming space. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm. The Gregg does ask that larger groups (15+) call ahead at (919) 515-3503, to avoid crowding in the galleries. Contact: Zoe Starling, Curator of Education at 919/513-7244 or at (<https://gregg.arts.ncsu.edu/>).

Dan Estabrook, "Forever and Never," 2004, unique pencil on calotype and salt print, each 5 x 7 in., Gift of Allen G. Thomas Jr. in honor of Linda Johnson Dougherty

North Carolina Museum of Art, 2110 Blue Ridge Road, Raleigh. East Building, Level B, Galleries 3, Through Mar. 9 - "JP Jermaine Powell—Leadership Reimagined: Share Your Journey." The exhibition encapsulates the journey of JP Jermaine Powell as artist in residence at the North Carolina Museum of Art. Throughout the exhibition he reflects on and pays tribute to the remarkable work of NCMA staff, critically acclaimed artists, and everyday heroes who have dedicated themselves to making the local art scene vibrant and productive. The show is a celebration of human resilience and what the artist refers to as "postpandemic leadership." It showcases how members of both the local and global art communities discovered new ways to create, innovate, and lead during a challenging time in human history. Powell intentionally chose individuals who may not fit conventional definitions of leadership but whose stories of resilience and dedication inspire others. These people continue to grow, invest in themselves and others, share ideas, promote collaboration, and embrace adversity as a catalyst for success. He invites visitors to see themselves as part of a collective history being built by the leaders in all of us. East Building, Level B, Meymandi Exhibition Gallery, Through Jan. 5 - "Venice and the Ottoman Empire". This ambitious cross-cultural exhibition explores the relationship between two global superpowers, the Republic of Venice and the Ottoman Empire, over four centuries (circa 1400–1800). Through a rich body of works reflecting both Venetian and Ottoman origins, "Venice and the Ottoman Empire" documents interactions between the two rival Mediterranean states across multiple cultural arenas—political, diplomatic, economic, artistic, technological, and culinary. The Venetian loans are joined by a trove of recently salvaged objects from a major Adriatic shipwreck, the large Venetian merchant ship Gagliana Grossa that sank while traveling from Venice to Istanbul in 1583. These spectacular items have never been exhibited outside Croatia, where the wreck is located. Featuring more than 190 works in a broad range of media, the exhibition draws from the vast collections of Venice's storied civic museums, including the Museo Correr, Palazzo Ducale, Palazzo Mocenigo, and Museo Fortuny, as well as the NCMA's own extensive holdings of Venetian art. Highlights include paintings by Jacobello del Fiore, Vittore Carpaccio, and Gentile Bellini and luxury Venetian and Ottoman goods including textiles, ceramics, metalwork objects, glassware, armor, books, and leatherware. East Building, Level B, Gallery 1 (Julian T. Baker Jr. Gallery) and 2 (Allen G. Thomas Jr. Gallery), Through Jan. 19 - "Forever and Never: Photographs by Dan Estabrook". This exhibition features works by artist Dan Estabrook, who uses 19th-century photographic printing processes and materials to examine history and memory in contemporary images. Adopting a familiar language of the passage of time, he utilizes elements that one identifies with something old and worn - stains, spills, tears, folds, fading, discoloration - to create the appearance of age. In his words, "I want a viewer's first reaction to be one of wonder. Is this a found photograph? An old thing, lost and rediscovered?" Ongoing - "Break the Mold: New Takes on Traditional Art Making". The exhibit showcases contemporary artists who use traditional modes of art making and crafting to tackle timely subject matter. Innovative takes on embroidery, ceramics, quilting, furniture, interior design, and fashion accessories serve to explore diverse topics such as gender assumptions and inequalities, prison reform, racial justice, memory, and loss, as well as how objects transmit and

On the occasion of the expansion, the Museum has acquired more than 100 new works of art. Diane Landry (Canadian, b. 1958) "Flying School", 2000, Motorized sound installation of umbrellas, harmonicas, motors, steel, cardboard, halogen lighting, MIDI controller, computer. Collection of the Cameron Art Museum

Louise Wells Cameron Art Museum, @ intersection of Independence Blvd. & South 17th Street, Wilmington. Through Jan. 12 - "Diane Landry: Flying School". Welcome the return of artist Diane Landry's signature work, "Flying School (Ecole d'aviation)". Its multi-colored umbrellas, attached to rods at different heights, fold and unfold intermittently, like a person inhaling and exhaling. Motor-driven accordions lie at each of the umbrella bases. Their silhouettes cast by the halogen lighting are projected upward on the ceiling, resembling flowers opening and closing. The magical umbrella-accordions are a hybrid of light and sound, infused with elements of sculpture, musical craftsmanship, and electronics. Canadian artist Diane Landry initially worked at an agricultural research center but felt compelled to pursue her dream of being an artist. After earning fine arts degrees from Université Laval and Stanford University, she pursued a career as a painter. However, Landry soon found herself drawn to the "production of installation and performance works," in which she was able to combine her passion for art, her interest in recycling and ready-made products, and her scientific and technical knowledge. Over the last four decades, Landry's work has been exhibited across the world, from the United States and Canada to Latin America, China, and Australia. Through Feb. 16 - "Thomas Sayre: Four Walls". The exhibit features new and never exhibited works by American artist Thomas Sayre. Each of the four large-scale pieces in the installation questions the belief systems and symbols that underpin the ideals of church, nation and creation. Made of materials that include tar, smoke, fabric gowns, gunshots, welding material, earth and fire, these works invite visitors to draw close and experience the messiness of making, and by analogy, to bear witness to the ways that life invades, entangles, and tarnishes us. Through Mar. 23 - "Close to Home," is a celebration of CAM's collection featuring works by artists with a connection to our state, our region, our home. Join us as we explore images of people and places that evoke the varied spirit of our community. Beloved familiar works are joined by hidden treasures in a showcase of artistic voices; a collective search for the meaning of home. Features work by Josef Albers, Romare Bearden, Mary Cassatt, Diego Camposeco, Elisabeth

Reynolda House Museum of American Art, Reynolda Road, Winston-Salem. Northwest Bedroom Gallery, Through Oct. 20 - "Good Impressions: Portraits Across Three Centuries from Reynolda and Wake Forest". Portraits are often taken at face value - as accurate representations of a person's appearance, sometimes removed by decades or centuries. But portraits are often the products of delicate negotiations between artist and subject. Sometimes they flatter, exaggerating the sitter's beauty or rich attire. Sometimes they capture the subject engaged in his or her occupation, whether pausing during study or painting in his or her studio. Sometimes they celebrate an auspicious occasion, such as a recent engagement or the imminent birth of a child. This exhibition features three centuries of portraits of men and women, Black and White, solitary and companionate, classic and modern. "Good Impressions" was mounted to mark the recent conservation treatment of John Singleton Copley's 1762 "Portrait of Mrs. Daniel Rogers" (Elizabeth Gorham Rogers) in the collection of Wake Forest University, and Reynolda House's recent acquisition of Kwame Brathwaite's 1973 photograph "Changing Times". West Bedroom Gallery, Through Oct. 19 - "Leigh Ann Hallberg: Phenoms". In her "Phenoms series", artist Leigh Ann Hallberg creates large-scale abstract paintings inspired by her journey through local landscapes, including the Reynolda landscape. Hallberg, who has taught painting at Wake Forest University since 1999, chose a square format for the series, which she says leaves the viewer's understanding of the work open - the abstract painting is neither portrait nor landscape. Instead, it is a pretend space in which the viewer is able to reconsider and reimagine their experience of nature through the works. Hallberg employs a variety of color palettes and metal leaf. She uses the medium of watercolor in order to pull out its inherent qualities of flow, dripping, and puddling, which she considers nearly indexical with substances of the natural world: water, soil, and vegetation. In fact, most of the watercolor pigments are derived from materials found in the earth. The metal leaf invokes the idea of time and its passage, as the viewer's perception of the leaf (reflective, a void, a light) shifts over the course of the day, under various lighting conditions and viewing angles. The works in the "Phenoms series" represent Hallberg's felt resonance with and sense of wonder about the natural world. East Bedroom Gallery, Through Dec. 31 - "Still I Rise: The Black Experience at Reynolda". "Into a daybreak that's wondrously clear / I rise." Maya Angelou's poem "Still I Rise," published in 1978, was an assertion of dignity and resilience in the face of oppression. In the 1980s, Angelou used Reynolda as her stage, sharing words of humanity, survival, and triumph. But before her, numerous Black lives impacted and intersected with the story of Reynolda. "Still I Rise: The Black Experience at Reynolda" examines the lives of the Black women and men who helped shape Reynolda as it evolved from a Jim Crow era working estate into a museum for American art. From 1912 through the 1950s, during one of the most repressive climates for Black people in North Carolina history, Black men and women navigated Reynolda's segregated spaces—farming the land, constructing buildings, and working as domestic staff within Reynolda's walls. During this era, segregation, the exploitation of Black labor, and laws that regulated Black behavior affected the lives of all individuals in the Reynolda story, whether at Reynolda or at the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. While the struggle for equality did not end with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the story of Reynolda pivoted to one of a public cultural institution. When it opened its doors in 1967, Reynolda's intersection with Black lives shifted as the young, fledgling museum provided a venue for Black artists to celebrate their art. Artists such as Jacob Lawrence, Romare Bearden, and Maya Angelou transformed the historic setting into a stage for their art and teachings. Through art, letters, photographs, and audiovisual recordings, "Still I Rise: The Black Experience at Reynolda" examines Reynolda's complicated past in a space designed for reflection and healing. This exhibition has been made possible in part by the National Endowment for the Humanities. East Bedroom Sleeping Porch, Ongoing - Featuring a condensed version of the fall 2023 exhibition "Smith & Libby: Two Rings, Seven Months, One Bullet". This semi-permanent exhibition presents a fascinating look at an unsolved shooting that rocked the Reynolda estate and made national headlines in 1932. Like most family homes, Reynolda House witnessed its share of tragedies, none more shocking than the death by gunshot of Zachary Smith ("Smith") Reynolds, youngest child of R.J. and Katharine Smith Reynolds. Soon after midnight on July 6, 1932, Smith was shot on a sleeping porch at the family's country estate. Smith died later that morning. Smith's wife Libby Holman and Smith's childhood friend and secretary Albert "Ab" Walker were ultimately charged with first-degree murder. In a stunning reversal, the case was dropped before coming to trial. To this day, it is not known whether Smith Reynolds, 20-year-old heir and renowned aviator, died by suicide, accident or murder. Ongoing - Collection of 18th through 20th century art, sculpture, American art, and pottery. Admission: Yes. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 9:30am-4:30pm & Sun., 1:30-4:30pm. Contact: 336/725-5325 or at (<https://reynolda.org/>).

Editor's Note: I wish I could tell you that everything listed here is open or every event would happen, but we just don't know for sure and I don't blame any of the presenters if we were the last thing on their minds while dealing with this current disaster. My best advice to you is call before you go to visit someplace or go to see an exhibit listed. That's mostly for the areas hit by Hurricane Helene, in this case, Western NC.

Work by Burk Uzzle

Burk Uzzle Studio, 106 Douglas Street E, Wilson. Ongoing - Burk Uzzle's career, like his pictures, is a nuanced composition blending American culture, individual psyches of particular places and people, and an atypical way of seeing ourselves, our values, and our community. Always respectful yet locating the poignant or quirky, the history of his narrative belongs to all of us. Initially grounded in documentary photography when he was the youngest photographer hired by "LIFE magazine" at age 23, his work grew into a combination of split-second impressions reflecting the human condition during his tenure as a member of the prestigious international Magnum cooperative founded by one of his mentors Henri Cartier-Bresson. His archive spans almost six decades. His current work rests deep in photographic appreciation of the quiet, strong, and eloquent beauty he discovers in America's small towns and its people. It is along small back roads, limned with feelings and a surety of surprise for the heart wide open, that continue to support his understanding of how America keeps its personality out on a limb. Uzzle's current bodies of work (some of which are African-American) are artful and constructed reflections of his subjects. His hope is for a graphic presentation of something universal within the particular, and all the better when involving a gentle chuckle and knowing smile. He is represented by SOCO Gallery in Charlotte, NC and Tracy Morgan Gallery in Asheville, NC. Hours: by appt. Contact: 252/363-1812 or e-mail to (burk@burkuzzle.com).
