she received her first classical art education, studying drawing, painting, sculpture and art history, all greatly influenced by the Eastern European tradition. She completed a Bachelor's degree in architecture and a Master's in city planning. After working for more than a decade as an architect, she felt the pull to return to her art full time. She moved to the United States in 2013 and now resides in Chattanooga, TN.

Burykina is proficient in the use of oils and watercolors. In 2016 she took a class in linoleum block printmaking and found a new love which she translated into a body of work focusing on flowers and bridges. In addition, there is a delightful series which captures the escapades of her cat, Kuzia. "My thoughts and emotions come to life (in my art) as realistic images and abstract forms...the style depending on the theme, genre, and emotional presence." Burykina's work in this exhibition will include linocut, watercolor, and oil.

South Carolina-based artist, Evelyn Wong, appreciates a careful study of nature with all of her subjects drawn from life, en plein air (outdoors), and at different points in the season during which time each plant is growing or withered, reflecting the changing seasons of the year. "In traditional Chinese landscape painting, the image not only served as a source of visual information, but also expressed philosophy and emotions." Wong's drawings share in this very principle where she communicates nature's expressiveness.

In her Gallery West show, Wong is presenting a body of work which, in her words, she has done "just for fun", a series of miniature drawings of trees as they appear throughout the year. Though each drawing is no larger than 2.5 inches by 3.5 inches, each captures a precious and powerful moment in the cycle of nature.

Groewood Gallery in Asheville, NC, Features Works by Susan Lenz

Groewood Gallery in Asheville, NC, will present Susan Lenz: In Stitches, on view from Feb. 17 through Mar. 31, 2017.

This exhibition will showcase framed textile art and one-of-a-kind fiber vessels by Columbia, SC, artist Susan Lenz. The public is invited to meet Lenz and to watch her demonstrate her craft on Feb. 17 and 18 from 11am - 4pm.

Using needle and thread for self-expression, Lenz's artwork reflects her passion for historic buildings, especially stained glass windows and the colors and eco-friendly ideals of Friedensreich Hundertwasser, a visionary painter and architect who was also a forerunner in the field of environmental protection. Her work is the result of hand-guided, free-motion machine embroidery and melting techniques, a unique process that Susan developed herself. Each piece builds on the last in an exploration of design motifs and stitched symbols.

This exhibition will feature works from four of Lenz's most popular fiber series: Artifacts, In Box, Stained Glass, and Seasonal Leaves, and will also showcase fiber vessels made entirely from yarn and thread. Lenz says, "The yarn comes from auctions, estate sales, yard sales, and donations from people who are downsizing. All this yarn was originally purchased by someone else... with the intention of making something. It is up to me to actually do it. It's a nice feeling to turn all this unwanted material into a functional and pretty piece."

Lenz's work has been widely exhibited throughout the United States. In 2016, she was awarded a solo show at the Mesa Contemporary Arts Museum in Arizona, was juried into the prestigious Philadelphia Museum of Art Craft Show, and had a piece selected for a group exhibition at The Textile Museum in Washington, DC.

This past year, Lenz has taught workshops at the Southeast Fiber Arts Alliance, Art Quilters Unlimited, Workhouse Arts Center, and the Wisconsin Museum of Quilts & Fiber Arts. She was also profiled in the December 2016/January 2017 issue of Quilting Arts Magazine.

American Folk Art in Asheville, NC, Offers Annual Miniature Show

American Folk Art in Asheville, NC, will present the 13th Annual Miniature Show, on view from Feb. 9 - 27, 2017. A reception will be held on Feb. 10, from 5-7pm.

The highly anticipated 13th Annual Miniatures Show at American Folk Art will feature 14 of the gallery's artists. Timed in the heart of winter and right before Valentine's Day, the Miniatures Show has evolved over the years into a welcome tradition; a celebration of love, a desire to gather together to appreciate the smallest and finest things in life.

When creating pieces for this show, these artists, known for vast stores of creativity rather than training, often experiment with new ideas. This experimentation can lead to breakthroughs that
