Mint Museum Randolph, 2730 Randolph Road, Charlotte. Through July 14 - "American Ceramics, 1825 - 1875," a look at a period of evolution, expansion, and innovation in American ceramics. The mid-nineteenth century was a time of evolution, expansion, and innovation in American ceramics. While utilitarian forms in earthenware and stoneware continued to be made throughout the century, their numbers slowly decreased as a growing urban population had less need for large storage jars, churns, and other objects designed for an agrarian economy. Many potters adjusted to this lower demand by creating wares that were more aesthetically appealing – objects that consumers would want to live with in their homes. Numerous factories from Vermont to Ohio to South Carolina produced "fancy" wares: objects that might still have practical functions—such as pitchers, vases, or flasks—but were notable primarily for their attractive shapes. Porcelain factories also began to proliferate during this period, producing high-quality wares that catered to the tastes of more affluent consumers. Through July 14 - "Classically Inspired: European Ceramics circa 1800". Features examples of European ceramics and other works of art from The Mint Museum's permanent collection that were inspired by classical antiquity. Classical art - the art of ancient Greece and Rome - had a tremendous influence on the art of Western Europe from at least the fifteenth century through the late nineteenth. During the 1400s and 1500s, the period of the Italian Renaissance, artists and designers regularly emulated aspects of the antique, although in general they attempted to surpass, rather than simply copy, the art of antiquity. In contrast, their counterparts in the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries often endeavored to create more precise imitations of classical prototypes, especially in regard to objects for the fashionable domestic interior.

The Medellín-born painter Débora Arango, who died in 2005 at the age of 98, was one of the pioneers of modern Colombian art. She is considered one of the most important and controversial modern artists of her time. Although her work is well regarded today in her native country, Arango had to fight against the conservative elite's prejudice throughout her life due to the political and social context of her paintings about the non-official civil war of the 1940s and 1950s, la época de La Violencia (1946-1963). Today, these paintings constitute an important site of collective memory. Through July 7 - "F.O.O.D. In this series of photographs, Brazilian-born photographer Pedro Lobo, documents the favelas or shanty towns in Rio de Janeiro. The favelas in Rio are the longest-lived squatter settlements in the world. There are about one billion squatters worldwide, one million of which are in Rio de Janeiro. The people that live in the favelas do not have access to proper sanitation or power. These beautifully composed images do not shy away from the sprawl, or the hardships of the favelas, yet they are filled with optimism necessary for life in these marginalized urban neighborhoods. These images attempt to show the human dignity of the "favela" dwellers, in spite of all the difficulties faced by those who have no other choice but to live in these excluded communities. Lobo is a Fulbright scholar who has studied at the International Center of Photography, NYC, and at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. This extraordinary exhibition was curated by Mark Sloan and is on loan from the Halsey Institute of Contemporary Art in Charleston, SC. Hours: Mon.-Sun., 9am-9pm.
