My Season of Disappointment

May used to be a month I looked forward to with much excitement - in my life as an editor of a visual arts newspaper. Personally - it's a month I also get a little older. But now I tend to see it through a series of disappointments - for what could have been.

Let's start with the Spoleto Festival USA, which no longer even makes a token effort to present visual arts as part of its "World's most comprehensive arts festival".

All I can think is what would Charleston be like today if the Festival had continued to present major visual art site specific installations throughout Charleston and the Lowcounty. Yet, today outdoor art is virtually non-existent in Charleston

The Piccolo Spoleto Festival is no better. It's been years since we have received info about their visual art offerings during this festival - by deadline. It doesn't do our readers much good to receive it later - just before the Festival starts or after in some cases. It's a good thing we hear from a few of the organizers of individual events or we would not have any info about any of the visual art offerings.

The only good thing I learned of Piccolo's efforts is that it has moved the annual juried show to the City Gallery at Waterfront Park. If it stays there it could become be a major statewide competition. But the City or the Office of Cultural Affairs would have to step up its efforts on publicity and I'm talking about advanced publicity. Not just printing up festival programs and stacking them up in rooms unseen by people visiting the city and region.

Some might say that we should go after this information. Well maybe, if we had the staff of The Post & Courier, but we don't and we can't treat Charleston differently than any other area of the Carolinas. This issue is full of info from other areas - and some as close as North Charleston who presents their Festival before Spoleto and Piccolo arrive. They don't seem to have any problem getting us their information on time for coverage - every year.

I'm really disappointed in the Halsey Institutes' 30th anniversary exhibition. The choice to present Shepard Fairey with Jasper Johns instead of works by William Halsey, the man the gallery is named after, is just wrong. Fairey is not the kind of person that should be made a model for much of anything.

Check out Fairey's bio on Wikipedia. His problems with Fair Use issues comes down to - it's OK for him to use other artist's imagery to create his works, but he'll sue any other artists who tries to use his imagery. His legal issues with Fair Use and graffiti isn't usually mentioned in his press releases. Nor is the fact that he left the greater Charleston area victim to every wannabe, get famous quick artists who plaster everything in sight with stickers like Fairey's Obey sticker.

I'm wondering if the selection of Fairey is the reason Spoleto Festival USA did not claim the exhibit at the Halsey Institute to be one of their offerings this year. They didn't claim exhibits at the Gibbes Museum of Art either, but was Fairey's tarnished reputation a reason or did they finally just give up totally on the visual arts and being a comprehensive arts festival? I don't know the answer to that and no one will probably ever say.

I'm also disappointed in Charleston's commercial gallery community. We got some press releases from a few folks, but not as many as we should have and in many of those cases it was an individual artist who sent us the info.

I've been covering Charleston's visual art community for 27 years and I'm amazed and disgusted how complacent it has gotten - thinking that they are still on top of the visual art community of the Carolinas, when truth be told, since 2008 it's been in a steady decline while other communities in the Carolinas thrive. Some of that has to do with zero help from the city, county, and business leaders, which have allowed what was once an economic draw to become a - well "it's a nice place to visit and the people sure are polite" kind of place.

It's sad what has happened to Charleston. Back in 1987, I was working on our first issue of Charleston Arts during the Spoleto Festival. One of our first stories was about a group of folks who were presenting a bust of Gian Carlo Menotti, the founder of the Spoleto Festivals, to the City of Charleston. Today the City can't explain what happened to the bust. They either lost it or threw it out, but I'm not sure we'll ever know and they don't seem to care.

Hey, don't get me wrong - I still love Charleston and there is a lot of great things going on here in the visual art community, but the month of May has become my season of disappointment - for many reasons. It seems the opportunity to really be great just always slips away.

ArtFields 2.0

ArtFields should drop the word "Epic" from its tag line. This competition might be epic to Lake City, SC, but it is not epic to SC or the Carolinas. The SC State Fair's Fine Art Show presents more art than ArtFields does every year and all its entries are from SC. That show is probably seen by more people - due to it being a state fair and taking place in Columbia, SC - a major population area. They may not give out $100,000 in awards, but does the money alone make something epic? No. And, how can you start out epic?

ArtFields is a great effort for such a small town and hopefully one day it will be epic, but it's not epic yet.

And I'm not the only member of the media that doesn't think ArtFields is epic. Media coverage has fallen off - ArtFields is no longer the shiny new kid on the block. I've seen little advance coverage of the event other than stories about local artists who got into the event.

This is a tactic the PR folks at the SC State Museum used to use to get coverage in local newspapers. Send them a list of local artists in the event and they will find somewhere to put that in the local paper, but little else is often offered about the overall event.

Most of the media coverage is taking place in the Pee Dee area of SC - which it should be as the event is taking place in their own backyard.

But how does the media in Louisiana get excited about an event when only a few artists - if any, are involved in the event? And how many folks do you think are coming from Louisiana to see the event? It's one of the basic flaws of the competition. Artists who live far from Lake City are at a disadvantage to win one of the awards based on visitor's votes - except in the case of the juried award - which I predict will always go to an artist from outside SC - just to keep those other states in play. Local artists hold the advantage by being able to show up at the event and lobby for votes.

Now the event offers advance online registration for voting. I'm not sure how this works. I hope there is some way these folks have to prove they actually came to Lake City to see the art before they vote - otherwise they can just look on the Art-Fields' website and select their favorites. This could also be a way to say more people came to the event than really did. I'm hoping this is not the case. But, since the leaders of ArtFields have yet to say how many votes last year's winners received, I'm not sure how valid this issue will remain in the minds of the participants. If they are counting votes - which is para-

College of Charleston in Charleston, SC, Presents Annual Student Exhibit

The College of Charleston in Charleston, SC, is presenting 2014 Young Contemporaries, featuring artwork created by students at the College of Charleston, on view at the Halsey Institute of Contemporary Art, through May 3, 2014. The exhibition was juried by Maryland based artist Bill Dunlap.

Each spring, current College of Charleston students are eligible to submit their recent work to the Young Contemporaries, giving them an opportunity to have their work chosen by a nationally prominent juror and exhibit in a professional gallery setting. The annual exhibition shows off the brightest talents coming out of the College's School of the Arts, including painters, sculptors, printmakers, and photographers. This unique show gives students the opportunity to learn how to prepare for future gallery exhibits and helps them to practice the type of professionalism necessary for success in such a competitive field. "The goal of the show is showing the best of the best, but also have it take on the flavor of what the students are producing at this point in time," says last year's juror, Scott Stulen. He continues, "It's a little bit of a snapshot, in certain ways, of what's happening within the College." The Post and Courier calls the Young Contemporaries exhibit, "One of the highlights of the year." This year's entries are sure to impress.

Concurrent with Young Contemporaries will be the Salon des Refusés exhibition, showing in the Hill Exhibition Gallery within The Marion and Wayland H. Cato Jr. Center for the Arts. The origin of the Salon des Refusés dates to Paris in 1863, when artists who had been rejected from the official Salon caused such a protest that Emperor Napoleon III ordered another exhibition held for them. Among the painters in this Salon des Refusés were Camille Pissaro, Henri Fantin-Latour, James M. Whistler, and Edouard Manet.

For the 2014 Young Contemporaries exhibition, visiting artist Bill Dunlap was chosen to select the student works. On March 14, the Halsey Institute received 504 submissions from 156 students. "We are thrilled with the quantity and quality of the work. We received 170 paintings, 95 drawings, 38 mixed media, 59 prints, 75 photographs, 2 videos, and 65 sculptures." Dunlap selected 63 works to be on view within the Halsey Institute galleries. Local artist and gallery owner Robert Lange will determine which accepted works will receive the seventeen awards and more than $6,000 in prizes from both exhibitions.

These annual exhibitions are jointly produced by the Halsey Institute, the Studio Art Department, and the Student Visual Arts Club at the College of Charleston School of the Arts

Bill Dunlap is an artist who divides his time between Western Maryland and New York City. His work has been shown extensively in galleries and museums across North America and Europe, including recent solo shows at the University of Maryland and at galleries in Boston, Denver, and San José. Recent group shows include galleries in London, New York, and Los Angeles. His work is included in several permanent collections, including the library collection of the New York Museum of Modern Art and recent acquisitions by the Universities of Wisconsin and Maryland. His work was recently featured in an exhibit at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, and he is currently engaged in a large-scale ongoing commission from the University of Maryland to paint murals on barns across the state. He and his work have been featured widely in print, television, radio, and on many art blogs. He has also worked as an illustrator, and his images and cartoons have appeared in magazines and newspapers nationwide.

Robert Lange received his BFA from the Rhode Island School of Design before moving to Charleston to open Robert Lange Studios, a fine art gallery representing 16 contemporary painters from around the country.

As a painter, he specializes in realist painting, particularly of people, emphasizing narrative moments. Through his work, he wishes to ignite a sense of joy with paintings that records the inspiring moments that abound. His most notable bodies of work, Measure (2009) and Go (2010), were nationally recognized and internationally collected. Lange has been featured in numerous magazines, including the cover of American Art Collector and Art Magazine, and in New American Paintings.

On Thursday, May 1, starting at 6pm there will be a gallery walk-through with participating artists.

For further information check our SC Institutional Gallery listings, call the Institute at 843/953-4422 or visit (www.halsey.cofc.edu).

North Charleston Arts Festival Takes Place Throughout North Charleston, SC - May 2-10, 2014

The annual North Charleston Arts Festival kicks off on May 2 and concludes on May 10, 2014. Now in its 32nd year, the nine day event has matured into one of the most comprehensive arts festivals in the state, drawing thousands of residents and visitors to experience the talents of national, regional, and local artists and performers in the areas of dance, music, theatre, and visual, media, and literary arts. Nearly 200 festival offerings are scheduled to take place in a variety of venues throughout North Charleston, SC, and the surrounding area, including libraries, community centers, schools, businesses, civic auditoriums, and parks.

The North Charleston Arts Festival began at Park Circle in 1982 as a one day community celebration with the goal of enhancing the quality of life of residents through showcasing the arts. As the annual event matured, the festival's reach expanded to include visitors, prompting the addition of tourism development as a goal. In 1995, the Arts Festival moved from Park Circle to the North Charleston Coliseum and expanded to two days. By 2000, the opening of the Charleston Area Convention Center, the North Charleston Performing Arts Center, and additional new venues, provided the springboard for the festival to expand to nine full days of performances and activities for residents and visitors throughout the Recognized by the Southeast Tourism Society as a Top 20 Event, the North Charleston Arts Festival offers something for everyone – from classical to contemporary, funky to formal. provides a wide range of performances, exhibitions, and activities for people of all ages and backgrounds. Many of the offerings are free, and those that are ticketed are moderately priced.

"The variety of Arts Festival offerings and the inclusiveness of the event have really become a point of pride for the City of North Charleston," says North Charleston Mayor, Keith Summey. "We look forward to this time each year when we are joined by thousands from throughout the Southeast to celebrate the importance of art within our world."

The Arts Festival's Main Event, held on Saturday, May 3, and Sunday, May 4, at the North Charleston Performing Arts Center and Charleston Area Convention Center, offers free admission and parking to over forty performances on four themed stages: General Audience, Cultural Heritage, Youth Entertainment, and Bands. Other features include judged fine art and photography exhibits; the 13th annual South Carolina Palmetto Hands Fine Craft Exhibit; youth art from Charleston, Berkeley and Dorchester county students; the Lowcountry Gem & Mineral Society show and sale; the Village Antiques & Collectibles show; children's activities at Box City and Creation Stations; art & craft vendors, a food court, and much more.

Individual events take place throughout the nine days of the festival at various locations. An exciting array of free and ticketed offerings include concerts, theatre presentations, film screenings, workshops and demonstrations, poetry readings, exhibition receptions, children's programs, and much more. This year's festival Gala, the Sweetgrass Soiree, will take place on Friday, May 2, from 7-11pm at the Performing Arts Center Entrance Hall. Tickets for this premier event are $50. Other highly anticipated programs include an Art Walk on Wednesday, May 7, an interactive murder mystery dinner theatre on Thursday, May 8, and street dances featuring beach/variety music and reggae on Friday, May 9.

Examples of visual art exhibitions on view during the festival include a series of cut paper collages and prints by Lillian Trettin (Becoming Southern Steampunk); mixed media works by Cuban born artist, Maribel Acosta (Pieces); paintings and found-object sculptures by Gingi Martin (Landscapes

The Letter

This festival's Grand Finale on May 10 features a Tri-County School Steel Drum Festival, dance demos and performances, a slam poetry show, children's activities, food trucks, and an evening concert by The CoastRunner Band. The event concludes with a fantastic fireworks display over the Cooper River.

The Cultural Arts Department works with the North Charleston Arts Advisory Committee (NCAAC), a volunteer group comprised of a cross section of the community, to develop year round programming for the city, including the Arts Festival. In addition to this core committee, numerous key volunteers work to develop individual components of the festival. Research is conducted on a continual basis and strategic plans and implementation are done ten months out of the year. Annual Festival evaluations by participants, staff, and volunteers are used as a planning tool for the following year.

Gullah Islander Toss by Amiri Geuka Farris, the winning design for the 2014 North Charleston of 53 entries by artists from across the state. The selection was made by a review panel appointed by the Cultural Arts Department who judged the entries based on quality, originality, appeal to festival patrons from a broad range of backgrounds, and ability to convey the spirit of the festival as a public celebration of arts and culture.

According to Farris, Gullah Islander Toss honors the traditions of the Gullah-Geechee culture and is also an attempt to draw a greater focus to what he calls "a celebration of history." "You will see elements like dance and rejoicing with references to important cultural elements like the land, cast net making, trowing and artistic traditions," he explains. The piece is composed of a number of layers that involve design elements such as Adinkra symbols, paint drips, and paint embellishments. The dynamism of these elements represents the passing of time and movement into the future. As with many of Farris' other works, the piece makes reference to specific Gullah traditions and historic elements while blurring the boundaries between traditional and contemporary modes of representation.

Amiri Geuka Farris received his Masters of Fine Art in Painting, with his BFA in Illustration and Graphic Design, from the Savannah College of Art and Design. He is currently a Professor of Fine Arts at the University of South Carolina-Beaufort, in Beaufort, SC. Farris is known for dynamic, powerful artwork that combines an alluring blend of vivid colors, layered textures, and a signature use of Adinkra symbols. The images of Sea Island culture that are evoked in his work introduce viewers to uplifting moments and insight into his contemporary view of culture. At the heart of Farris' artistic vision is the desire to capture the essence and tell the history of the Gullah-Geechee people and their way of life. His dedication to that vision was rewarded in 2012 when he was the co-recipient of a very prestigious award for preservation from the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

In addition to the Smithsonian Museum of American Art, Farris' work has been exhibited and displayed in permanent collections nationally and internationally. He was named the 2008 "Artist of the Y by the historic Penn Center on St. Helena Island, SC, and is the current artist-inresidence at the Gullah Museum of Hilton Head Island, SC. His client list includes numerous cultural, educational, and commercial organizations including the Telfair Museum of Art, The Savannah Children's Museum, Hilton Head/Bluffton Chamber of Commerce, Youth Opera International, the Gullah Museum of Hilton Head Island, Historic Penn Center Landmark, Savannah Jazz Festival, Heritage Jazz Festival, The Boys & Girls Club, The Coastal Discovery Museum, and many others.

Farris' art studio, located at the Sea Island Art Center at the University of South Carolina's Beaufort campus, is open by appointment.

North Charleston Arts Festival in North Charleston, SC, Offers Exhibit by Female Photographers

The North Charleston Arts Festival in North Charleston, SC, is presenting Through the Lens, a group photography exhibition by Female Photographers in Charleston (SC), at 10 Storehouse Row, on the former Naval Base, on view through June 20, 2014. A reception will be held on May 6, from 6-8pm, with refreshments and music by Glenn Eric.

The works on display cover several artistic genres and showcase the range and diversity of the group's members. These works include: landscapes, abstract works, and figurative works in both modern prints and alternative printing processes such as tintypes and vandyke brown prints.

Among the 13 exhibiting photographers are professionals, amateurs and fine-art photographers. Included are: Joan Burtlet, Mariah Channing, Christine Eadie, Tiffany Holt, Melissa Honour, Christine Jones, Janice Jones, Karen Miller, Dana Mortensen, Christine Smith, Nadine Todd, Lisa Wilson, and Wendy Woodby.

Work by Christine Eadie

The group was founded in March 2013 by Christine Eadie to provide an outlet for local women photographers to share resources for their craft and build a strong local network. The group has quickly grown to 117 members. The members choose an optional monthly theme to challenge themselves to produce work outside their regular comfort zone and also organize outings when weather and schedules allow. The group meets once a month to share and discuss their work at a meeting space provided by The City of North Charleston Cultural Arts Office. Membership is free and open to women of all ages who are professional and amateur photographers who reside in the Charleston area or who visit regularly.

Through the Lens was curated by the group founder and organizer, Christine Eadie. Her goal in curating this exhibition was to inspire the members to produce new work and show the established art community the combined talents and creative vision of the group's many members.

Eadie is a fine-art photographer who has exhibited in solo and group shows in SC, NC, and GA. She was awarded a Lowcountry Arts Grant in 2013 to fund her ongoing tintype series and will be included in Pathways: Photography Invitational, an upcoming group exhibition of historic processes at the University of South Carolina's McMaster Gallery in Columbia, SC, on view from Aug. 28 - Oct. 3, 2014.

Through the Lens will feature 25 works including southern landscapes, abstract, macro and figurative images in both black and white and vivid color. This is the group's first exhibition as a group. The members are honored to have been selected and included as an individual event in the 2014 North Charleston Art Festival

Anglin Smith Fine Art in Charleston, SC, Offers Works by Shannon Smith Hughes

Shannon Smith Hughes' Barrier Islands will be on view at Anglin Smith Fine Art, in downtown Charleston, SC, from May 2 -16, 2014. There will be an opening reception on Friday, May 2, from 5-8pm.

A Lowcountry native, Hughes grew up with a keen appreciation of the islands surrounding Charleston - as an artist, she's forever inspired to paint them. "Our Lowcountry coastline is made up of a chain of barrier islands separated from the mainland by shallow sounds and tidal inlets," says Hughes. "I have had the wonderful privilege of painting on some of our local barrier islands, recently on Dewees Island.'

Just about 11 miles north of Charleston, Dewees Island is a haven of unspoiled nature - from beaches and dunes to a maritime forest. "My immersion with nature there deepened my appreciation and respect for these coastal sanctuaries. While the benefit of a barrier island is to protect the mainland from harmful storms, it is our responsibility to protect the fragile ecosystems of these islands," she says.

Hughes has been an artist living and painting in the Charleston area for the past 19 years. She comes from the Smith family of artists, mother Betty Anglin Smith and triplet siblings Jennifer Smith Rogers and Tripp Smith. She is part owner of their family gallery, Anglin Smith Fine Art.

Hughes has studied in the US and Europe with renowned artists Kim English, Greg Kreutz, Kenn Backhaus, and Quang Ho. She is a signature member of Plein Air Painters of the Southeast, and often travels to plein air paint and exhibit with this accomplished group of artists. She has taught plein air painting workshops locally and in Italy. Her collectors include corporations such as Clemson University Foundation, Piggly Wiggly Corporate Headquarters, Hospice of Charleston, and McCrady's restaurant.

Anglin Smith Fine Art is Charleston's gallery for contemporary realism and color. The gallery features works by Lowcountry painter Betty Anglin Smith and her triplets, painters Jennifer Smith Rogers and Shannon Smith, and photographer Tripp Smith. Sculptures in bronze by Darrell Davis and works in oil by Kim English and Colin Page are also available. The gallery also represents paintings and drawings from the estate of Carl Planksy. Subject matter ranges from local and European landscapes to architectural works and still life, figurative and abstract.

Corrigan Gallery in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Joe Walters

The Corrigan Gallery in Charleston, SC, will present Look Back, featuring new works by Joe Walters, on view from May 2 through June 10, 2014. A reception will be held on May 2, from 5-8pm. Walters revisits his earlier work and gives us a look back over time with layered references.

Born in 1952 in Kentucky, Walters earned a MFA from East Carolina Uniersity and began working in Rock Hill, SC, in 1989. He moved to Charleston in 1995 and has been hard at work ever since. This critically acclaimed and successful artist's sculptures (and works on paper) appeal across the board - his work is easy to relate to by all. His works look like metal, but aren't, nor are they realistic, vet, well, maybe they are. Using readily available materials such as wire, mesh, sometimes aluminum foil and a polymer clay, with glue sand and paint involved, Walters says, "Most of the things I work with I get at the Lowe's or the hardware store," Walters says. "My process has always been pretty eccentric. It's also very flexible and forgiving."

Walters' intriguing animals and insects, at times separate, other times presented in a tableau or a large installation, are reminiscent of the past - relics, abandoned objects, something forgotten or ignored. Walters' works either appear to be rusted metal or are bluish, "ash gray, the pieces looking a bit like something frozen in time and place by a volcanic eruption," as described by arts writer Jeffrey Day. Walters puts the creations together in site-specific installations that "metaphorically address issues involving human relationships with nature." The artist creates organic forms that morph into abstractions that are often presented as unit constructed with spiral forms as the basis. The connection of the sculptures and their shadows indicate an interdependence that relates to that of all living things.

Walters has works in the collections of the Medical University of South Carolina, Charleston, SC; Kemper Museum of Contemporary Art, Kansas City, MO; the University of Florida School of Veterinary Medicine, Gainesville; Emory University conference center, Atlanta, GA; Monsanto Corporation, Chicago, IL; Hartsfield Atlanta International Airport; the Miami Zoo, Miami, FL; British Airways, New York; Palmetto Bluff, in Bluffton, SC, and a Costa Rican resort. He has shown at the Mint Museum of Art, The Weatherspoon Art Museum, Jacksonville Museum of Modern Art and the Southeastern Center for Contempo-

35th Annual Piccolo Spoleto Craft Shows Take Place in Charleston, SC

Fine Craft Shows Charleston, LLC announces the Piccolo Spoleto Craft Shows for 2014. This year's shows will be held May 22 – 25, 2014 and May 30 – June 1, 2014. This is the 35th year for these shows, which are part of the Piccolo Spoleto Festival. The shows will be held at historic Wragg Square Park, at Meeting and Charlotte Streets in Charleston, SC.

Approximately 120 artists from 17 states around the US will display their crafts for sale during the two three-day shows. The shows each feature a different line-up of artists. Participating artists will provide formal and informal demonstrations of craft techniques throughout the two shows. A schedule of demonstrations and a list of participating artists are available on our website

The shows will again include our popular silent auctions. The auctions feature craft objects donated by our participating artists and by members of Charleston Crafts Cooperative. Each show will feature a separate silent auction selection.

Redux Contemporary Art Center in Charleston, SC, Offers Work by Hollis Hammonds

Redux Contemporary Art Center (Redux) in Charleston, SC, is proud to present Worthless Matter, a solo exhibition by Hollis Hammonds. The exhibition will open with an artist's talk and a reception on Friday, May 16, 2014, from 5-8:30pm; both the talk and reception are free and open to all. The exhibit will continue through June 28, 2014. Hammonds will complete site-specific work of found objects and wood veneer during a short residency, and will be present for the reception.

Exploring consumerist culture through evidence of accumulation, hoarding and collecting, piles of rubble permeate the works of Hammonds. Growing up in semi-rural Kentucky, the youngest child of depression era parents, her surroundings were those of cold war stockpiling, nick-knack collections, and junk-yard recycling. After surviving a house fire in her teens, piles of burnt keepsakes created a lasting impression on her, of the impermanence and worthlessness of superficial possessions. Ranging from documentary studies of storms and storm damage, to elaborate drawings of trash heaps and landfills, to sculptural wall installations of crashing waves; her works often illustrate imaginary piles of debris left after fictional natural and man-made disasters. Post-apocalyptic in nature, her recent and past works deal with memory, material consumption, waste, catastrophe and superficial loss.

Hammonds has been living and working in Austin, TX, since 2007. She received her MFA from the University of Cincinnati in 2001, and her BFA in drawing from Northern Kentucky University in 1998. Her work ranges in media from drawing to painting, to video and sculptural installations. Hammonds has exhibited her work throughout the US including solo exhibitions at the Museum of Art at Southern Mississippi University in Hattiesburg, MS; the Hiestand Galleries at Miami University in Oxford, OH; Flex Space, Pump Project Satellite Space Austin, TX; Texas Tech University in Lubbock, TX; and the University of St. Mary Gallery in Leavenworth, KS. She is the author of "Drawing Structure: Conceptual and Observational Techniques", and has had her creative work published in INDA 4, INDA 7, INDA 8, Studio Visit Magazine, and Uppercase Magazine. Currently she is the Chair of the Department of Visual Studies at St. Edward's University in Austin, TX.

Charleston Artist Guild in Charleston, SC, Offers Works by Three Jewelers

The Charleston Artist Guild in Charleston, SC, will present All That Glitters..., an exhibit of works by three jewelers, Pam Miller-Schussel, Gale Roland and Bonnie Taylor, on view in the Charleston Artist Guild Gallery, from May 1 - 30, 2014. A reception will be held on May 2, from 5-8pm.

This exhibit celebrates the addition of fine art jewelry as a new medium being represented in the gallery by showcasing a collection of unique contemporary jewelry, including silversmithing, bead weaving, and woven wire. Materials utilized include silver, copper, bronze, leather, beads and crystal elements, all hand fashioned into original, affordable, wearable designs.

Pam Miller-Schussel works in silver and other metals. She received her fine art degree from Penn State and also studied under silversmith Robin Cruz McGee and Atlanta, GA's master silver clay artist, Pam East. She enjoys pairing materials in a piece that are not ordinarily used together. Her aim is to reflect today's world in her non-traditional designs while still employing traditional jeweler's techniques. Miller-Schussel's work can also be seen at Charleston Crafts, a fine crafts gallery on Church Street.

Gale Roland developed a love of jewelry-making after finding three old family jewelry boxes from the 1960's and 1970's and being intrigued with how to recycle the jewelry pieces she discovered, rather than discard them. Since then, she has become interested in every aspect of jewelry-making and has studied silversmithing, metal clay, bead weaving and wire wrapping. Roland finds inspiration everywhere.

Since taking a class ten years ago, Bonnie Taylor's focus has been bead weaving. In that class she discovered that working with a needle and thread came naturally and was most enjoyable given her history as a quilter and seamstress. She sells her one-of-a-kind designs under the name "B Original." Taylor also owns and operates Daniel Street Beadery in the West Ashley area of Charleston, where she gives classes and advice. Her business was featured in the entertainment section of The Post & Courier in Aug. 2013. Taylor is a member of the Coastal Carolina Bead Society based in Savannah, GA.

angles of our living beings. Spray paint, oils and iridescent pigments are used to create abstractions of life. A belief in all that glitters really could be gold is necessary.

The show will be split into two parts. Jones will display her portraits through May 8 and replace them with her abstracts beginning May 9 for the remainder of the show.

Jones graduated from Baylor University where she studied Studio Art and received a degree in Psychology. She moved to the Lowcountry in 2005 and has been a working artist here ever since.

After working as an event designer and overseeing installations from concept to creation, Jones focused solely on portrait commissions and currently has her work in over one hundred private collections throughout the United States.

Currently, Jones is using her studies in portraiture as a referencing point for large scale abstract paintings and installations. Using combinations of spray paint, iridescent pigments, and oil paint, Jones is enthralled with the abstraction process and

Edward Dare Gallery in Charleston, SC, Offers Works by Brenda Orcutt

The Edward Dare Gallery in Charleston, SC, will present Palette Knife Impressions: Sea Island Landscapes, featuring a solo show of works by Brenda Orcutt, on view from May 2 - 31, 2014. A reception will be held on May 2, from 5-8pm.

In this tribute to the scenic beauty of the Lowcountry, Orcutt's focus is on the interplay between land and water with interpretations of skies, water reflections, and the flora and fauna of nearby coastal areas. Several paintings in this new series capture a beautifully familiar scene for islanders that cross the Ben Sawyer Bridge daily.

Orcutt's talent for capturing her subjects with loose but deliberate palette knife work, rich with color and texture is showcased in this work. Collectors of the artist's floral compositions will also be pleased with this show as several new pieces in her popular still life series will be included.

Orcutt was born and raised in the Carolinas and has called Charleston home for the past 17 years. Her artistic methods have advanced and diversified as she has continued her education and developed her own personal style. She studied under noted Charleston artist Joyce Hall and honed her palette knife techniques with internationally renowned artist James Pratt, then continued this study with Susan Sarback, of the School of Light and Color in California.

Working in oils, Orcutt is intrigued by the texture and purity of color that the palette knife process allows and uses this method extensively in her work. She is deeply inspired by the richness and contemporary feel the technique produces. The knife lets her use paint strokes to show spontaneity and movement in her work. Orcutt paints quickly, alla prima, using texture and bold color to capture her subjects without perfecting form. Her goal is not to reproduce a landscape or still life with precision, but to translate the creative concepts into an

Work by Brenda Orcutt

"I've always loved the drama of thickly applied paint, the sculptural quality, the purity of the colors. The response from people who view the work has been very positive," says Orcutt.

Depictions of Charleston across the watery expanse of its harbor with interpretations of skies and water reflections, low country flora and fauna in all their glory and wild flowers or bouquets that convey a sense of peace, quiet joy or even solitude are favorite subjects of the artist. Each composition reflects the beauty the artist sees in the world around her and invites the viewer to step back from life's frenetic pace and journey with her. Orcutt's work is also available at sister venue Sandpiper Gallery on Sullivan's Island, SC.

College of Charleston Features Works by Jasper Johns and Shepard Fairey

The College of Charleston in Charleston, SC, will present The Insistent Image: Recurrent Motifs in the Art of Shepard Fairey and Jasper Johns, on view at the Halsey Institute of Contemporary Art, from May 22 through July 12, 2014. A reception will be held on May 22, from 6-8pm.

The Halsey Institute of Contemporary Art at the College of Charleston, School of the Art celebrates its 30th Anniversary with The Insistent Image: Recurrent Motifs in the Art of Shepard Fairey and Jasper Johns. This exhibition pairs new work by Shepard Fairey and a survey of prints produced by Jasper Johns from 1982 to 2012 at Universal Limited Art Editions. The exhibition is curated by Mark Sloan, senior curator and director of the Halsey Institute.

Both Fairey and Johns recycle graphic elements in the works they produce and in each case these repeated fragments gain new meaning through fresh juxtapositions and associations. Additionally, both artists have the capacity to transform the quotidian into the iconic. This exhibition demonstrates the power of this strategy of image repetition in the works of these two distinguished American artists.

series of sixteen prints made in collaboration with master printmaker Bill Goldston at Universal Limited Art Editions in New York. This selection emphasizes many of Johns' recurrent motifs and themes over the past 30 years including flags, the face/vase optical illusion, targets, galaxies, gestures from American Sign Language, and fragments of works by famous artists such as Picasso, Holbein, da Vinci, George Ohr, and others. Through a special arrangement with the artist and ULAE, we are able to borrow some of Johns' most iconic works for this exhibition.

Born in 1930, Johns spent his childhood in South Carolina, and briefly attended the University of South Carolina before moving to New York in 1948. After meeting Robert Rauschenberg, Merce Cunningham, and John Cage, his work pulled away from the Abstract Expressionist style that was prevalent at that time, and he embraced a new kind of artmaking based on the premise of re-presenting the familiar in surprising ways. Johns' work complicates the relationship between the subject and its depiction in a work of art. Johns has had one of the most illustrious careers of any American artist, with major exhibitions at New York's Museum of Modern Art: the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York; the National Gallery of Art, Washington, DC; the Centre Pompidou, Paris; the Kunstmuseum Basel, and, most recently the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, to list a few.

Johns was longtime friends with William Halsey, the Charleston artist for whom the Halsey Institute was named.

According to Shepard Fairey, his new work is a "celebration and critique of Americana with an emphasis on gas stations, gas and oil logos, and iconography as a part of what literally and metaphorically drives America in good and bad ways." He will show a group of paintings, works on paper, and screen prints within the main gallery space at the Halsey Institute. In conjunction with the Halsey exhibition, he will create a series of large-scale murals in locations throughout Charleston.

Born in 1970 in Charleston, this will be Fairey's first major exhibition in his hometown.

Beginning in the 1980s with an obsession with skateboard culture and a sticker campaign that went viral, Fairey has become one of the most visible street artists in the world. His seemingly ubiquitous Obama HOPE poster helped bolster his career and, arguably, President Obama's, and the National Portrait Gallery in Washington, DC, acquired it for their permanent collection.

and street art, Fairey's work resists easy classification. The artist exploits the gaps between these genres to produce works that frequently take on social and political issues. Fairey has become an articulate advocate for free speech and progressive

Fairey's work is included in the collections of the Smithsonian Institution, the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, the Museum of Modern Art in New York, the Museum of Contemporary Art San Diego, the National Portrait Gallery in Washington, DC, and the Victoria and Albert Museum in

While the Halsey Institute is best known for showing the work by emerging and mid-career artists, director Mark Sloan says, "I want to highlight the accomplishments of two native sons as a way to demonstrate the fact that important contemporary art can originate anywhere." Both Fairey and Johns have had a long association with the Halsey Institute and this exhibition brings these two celebrated artists together for the first time in their home state.

Internationally acclaimed filmmaker Brett Novak has been commissioned to produce a video about Fairey's Charleston project, which will be shown to the public during the exhibition. Novak will follow the development of Fairey's exhibition from conception to completion, including the installation of the outdoor works in

Art League of Hilton Head Offers Works by Janis Wilson Hughes

The Art League of Hilton Head on Hilton Head Island, SC, will present Cycles of Vitality: Ceramic Sculpture by Janis Wilson Hughes, on view in the Walter Greer Gallery, at the Arts Center of Coastal Carolina, from May 8 through June 1, 2014. A reception will be held on May 8, from 5-7pm.

Hughes' work draws inspiration from various cycles in nature: seasons of planting and harvesting, the migration of birds, the ebb and flow of the tide, changing phases of the moon, and our own arc from infancy to old age. With the Appalachian woods as her childhood playground, Hughes watched the forces of nature both build up and tear down life in an endless cycle. Today the themes of Hughes' work encompass both celebrating the protective shells of latent, dormant life personified in her seed pod sculptures as well as exploring the open spaces created through the weathering of time as embodied in her Traverse pots.

Art League of Hilton Head

"Life is filled with inevitable and interdependent cycles of vitality", says Hughes. The work included in this show explores vitality through the use of many nature inspired forms including botanical pods, shells, and soaring or sedentary birds that are sculpted from stoneware clay and finished with earthy surface treatments.

Hughes creates each piece by hand and uses numerous techniques to construct textured surfaces from adding flowing slip or soft clay to forms to using wood carving tools to sculpt surfaces. Areas of raw clay are left exposed, and colors are applied sparingly using underglazes, stains, engobes, and custom glazes. The scale of work ranges from petite shell sculptures that hang on the wall to floor standing seed pod totems several feet in height.

Hughes explains, "Although I study nature for inspiration, my forms are fanciful archetypes and not literal interpretations. They are meant to suggest questions, entertain, and renew connections through familiarity. When people contemplate my work I hope it rekindles the awareness which has gone dormant in so many of us that we are very much part of nature and not apart from nature."

Janis Wilson Hughes considers herself a native of Johnson City, TN. In 1998 Hughes obtained a degree in Chemical Engineering with an Environmental specialization from Auburn University. After graduation she relocated to Wisconsin to begin an eleven year career as a scientist and engineer. While struggling to find fulfillment in that career, she began her journey with clay. Over the course of several years Hughes studied under numerous talented potters from around the country through workshops and classes. She built her own studio in 2004 after moving to Georgia, and in 2009 Hughes left the corporate world to pursue pottery fulltime. She is now a fulltime ceramic artist and owner of Evolution Stoneware Pottery, LLC.

In 2012, Hughes solidified her creative vision for her body of nature inspired sculptural work during a fruitful artist residency as a Fellow at the Hambidge Center for Creative Arts and Sciences. While Hughes' primary focus is on making art, she also teaches her techniques through workshops, articles for pottery magazines, short videos, and full length instructional DVDs.

Hughes has been featured on the cover of Clay Times Magazine and print articles in Pottery Making Illustrated Magazine and the Ceramic Arts Daily website. Her work is carried in several galleries, and her work has been included in more than thirty exhibitions across the United States. Hughes currently resides in Alpharetta, GA, a suburb of Atlanta, with her husband and two dogs.

Fishbone Gallery Joins the Gallery Community in Bluffton, SC

Exciting things are going on at the Fishbone Gallery on Calhoun Street in the heart of Old Town Bluffton, SC. Shop owners Maria and Paul Slough have assembled a group of local artists and artisans whose wares will knock your socks off! This Bluffton couple has done a complete remodel of their gift shop, creating a fine arts gallery, but retaining a special space devoted to the unique, handcrafted, local gifts that the shop's patrons have come to love. The freshly spacious gallery rooms are now filled with the art of local painters, sculptors, sweetgrass basket weavers, woodworkers, potters and glass makers.

The Sloughs invite you to a celebration of the new Fishbone Gallery on Thursday, May 8, 2014, from 3-6pm. There will be refreshments and live music to accompany lots of wonderful art!

Some of the new artists include Bluffton's ever-popular Kelly Logan Graham, whose amazing variety of work is incredibly appealing and special. His paintings and wooden assemblages in particular capture the "Bluffton State of Mind."

Artists featured are John Crum, who has a wonderful wall of whimsical acrylic paintings sure to delight; Murray Sease ho contributes original oil paintings of lively and colorful local scenes; and Shelly (Almori) Deleeuw with oversized oyster and crab paintings, perfect for the walls of any lowcountry home.

Gallery owner Maria is herself a seasoned potter who, when she isn't entertaining customers, is out back, designing and glazing away. As Maria loves to say "I am playin' in the clay and lovin' it!" She is expanding her talents to include original works of art to be featured exclusively in her gallery.

The Fishbone Gallery also features members of the well-known Palmer family. Native son Wally Palmer, a dear friend of Maria and Paul, has rallied many of his super-talented family to be a part of this venture: Addison Palmer is a superb artist, painter of beautiful landscapes and very detailed wildlife portraits. He may have gotten some of his talent from his father, the renowned Jim Palmer, whose gorgeous paintings are well known throughout the art world and happily he has consented to show a select few here at the Gallery. Also the work of Karen Palmer whose lovely oils and watercolors are captivating, and of course, Wally, son of the famed bird sculptor Walter Palmer, has created a line of bronze covered fiberglass relief sculptures that feature the wildlife of our area – turtles, wading birds, palmetto trees among them - that are fabulous art pieces that can be enjoyed indoors or out. He is also planning some mosaic furniture that will grace the gallery's new front garden along with Graham's wooden sculptures and other great yard art.

These are just a few of the artistic delights in store at the Fishbone Gallery – worth a visit soon to see the transformation from gift shop to gallery – and then often after to see what's new on a regular basis. You never know which favorite local artist will be contributing a fresh and wonderful new creation!

Editor's Note: Judith McGrath contributed her writings about exhibits and events taking place in Western Australia to Carolina Arts for about a decade. Although she was writing about events taking place thousands and thousands of miles away, they seemed relevant to what was going on here in the Carolinas. Her contributions were very popular when we first ran them and continue to be popular on our website's archives. We've decide to revisit them from time to time.

A Few Words From Down Under Post Modern Art & Ants

by Judith McGrath, first run in our June Issue 2006

The other day I got an e-mail from an emerging artist who participated in an annual exhibition of work by art students. She wanted to thank me for the kind words I had to say about her exhibit in my review. To tell the truth, I couldn't help but make a positive comment; her work was well thought out, executed with skill and neatly placed in a shaded grassed area of the gallery grounds. At first glance it could be easily interpreted as an innocent narrative that everyone can relate to; ants marching single file toward a picnic setting. However, should the viewer make a subtle mind shift while viewing the installation, they'll find a potent political statement.

The way the artist encrypted her comment rocked me, and I continue to think back on her exhibit and find different avenues that lead to her intended reading of the piece. The artist invited viewers to look beyond the surface of the work to find a hidden truth. With respect for her intention, I did not to divulge the artist's message in my review however I did make a cryptic reference to its meaning. Besides the thank you, her email assured me I had correctly interpreted her art.

The statement made by the exhibit is not as important as how the artist used her art in the way it was originally intended; to communicate something of importance via an ordinary image. By doing this she successfully links today's contemporary art practice to the long forgotten purpose for making art, which is to inform the general populace. I haven't seen any kind of message in student work in a long time. Art students who are celebrated by those ensconced in art academia are often too self indulgent to have much to say about anything beyond 'ME'.

From its inception, the visual arts consisted of pictures and arbitrary symbols provide a means of communication first between man and his gods then the ruling classes and their minions. Priests instructed their flock by decorating churches, inside and out, with images of God and Gospels, and symbols for heaven and hell. Peasants and warriors recognized their lords and leaders via family crests and emblems of status emblazoned on banners, armour and personal jewellery. Merchants used signage consisting of images of their wares that were identifiable to the illiterate. Colours, flowers, objects, animals, and figures in specific poses had underlying meanings that were understood by all. A simple example would be a sign decorated with a man in white armour astride a prancing horse and carrying a shield bearing a tankard and a bed to indicate 'The White Knight Inn'.

Pictorial art continued to communicate to the learned and illiterate alike, even during the political, industrial and social changes of the 19th Century. These changes were noted and reflected in the variety of movements we collectively call Modern Art, which commenced around Page 18 - Carolina Arts, May 2014 the mid 1800's. During the 20th Century Modern Art evolved into Modernism, a reaction to speed and greed, and finally Post Modernism that is not so much an art style as a plethora of critical and rhetorical validations for various, sometimes vacuous, experiments in method and media. The Art Establishment was born and immediately closed ranks to the public by declaring only They knew what constituted Art. The new art cognoscenti considered the intellectual/emotional concept that provided the impetus to make 'art' more important then the actual art object. It was a mind-set that relegated pictorial communication to cartoonists and graphic artists while Fine Artists need only present a verbal validation for the object painted, purchased or picked off a tree and placed on the wall or floor. This concept effectively dismissed the need to learn traditional eye/hand art skills. I recall how one well celebrated art graduate haunted junk shops and second hand stores buying up all the old hobby painting, paint-bynumber pictures, string art, even varnished completed jig-saw puzzles to display in an exhibition. I forgot the name of the show and the artist but do remember the question I repeatedly asked myself; how can a person be an Artist without having any Artistic skills? Perhaps it was a 'I think therefore I am, an artist' kind of philosophical thing.

When Fine Artists lost the plot, well skilled and creative Graphic Artists came to the fore. Modern Graphic Artists are employed by religious, political and corporate entities wanting to manipulate the mind-set of the masses. And they do it as well as, if not better then, Fine Artists ever did in the dim, dusty past. Pictures and symbols were then, and are now, a valuable tool that can sell everything from salvation to hotels, political ideologies to fast food. Graphic Artists are in demand, as a digital photograph, line drawing, unique image or new symbol can be etched on the mind. Our approval or disapproval of the image will lead us to or away from the person/place/thing it identifies.

Unfortunately the Art Establishment sees the pictorial power of today's Graphic Artist as 'low brow' or 'propagandist' and certainly 'not art'. They encourage Fine Artist to rise above the selling, telling, instant recognition aspect of graphics and produce convoluted works of intellectual significance. In the past, symbols and objects were empowered by their recognition and understanding by the masses. Today Fine Artists' exhibitions run in tandem with catalogues or forums that tell us what we're looking at. Post Modern art needs to be verbally validated as it has effectively disconnected Fine Artists from what art was, is and should continue to be about; communication.

And then I saw the ants exhibit, and I felt like the tide just may be turning. There were other works in the exhibition that also seemed to suggest students were tired of art rhetoric and wanted to put a voice back into paint and well-crafted objects. The exhibit that rocked me involved large segmented ants, beautifully constructed of wood and wire and painted white. In Australia termites are called White Ants, and the phrase 'to white ant' something means to undermine it, destroy it. The picnic setting with its basket and blanket, plates and glasses, food and wine, were all painted black. The black land of plenty was being invaded by those who would 'white ant' their lifestyle. It was a lesson in history, a warning for present, and a lesson in good art for the future.

I felt even more satisfied when the artist said my comments gave her the incentive to continue with her art. Now that

Grovewood Gallery in Asheville, NC, is presenting The In Crowd: Grovewood's Studio Artists Exhibition, on view through May 10, 2014. The studios, located next door to the gallery, house 11 working, professional artists producing everything from intricate book-based sculptures to handcrafted furniture. The exhibit will feature works in a variety of styles & mediums by Chris Abell, Kathleen Doyle, Melissa Engler, Daniel Essig, Russell Gale, Lisa Gluckin, Carl Powell, Helen Purdum, Thomas Reardon, Brent Skidmore, and Jessica Stoddart.Grovewood Gallery and Grovewood Studios were established in 1992 by the Blomberg family of Asheville. Located adjacent to the Omni Grove Park Inn, both the gallery and the studios are housed in the historic Biltmore Industries complex. Biltmore Industries originated as a craft school in the early part of the 19th century to better the lives of the economically deprived youth of the Appalachian region. Today, Grovewood continues Biltmore Industries tradition of supporting local craftspeople. Work by Diana Farfan

The Spartanburg Art Museum in Spartanburg, SC, is presenting Bread and Circus, a new exhibition of surrealist ceramic sculptures by Diana Farfan, on view through May 16, 2014. Farfan was born in Bogotá, Colombia where she received her BFA from the National University of Colombia. She completed her training closer to home, in Columbia, SC, where she received her MFA in Ceramics from the University of South Carolina. Farfan currently resides and works in Greenville, SC. Bread and Circus, which derives its name from the famous quote by Roman satirist Juvenal, refers to a superficial means of satisfying or sedating the masses. The circus theme woven throughout the playful menagerie of ceramic toys, dolls, and marionettes, referThe sculptures in the exhibit hold a strong socio-political connotation, as well as a hefty dose of humor. The Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, is presenting Social Geographies: Interpreting Space and Place, curated by Dr. Leisa Rundquist, on view through May 18, 2014. The art world operates within geographic frameworks. Spatial divisions between "inside" and "outside" impact how the art world describes, identifies and validates artists featured within the exhibition. Whether deemed "outsider" - Henry Darger, Martín Ramírez, George Widener – or "self-taught" - Thornton Dial, Sr., Minnie Evans, Lonnie Holley – these artists bear categorical markers that organize their art but do not adequately speak of their art's unique qualities and circumstances. The Reynolda House Museum of American Art in Winston-Salem, NC, is presenting Reynolda Moderns, on view in the Northeast Bedroom Gallery, through June 1, 2014. The exhibition highlights the strengths of the Museum's collection of early 20th-century modernism and select loans. The painters in this small exhibition of eight works took the tenets of modernism developed by avant-garde European artists and translated them into a distinctively American idiom. ### Skyuka Fine Art in Tryon, NC, Features Exhibit of Equestrian Art Skyuka Fine Art in Tryon, NC, will present Block House Equestrian Art Exhibit-2014, in honor of Tryon's 68th Block House Steeplechase Race, on view from May 9 - 30, 2014. A reception will be held on May 9, from 5-8pm.

Skyuka Fine Art, in collaboration with Tryon Riding & Hunt Club, is proud to present its second Block House Equestrian Art Exhibit. This group show will first be presented at F.E.N.C.E. on May 2, during Tryon Riding & Hunt Club's kick off celebration the evening before the famed race, as well as on May 3, during the race. Then the show will move into Skyuka Fine Art's gallery space.

Famous equestrian artists, many with the American Academy of Equine Art, and well known plein air landscape artists have been invited to participate in this unprecedented show. These artists will be featuring their equine and pastoral art in a variety of techniques and media. Artists include: Jan Lukens, Tucker Bailey, Booth Malone, Ann Malphrus, Valerie Hinz, Mary Neely, Linda Luster, Jim Carson and Richard Christian Nelson. The show will focus on original artwork, however some giclees and framed prints will also be available.

Award-winning artist Richard Christian Nelson had the distinct honor of creating the artwork featured in this year's TR&HC's Block House Steeplechase poster (also featured here in our show logo). Hailing from Detroit, MI, where he earned his BFA from The Center for Creative Studies, and took post graduate fine art courses at Wayne State University, Nelson has been working as an artist ever since. His career started as an illustrator, then as a portrait artist, gal lery artist, and instructor. Nelson's poster artwork will be available as framed giclees in multiple sizes.

Booth Malone is one of the premiere equestrian artists in the country; his paintings have appeared on the cover of numerous horse-oriented magazines. In 2006 he was Official Artist of the Breeder's Cup; and in 2007 Featured Artist for the Masters of Fox Hunting Association Centennial Exhibit. His forte is capturing movement, gesture and nuance in people and animals with style and originality. Booth's palette is distinctively vibrant and fresh and his technique and compositions are unmatched in the world of sporting art.

Mary Neely has had an amazing art-filled education painting en plein air for 15 summers in France. These summers followed another impressive student history that includes studying at University of Michigan, Kentucky, Dayton Art Institute, the Scottsdale Artists School, as well as studying under Daniel Greene at the Art Students League of New York. Neely's work reflects this in that her works are breathtakingly beautiful in color, composition, and applica-

With two art degrees, Linda Luster has worked as an illustrator, a photographer, and a director of exhibits for the North Carolina Museum of History. Although horse training had been a passion, she is now a devoted equestrian artist and only trains occasionally. Her work has been featured on the cover of the Chronicle frequent times and as an artist has been voted overall as being one of the magazine's favorites. Luster's work shows the emotional connection and intimate knowledege of her subject indicative of a life devoted to horses.

Tucker Bailey grew up in northern Minnesota, and it was there that she developed her love of nature. Horses became a part of her life at an early age and remain so. She worked at a foundry for a few years learning the art of bronze casting and that experience proved valuable to this day. Doing both painting and sculpting lends a fresh perspective to each new piece she works on.

Equestrian portrait artist Jan Lukens has been awarded a painting exhibition at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, DC, for winning top honors in a national portrait competition. His work has been featured on the covers of The Chronicle of the Horse, and in the pages of The Artists' magazine, The Equine Image, The Canine Image, Ink, and Show Circuit. His equine portraiture is outstanding and distinctively different.

Ann Malphrus resides in Greenville, SC. and although she showed a strong interest in art early on, she chose to spend her time first in the barn and then in Veterinary School. Career and family meant that her interest in horses and art would be put aside for years, until 2012 when her lifelong dream of melding those two interests materialized in a week long class on sculpting the horse. Malphrus' combination of spot-on anatomy, representation of a palpable emotion, and her intriguing mottled technique are an impressive union resulting in captivating work. We look forward to seeing many more great equine sculpture coming from this gifted and emerging artist.

A Canadian farm girl, Valerie Hinz is an equestrian and animal painter. Some of Hinz's recent accolades include: official artist for the 1999 Queen's Plate and 2003 Breeder's Cup, and Artist's Choice "Best of Show" at the 2009 and 2011 Calgary Stampede Western Art Showcase, just to name a few. Hinz's soft impressionistic strokes are always inspired by light and allow the animals beauty and character to shine through.

Jim Carson's work can best be described as "fresh and painterly". Cutting through to the essence, simplifying, and finding balance is his goal. Carson has been influenced through various workshops with Ken

October 20 - 24, 2014 "Workshop: For Your Painting Group!" Dates you choose

I can conduct a workshop planned especially for your location! Please contact us for planning and organizing a workshop in your area for your art organization or guild.

Each William Jameson Painting Workshop is designed to be an educational and entertaining experience. Along with exhilarating travel, students from beginner to advanced will receive one-on-one instruction in oil, watercolor or acrylic and pen and ink sketching. Whether the travel is down the mountain or to the Bahamas or Italy, you will be with like-minded folks who share your love of art. There will be six hours of instruction each painting day at sites I have carefully selected for their architectural interest or appealing landscapes. Each day will include demonstrations, critiques and help with photography for use in painting your own work of art.

All workshops include a "welcome" party and some workshops include private museum tours or excursions to special venues that we have cultivated over the years.

Non-painter companions are always welcome! Our workshop trips take us to breathtaking places where there is something of interest for everyone. Of course, special pricing is available for these companions. Please see specific workshop information for additional descriptive information. Detailed info is available at www.williamjameson.com or call 828.749.3101.

Caldwell Arts Council in Lenoir, NC, Features Works by Thomas Sayre

The Caldwell Arts Council in Lenoir, NC, will present New Works by Thomas Sayre: From Golden Valley to Edgemont, on view from May 2 - 30, 2014. A reception will be held on May 2, from 5-7pm.

Most well-known locally for his 2012 sculpture "Across the Grain" in downtown Lenoir, Savre is also an internationally renowned sculptor, artist and designer

Sayre says, "For almost three decades my work as an artist has played with ideas about human control versus serendipity (or what some would call chance), the rela ship between human-made objects and the natural landscape, as well as the differences between person-built versus nature-built

Sayre continues, "[The exhibit] From Golden Valley to Edgemont marks an enduring interest, spanning for 30 years, in the rural structures of this area and how they relate to their natural landscape. From my first house built in northern Rutherford County to now, I have a fascination with how abandoned rural structures (barns, fences, and houses) poignantly return to the earth over time. The scraped tar pieces are about the rhythm of nailed-up boards and the light shining through from behind, of surfaces which come to life as they weather, and visual patterns which are more interesting as they bend and twist away from their once crisp 'rectilinearity.' While all completed in 2013, these works span back to drawings done decades ago."

The earthcast wall pieces express a similar tension between the human tool and the texture, color, and resistance of the earth into which the castings are made. Related to Across the Grain, the large earthcasting at the intersection of Harper and Church Streets, these smaller works are cast against wet earth which has been hammered, whacked, and poked with various tools to create the pattern.

"It is a pleasure to be back in Caldwell County in the landscape which has so affected my work all the way from Golden Valley to Edgemont."

Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, | Grovewood Gallery in Asheville, NC, NC, Features New Media Exhibition

The Asheville Art Museum, in Asheville, NC, is excited to announce that 12 artists have been selected to have their work exhibited in Prime Time: Second Annual New Media Juried Exhibition, on view in the Museum's New Media Gallery through Aug. 31, 2014.

In January of this year, the Museum announced an open call to North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee artists working in single channel, screen-based new media, including video art, experimental animation and time-based media. More than 50 submissions were received, of which 12 were chosen as finalists. The selections represent just a sampling of the broad variety of works that fall into this category of contemporary art.

The 12 selected artists are: Heather Freeman, Charlotte, NC; Nathan Halveron, Columbia, SC; Pete Hurdle, Charlotte NC; Peter Kusek, Asheville, NC; Mary Anna LaFratta, Cosby TN; Daniel Lowe, Asheville, NC; Frank McCauley, Sumter, SC; Anna Norton, Highlands, NC; Charmaine Ortiz, Carolina Beach, NC; Dawn Roe, Asheville, NC; Josh Yates, Charlotte, NC; and Josh Zerangue, Mt. Pleasant, SC.

The Museum's New Media Gallery, which opened in 2012, provides an opportunity to spotlight artists who are working in New Media, including stop action and hand-drawn animation, narrative film, Glitch Art, sound, video and light installations, and other live programs connected via the Internet. In 2012, the Museum hosted its first new media juried exhibition, inviting local artists to participate in the Museum's programming and introduce viewers to an innovative and interactive medium. With the mission of the New Media Gallery in mind, the Museum has decided to establish the juried exhibition as an annual event, providing regional artists a chance to exhibit in one of the only galleries of its kind in Western North Carolina.

The New Media Gallery will offer daily screenings of the works by the 12 finalists. The videos are played in a loop that lasts for about one hour.

This exhibition was organized by the Asheville Art Museum, and co-curated by David Teng Olsen, New Media artist and Assistant Professor of Art at Wellesley College; Benjamin Funke, New Media artist and Visiting Professor of Art at Humboldt State University; and Candace Reilly, Asheville Art Museum. Prime Time: Second Annual New Media Juried Exhibition is sponsored by Moogfest.

Founded by artists in 1948 in Asheville, the Asheville Art Museum annually presents an exciting, inviting and active schedule of exhibitions and public programs based on its permanent collection of 20th and 21st century American art. Any visit will also include experiences with works of significance to Western North Carolina's cultural heritage including Studio Craft, Black Mountain College and Cherokee artists. Special exhibitions feature renowned regional and national artists and explore issues of enduring interest. The Museum also offers a wide array of innovative, inspiring and entertaining educational programs for people of all ages.

For further information check our NC Institutional Gallery listings or visit (www. ashevilleart.org).

The deadline each month to submit articles, photos and ads is the 24th of the month prior to the next issue. This will be May 24th for the June 2014 issue and June 24 for the July 2014 issue. After that, it's too late unless your exhibit runs into the next month. But don't wait for the last minute - send your info now. And where do you send that info? E-mail to (info@carolinaarts.com).

Offers Works by Brad Stroman & Clay Foster

Grovewood Gallery in Asheville, NC, will present Ancient Voices, featuring contemporary realist paintings by local artist Brad Stroman and fine art wood sculptures by Indianapolis-based artist Clay Foster, on view from May 31 through Sept. 7, 2014. A reception will be held on May 31, from Brad Stroman combines his passion for making art with his concerns for our environment by incorporating a Japanese Zen philosophy known as wabi-sabi. His award-winning work has garnered acclaim from environmentalists and art lovers alike. Brad's paintings are included in nearly 100 private and corporate collections both nationally and internationally.

Stroman says, "My paintings reflect the intimate and fragile relationship between man and nature. By incorporating the Japanese Zen Buddhist aesthetic of wabi-sabi, I can create a stage where both nature and man-made surfaces and objects play out their balancing act. The aesthetic of wabisabi encourages a contemplative look at our lives through a meditative and disciplined search for humility and an understanding of our place in the physical world. It professes a belief that all things are incomplete, impermanent, and imperfect. One will discover the interaction of those tenets throughout the images in my compositions. One will also find in every painting, a circle. The circle has been and continues to be a very profound symbol for indigenous peoples around the world. It stands for unity and harmony and because we seem to have lost a connection with nature that primitive cultures enjoyed, I deliberately break up or wear away the circle in the painting to show the disconnection we now have with who have shown exceptional development in their careers as artists and whose artworks have directly influenced or had a significant impact on other artists within the field of woodturning as a whole.

Foster adds, "Mystery is essential to art. Rather than explain what each element means, I prefer to let the viewer find their own meaning. The Baule people of Africa believe too much clarity can hinder some kinds of enlightened understanding. I'll just say that my art combines elements and sources to capture the essence of things that endure, things that last, ancient voices that speak to our hearts in modern times. Bold, vibrant colors and recurring designs are the foundations of his paintings, which are often created on found objects and architectural salvage. Vintage glass windows are principally used as canvas, which illuminate the richness of chosen hues, the depth of textures, and the motion of passing brush strokes.

The breadth of O'Sheeran's subject matter extends from the abstract and imaginary to landscapes and even the

Black Mountain Center for the Arts in Black Mountain, NC, Features 8th Annual Art in Bloom

The Black Mountain Center for the Arts in Black Mountain, NC, is presenting the 8th Annual Art in Bloom exhibition on view through June 14, 2014

The Black Mountain Center for the Arts 8th annual Art in Bloom puts the "fun" in fundraising. It takes months of planning and more than a hundred volunteers to make this three-day flower-centric event a success. This year's Art in Bloom takes place June 12, 13, 14 and includes a Gala Preview Party (June 12 at 6pm) with seated catered dinner, a gallery display of 22 Ikebana and Western floral designers interpretations of regional art work on loan from a dozen galleries, a two-day Cottage Garden Tour (June 13 and 14 from 10am-4pm), plein air painters in the gardens followed by a display of their works.

It all starts when various regional galleries loan work for the floral designers to interpret. Once the art is hung in the gallery the floral designers choose which work they want to interpret. They have a few weeks to plan and gather materials for their designs. This year the designers have been tasked with working with and around the idea of including edible plants in their designs, the heart of the Garden to Gallery theme.

This year's honorary chairperson is artist and musician Akira Satake who will be toasted at the Gala Preview Party. "Akira has been a part of Art in Bloom since our first year when he was a participant," said Gale Jackson, Black Mountain Center for the Arts Executive Director. "He has shared his artistic and musical talents in many different ways over the years and we are so happy to have the opportunity to honor him in this way."

Satake, along with all the floral designers and those who purchase tickets to the party, will enjoy a seated dinner catered by generous local restaurants. Each year Ultimate Ice Cream creates a signature flavor specifically for Art in Bloom which debuts at the Gala. Tickets for the Gala Preview Party are $40.

The following day Cottage Garden

Tour ticket holders come by the Arts Center to pick up a tour map so they can plan their weekend. Included in the $20 ticket price is admission to the floral designs in the Upper Gallery and a 15 percent discount on lunch at select nearby restaurants.

This year five gardens located in the heart of Black Mountain and up Hwy 9 are being featured. Each garden will have a guide to share the details of the garden with guests and a plein air painter creating artwork. The result of the plein air artist's efforts will be displayed for sale in a Special Exhibit from June 16-18 on the main floor of the Arts Center.

Those who may not want to tour gardens or attend the Gala party but are interested in the floral design interpretations in the gallery may purchase access for $5.

The Gallery with the floral designs will be open from 10am to 4pm Friday, June 13 and Saturday, June 14. Proceeds from Art in Bloom help fund the exciting, thought provoking arts programming and events that the Arts Center offers to the community. Be sure to contact the Arts Center because organizing committee members always have a little something extra up their sleeves. Be on the look out for more on the 8th annual Art in Bloom.

Mica Gallery in Bakersville, NC, Offers Works by Jane Wells Harrison

Mica Gallery in Bakersville, NC, will present Visual Cues, featuring a new body of encaustic work by Jane Wells Harrison, on view from May 31 through June 30, 2014.

Art has the potential to stimulate intellectually or emotionally. For the series Visual Cues, Jane Wells Harrison is consciously exploring the idea of our tendency to draw conclusions based on how something looks. When viewers contemplates the work, the image can provoke an experience that mingles visual data with memory, imagination, and sensibility. This encounter is capable of leading the observers to their own meanings and interpretations. Creating work that invites participation in this mysterious process is her goal, and a meaningful viewer experience is more valuable than any explanation the artist can provide.

Harrison's pieces develop very gradually, with many layers of collage, then paint, then wax, and over again. Harrison says, "An artist is continually making decisions in the process of making, but also I find myself thinking about what prompted me to work with these shapes - and as I work and think, my intent strengthens and an explanation emerges. This body of work is about the visual cues which we assimilate into decisions about identity."

Harrison continues, "My favorite way to work is in series, making multiples with a consistent set of parameters. This series has a constant size (10" x 10") and I'm using symmetrically cut papers for the collage. Because I'm working on several pieces at the same time, my paper palette and my paint palette also stay fairly consistent. I find that once these choices are made, I'm able to work with abandon, making decisions quickly." This gives a definite sense of freedom to the images.

Bulldog Pottery in Seagrove, NC, Hosts Annual Gathering of Potters

Bulldog Pottery in Seagrove, NC, will present the 6th Annual Cousins in Clay, taking place May 31 and June 1, 2014.

Work by Bruce Gholson

Bulldog Pottery, potters Bruce Gholson and Samantha Henneke are sprucing up their studio in central North Carolina in the rural pottery community of Seagrove. There they will host a show and sale of contemporary ceramic art, "Cousins in Clay," with their mountain potter cousin Michael Kline. Their two special guest ceramic artists are Dan Anderson and Blair Clemo. Their kinship is based on a shared appreciation for the pursuit of excellence within the diverse language of clay. In other words, "They Dig Clay." These five nationally known studio art potters will gather together to sell their work and talk with the public about making art that comes from the earth under their

This two-day event begins Saturday, May 31 at 10am and continues to 5pm. And on Saturday, for an added touch of enjoyment, Chronis Pou Vasiliou of Greensboro, NC, will fill the air with his enchanting Greek Bouzouki music while you visit with the "Cousins in Clay." The event continu on Sunday from 10am-5pm with the annual Potters' Potluck starting at noon. All are welcome to bring a dish to share and enjoy.

Dan Anderson taught for 32 years at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville and retired from teaching in 2002 to become a full-time studio potter. Anderson's pots combine his love of architectural shapes and his fascination for decal illustrations with his sparky sense of humor. He finds his ceramics a joy to make and when he is finished with the final decal firing... he admits, there is nothing like them in the whole wide world. Anderson will demonstrate on Sunday, June 1, from 1:30-2:30pm, and talk about his perception of the good pot and his experiences as a potter and teacher.

Blair Clemo is one of the up-and-coming potters of the 21th century. He received his MFA from Alfred University in 2010 and has given presentations and workshops throughout the USA. He was an artist in residence at the International Ceramics Studio in Kecskemét, Hungary, and recently finished a teaching video for the nationally known Ceramics Monthly magazine's online resource Ceramics Arts Daily. Clemo has accepted a tenured track teaching position beginning this fall at the Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond. He will give a demonstration at "Cousins in Clay" on Saturday, at 3pm.

Bulldog Pottery's Bruce Gholson and Samantha Henneke make strong and harmonious functional pottery and for the past 15 years have specialized in unusual molybdenum crystalline glazes on their vases and ceramic wall art paintings. Their NC mountain cousin Michael Kline is known for his lyrical floral brushwork that gracefully wraps around his wood-fired traditional forms. Kline presents workshops around the country and writes a mighty fine blog at (www.sawdustanddirt.com).

North Carolina Pottery Center in Seagrove, NC, Features Works by Neolia Cole Womack

The North Carolina Pottery Center in Seagrove, NC, will present Neolia, Keeper of the Cole Tradition: A Retrospective, curated by Dr. Terry Zug, on view in Gallery I & II, from May 10 through July 26, 2014. A reception will be held on May 10, from noon-2pm.

This exhibition will explore the extraordinary range of forms and richly colored glazes produced by the Sanford Coles over the last 80 years. The focus will be on Neolia Cole Womack, who was only seven when her father, Arthur Ray Cole, moved to Sanford in 1934 to take advantage of the customers travelling on Route 1, then the main north-south road through the state.

Like so many Coles, Neolia was born into the clay. "Daddy had a pottery shop," she recalls, "and I just grew up in it. When I was a kid and everything, I stayed in the shop more than I did in the house, because I enjoyed that better than I did housework. I hate housework!" She was selling her pottery by the time she was 11 or 12, and then went to work fulltime right after she graduated from high school in 1944. She worked alongside her father and her brother Foister, and after her father's death in 1974 ran the shop with her sister Celia and grandson Kenneth George.

Neolia has faithfully followed the advice on pricing she received from her father.

"Daddy always used to say, you make a piece of pottery and you put a high price on it, it's sitting there six months later. If you put it down at a lower price, you can sell seven of them. It'd be a whole lot better to have that quick, fast nickel coming in than it would that slow dime." Moreover, Neolia has no interest in making art pottery. "I'd rather make things that people can put out and use and cook with and bake with. And use for flower vases."

Sadly, the years have caught up with Neolia, and the old shop is now closed. But Neolia deserves recognition for an extraordinary career and for maintaining the Cole pottery tradition in often difficult times. In fact she has already won the prestigious North Carolina Heritage Award, which recognizes the great traditional artists of our state. Now she can take her place in history continued on Page 26 alongside the other great women potters of her family, Nell Cole Graves and Dorothy Cole Auman.

This exhibition will feature work by Neolia, but to illustrate the continuity of the Cole tradition, it will include pottery made by her father, her sister Celia, her brothers Foister, Truman, and Winfred, her grandson Kenneth, her niece Sandy Cole, and her great-nephew David Cole. Today the North Cole Pottery, run by Sandy and her husband Kevin Brown, maintains the Sanford Cole legacy.

Lenders to the exhibit will include Neolia Cole Womack and other members of the Cole Family, Edie Cates, Allen and Barry Huffman, Joe and Tonda Jeffcoat, Jim Paschal, Jimmy and Julie Randolph, Donna Strickland, Peg Wiebe, and anonymous collectors.

Also on view in the Center's Gallery III, will be the exhibit, Ring Jugs and Rundlets, on view from May 10 through July 26, 2014

Ring jugs and rundlets are one of the most curious and distinguishable pottery forms. Both played an essential role in the daily lives of those who lived in North Carolina during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, and they reflect the variety of wares in the potter's repertoire. Contemporary examples give a nod to the traditional form, while blending the creative and imaginative features of faces, incised decorations, and colored glazes. The exhibit

Works by Neolia Cole Womack was curated by Jason Harpe and Brian Dedmond.

Exhibitions are made possible through the generosity of our membership, the Mary and Elliott Wood Foundation, the John W. and Anna H. Hanes Foundation, and the Goodnight Educational Foundation. This project was supported by the NC Arts Council, a division of the Department of Cultural Resources, with funding from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Seagrove Pottery of the Sandhills in Aberdeen, NC, Features Works by Joseph Sand

The Seagrove Pottery of the Sandhills in Aberdeen, NC, will present a selection of pottery by new exhibiting artist, Joseph Sand, on view from May 1 - 31, 2014. It will be a special opportunity for the public to view his unique and beautiful work in the Pinehurst, NC area.

Born and raised in the small southern Minnesota town of Austin, Sand graduated from Austin High School in 2001 and then headed north to the University of Minnesota-Duluth where he earned the opportunity to spend part of his junior year abroad studying art in Cortona, Italy through the University of Georgia-Athens. Early on in his senior year he met his wife, Amanda, at a wedding in Duluth.

At about the same time, Sand was chosen as one of the recipients of the Katherine E. Sullivan Scholarship through the University of Minnesota. This award allowed him to continue his studies by providing funding for a fifth-year of college education abroad. Sand used his scholarship money to attend the University of Wolverhampton in Joseph Sand and a very large jug Wolverhampton, England.

It was during his time in England that Sand decided to become a potter. After visiting and spending time with full-time potters, he knew that this was the life for him.

In 2006, Sand graduated with honors with a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in General Studio Art with a ceramics emphasis. Shortly after graduation, he left for North Carolina where he completed a three and a half year apprenticeship under master potter Mark Hewitt. While finishing his apprenticeship at Hewitt Pottery, Sand was featured in Craft in America.

In the summer of 2009, Sand and his wife Amanda purchased a home and property to set up a pottery near Randleman, NC, where they now make functional and sculptural pottery full-time.

Most recently, Sand was a recipient of the Ella Fountain Pratt Emerging Artist Award through the Durham Arts Council, which provided funding towards the construction of the kiln.

Guilford College in Greensboro, NC, Offers Senior Thesis Exhibition

Guilford College in Greensboro, NC, will present Altered: 2014 Guilford College Senior Thesis Art, on view in the Bauman Galleries and McMichael Atrium, on the 2nd floor, Founders Hall, from May 2 - 16, 2014. A reception will be held on May 2, from 7-9pm.

Works by nine artists from Guilford College will be featured in the 2014 senior thesis art exhibition, Altered. Engage your senses with a variety of media: painting (oil and digital), pottery, sculpture, printmaking, and installation.

Participating artists are: Christopher M. Austin, Adam P. Faust, Levi Mahan, Shammia McQuaig, Fhalyshia Orians, Hannah Reed, Alejandro G. Salcedo, Daniel Saperstein, and Kelly L. Taylor.

Originally from Coastal NC, Christopher M. Austin is a candidate for a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in photography. His thesis work in digital painting expresses a desire to understand the impact of pivotal moments on personal narrative. Austin is a First Place and two-time Honorable Mention recipient for photography in the annual Guilford College Juried Student Art Exhibition. He presented his research and prints on "Early Photographic Processes in the Digital Age" at the Guilford Undergraduate Symposium. Austin has been a Teaching Assistant for Photography I & II, and Modern Art History.

From Durham, NC, Adam P. Faust is a candidate for a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Sculpture. His work consists of found object sculptures and arrangements that explore life and death, not as opposites, but as a part of one another. This realization occurred while gathering materials from the Guilford College woods not long after the recent passing of his grandfather. A Dean's List student, Faust has served as a teaching assistant for Sculpture I, received first place for Sculpture in the annual Guilford Juried Student Art Exhibition, and was the 2013 recipient of the Merry Moor Winnett Scholarship Award.

Work by Levi Mahan

Levi Mahan is a second generation potter from Seagrove, NC. His work makes use of local clays and glaze materials. He draws inspiration from traditional pottery all over the world, with a strong focus on his roots in North Carolina clay. Mahan's work has been exhibited by the Arts Council of Moore County as part of The Next Generation of Seagrove Potters exhibit in 2012. He participated in The Celebration of Seagrove Potters in 2013 and can be seen in Stephen Compton's book, Seagrove Pottery Through Time: America Through Time. He is a candidate for a Bachelor of Arts degree.

North Carolina native Shammia Mc-Quaig is completing her Bachelor of Arts in sculpture. For her thesis, she is creating a series of surreal sculptures that are a response to media and political flaws that undermine the general public's way of thinking. Along with documentaries, this body of work was inspired by McQuaig's own enlightenment on the history of inequity. She is the 2013-14 winner of the College's Rachel and Allen Weller Memorial Sculpture Competition, and she has exhibited in Lancaster, PA, UNC-G's Gatewood Gallery, and three times in the annual Guilford College Juried Student Art Exhibition.

Originally from Findlay, OH, Fhalyshia Orians moved to Greensboro to attend Guilford, and is a candidate for a Bachelor of Arts degree in Painting with a minor in Philosophy this May. Inspired by nature from an early age, her thesis consists of a series of oil paintings that capture the natural beauty of the new landscapes that surround her. In Orians' canvases she strives to create an environment that captures the depth and intricacies of each unique ecosystem, coaxing her viewer to enter into and explore them. Her work has been exhibited in Guilford's Annual Juried Student Art Show for the past four years, and she has worked at the Guilford College Art Gallery since her first year at Guilford.

From Winston-Salem, NC, Hannah Reed will complete her Bachelor of Fine Arts with a concentration in painting in May. Her surreal mindscapes lapse back and forth between the recognizable and abstract, and prompt the viewer's imagination to apply a narrative that will reflect his or her own personal relations with hidden elements in the piece. Reed studied for two years at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, and her work has been published in the April 2014 issue of the literary magazine, Plain China. She won first place in both painting and drawing categories in the annual Juried Student Art Exhibition at Guilford College in 2012 and 2013, and she has served as a teacher's assistant for Painting II and III.

While Daniel Saperstein cut his teeth on functional pottery practices, his work now aims to expand the scope of function and ceramics, with an eye for more abstract gestures. Interested in themes of duality and spatial relationships, Saperstein's work focuses on the intersection of genre, medium and process. His vessels pair the intimate and vast, utilizing micro-crystalline glazes, and by placing literal sonic elements within the vessels. Saperstein's work has been exhibited in Guilford's annual Juried Student Art Exhibition three times, winning first place in the ceramics category in 2013. From Washington, DC, Saperstein is completing a Bachelor of Arts in ceramics with a concentration in religious studies.

Originally from Syracuse, NY, Kelly L. Taylor is a candidate for a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in oil painting. Her works are shadowy still life paintings that illuminate the darkness of tragedy that begs to be remembered and recounted. A Dean's List and honors student, Taylor is a 2014 recipient of the Guilford College Art Appreciation Club Award for Artistic Merit. She received Honorable Mention in painting in the annual Guilford College Juried Student Art Exhibition and exhibited in We Join Spokes Together in a Wheel, a regional student art exhibition. Taylor is also active in Greensboro's art community, exhibiting her work in local galleries and participating in art collaboratives.

Work by Alejandro Salcedo

From Washington, DC, Alejandro G. Salcedo is a candidate for a Bachelor of Arts in Printmaking. He is exhibiting a shrine installation and a series of linocuts that work together to explore the effects of pervasive and lost cultural images on the subconscious. With particular attention to detail and space, he brings to life a dark and whimsical ecosystem of symbols in which objects and their meanings are distorted though satire and juxtaposition. Salcedo is passionate about many areas of printmaking and has served as a teaching assistant for Intaglio and Relief Printmaking classes. His linocuts and screen prints have been exhibited in the annual Guilford College Juried Student Art Exhibition, winning first place awards for printmaking in 2012 and 2013. He also received the Merry Moor Winnett Art Scholarship in 2013.

To participate in Guilford's optional honors Senior Thesis Exhibition, students must apply in their junior year and have at least a 3.25 GPA in art. Selected students partake in a rigorous program of independent work, group critiques, and a required professional practices course, which culminates in their final group exhibition.

The Art Department at Guilford College is a fine arts studio program, which provides an in-depth experience in making images and formulating and crafting ideas. Painting, Drawing, Printmaking, Sculpture, Photography and Ceramics are the primary focus areas. The classroom/studio is highly interactive and dynamic, and provides one-on-one instruction and guidance, as well as the support and stimulation of interchange with classmates. The distinction of the art major at Guilford College lies in the development of each student's creative potential.

Founded in 1837 by the Religious Society of Friends (Quakers), Guilford College is the third oldest coeducational college in the country. It is an independent North Carolina college. Guilford continues to rank among America's best higher education institutions, according to the Princeton Review's annual rankings.

UNC - Greensboro, NC, Offers MFA Thesis Exhibition

The University of North Carolina at Greensboro, in Greensboro, NC, is presenting 2014 UNCG MFA Thesis Exhibition, on view in The Leah Louise B. Tannenbaum Gallery, The Louise D. and Herbert S. Falk, Sr. Gallery of the Weatherspoon Art Museum, through June 1, 2014.

The 2014 Master of Fine Arts Thesis Exhibition features work by six artists in the University of North Carolina at Greensboro's Department of Art graduate program: Katey Austin (painting), Jennifer Leigh Bonner (painting/sculpture/photography), Christian Brahe (painting), Nam Le (sculpture), Stacy Bloom Rexrode (sculpture/painting), and Amanda Wagstaff (drawing/printmaking/video).

The artists in this graduating class use a variety of media and focus on an array of issues. Their MFA exhibition demonstrates the energy and commitment of the artists, who engaged in numerous critiques by faculty, visiting artists, and their peers to develop significant bodies of work.

The Weatherspoon Art Museum at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro acquires, preserves, exhibits, and interprets

Artworks Gallery in Winston-Salem, NC, Features Works by Mona Wu

Artworks Gallery in Winston-Salem, NC, is presenting Mona Wu Ten Year Retrospective, on view through May 31, 2014. Receptions will be held on May 2, from 7-10pm and May 3, from 2-5pm. An Artist talk entitled, "How My Woodcut Prints are made", will be given on May 25, beginning at 2pm (a small donation to gallery is welcome) but the event is free and open to the public. Unframed prints by Wu will available for sale May 2, 3)

Mona Wu is showing her past and current works of prints and collages spanning ten years. Many of her woodcuts include layered cross-grained prints and multi-block Japanese styled color prints. Others are complex etchings with aquatint and Chine colle applications. The major theme is taken from Nature's flora and fauna in local and far away places. In other works, Wu juxtaposes fragments of her prints, Chinese paintings, and calligraphy on backgrounds of decorative Japanese papers. The result is a richly Asian influenced tapestry of texture, tones, and colors, all in the medium of collage.

A native of China, Wu came to the United States in 1971. She studied Chinese painting and calligraphy in Hong Kong. In 1996 she received her BA in Art History from Salem College. Starting in 1997, she has been studying printmaking at Wake Forest University. Wu incorporates her painting, calligraphy, and printmaking into her collage work. She has been exhibiting her various works at Artworks Gallery every year since 2004. She was selected as Winston-Salem Sawtooth Center for Visual Art "Artist of the Year" in 2003. She is currently teaching Chinese painting, printmaking, and collage workshops at the center.

Yadkin Cultural Arts Center in Yadkinville, NC, Offers Works by Cory Willingham & Nicolas van der Does

The Yadkin Cultural Arts Center in Yadkinville, NC, will present Wonderfully Made, featuring paintings by Cory Willingham and glass art by Nicolas van der Does, on view in the Welborn Gallery, from May 2 through June 29, 2013. A reception will be held on May 2, beginning at 5:30pm.

Through Wonderfully Made the artists explore what it means to feel rooted in heritage and how we determine our unique value. Willingham and van der Does draw upon their own experiences, traditions, and faith to create a body of work which questions how and from where we draw our sense of identity, belonging and worth.

Nicolas van der Does has been blowing glass for over nine years, and now works and teaches at several studios in New Orleans, LA. His latest work highlights his exquisite use of bold color and organic form to create unique and striking pieces. For this show, he has created a series of three "families," each a collection of related works meant to be considered both individually and as part of its group.

Willingham has been painting for over twenty years, and now works in New Orleans as a stage set designer, builder, and painter. Since the backdrops she paints at work average 65' in length and 30' in height and are meant to be viewed from the back of a theater, painting on 2' x 4' canvases at home feels oddly intimate, resulting in very personal works meant to be seen closely and thoughtfully.

City Art Gallery in Columbia, SC, Offers Works by Steven Whetstone

City Art Gallery in Columbia, SC, will present Transcendent, a solo exhibition by Steven Whetstone, on view from May 15 through June 21. A reception will be held on May 15, from 5:30-8pm, during the Third Thursdays in the Vista art walk.

As early as 1983 Steven Whetstone's passions have always been art and baseball. He grew up splitting his time between the two until 2004 when he took his love of art to the professional arena and left baseball behind. As a standout pitcher for the University of South Carolina and Brookland-Cayce High School, Whetstone took that success on to the minor league with the Chicago Whitesox. But his USC art degree and love clouted with extensive training led to his professional career as a full time fine-artist.

Whetstone has sold over 50 paintings just last year. His clientele include local and national celebrities, interior designers, art collectors and art enthusiasts. He continues to create pieces out of his home in Columbia with his wife Jennifer and dog, Norman.

Whetstone's work is concentrated in oils, but also includes watercolor and charcoal drawings. His subject matter varies from Lowcountry life and style to more modern figurative pieces, period pieces, and landscapes, to family portraits. He also lends his knowledge to the Columbia community by holding art classes twice a week and sharing his skills to aspiring artists at City Art in the Vista. Whetstone has shown his works in galleries statewide and is sought after by the SC Law Magazine and The University of South Carolina's Football Hall of Captains. He currently has two shows a year reflecting his personality and passions for subject matter and his travels.

Whetstone comments about this exhibit, "These bodies of works showcase everything that I enjoy about being an artist and that I get to experience through opportunities and travel. There are several series in this show ranging from Lowcountry landscapes, people, to plein-air, to a personal series that I haven't tackled before to which I hold close to my heart."

"This personal series explores the depths of watching a loved one go through cancerexploring all the emotions, fight, grit, soles, solemnest, confusion, trial, beauty and love," adds Whetstone. "It's my most sensitive work to date. Water and darkness have many metaphors. These works include figures and fabric, although soft and delicate hold a much more symbolic state of reality compromised by darkness and uncertainty. The simplest thing in this life is to breathe and when we're knocked out of breath and swallowed by this life it's hard to find direction and control when all we need to do is find the surface. In one word my wife describes the last three years as transcendent. To rise above and find the surface, to show others the love in Christ she's found and to share it with others while being surrounded in darkness."

mount to this competition, but continue to refuse to provide totals - how long will it be before artists think it is all decided in back rooms? Some artists already had that on their mind last year. This year's results will be more telling and have a major effect on next year's entries.

From what I've seen of the works entered this year online - the exhibit looks more like a SC Arts Commission show. Of course the fact that a university art professor won last year's top award may have attracted more fellow art professors to join this event. Sure they had to make the jury cut, but that's not hard when you are being judged by folks who are already in the "insiders" club we all know exist in the art world.

To enter you have to think you have a chance to win. And, when artists stop thinking that - look out Artfields.

Columbia Museum of Art in Columbia, SC, Features Two Exhibitions Focused on Animals

The Columbia Museum of Art in Columbia, SC, announces two special exhibitions, Animal Instinct: Paintings by Shelley Reed and Cheer for the Home Team: Animal Mascots from the Collection, on view concurrently from May 16 through Sept. 14, 2014. Animal Instinct illustrates animals in exquisite detail in the tradition of Old Master painting - but with a contemporary twist - while Cheer for the Home Team explores the power and symbolism that animals have to rally our spirits and camaraderie. Both shows offer delightful and fascinating visual experiences to inspire and educate all audiences as the CMA continues to fulfill its mission to bring to the Midlands exceptional exhibitions of fine art.

Ram (after Oudry,) by Shelley Reed, 2007, 20" x 20"

The CMA is the first museum to present a career retrospective of American artist Shelley Reed. Animal Instinct: Paintings by Shelley Reed is an impressive selection of approximately 40 large-scale black and white paintings of animals, including a wall-length mural. These oils on canvas are based on Old Master paintings where animals often stand in for people and are used Page 30 - Carolina Arts, May 2014 to create visual parables about the strengths and failings of human nature. Animals in lush, gorgeous paintings communicate with each other, flirt with each other, and consume each other. Reed is an unexpected painter because she does not use color in her current work, although she started out as a colorist. Her palette shrank as she became less interested in exploiting color and more interested in exploring the meaning of Old Master paintings.

'Reed's art is unexpected," says CMA Chief Curator Will South, "because she works exclusively in black and white where the tradition of animal painting has been all color. She also works on a very big scale. The combination of silvery, shimmering surfaces and huge canvases makes us feel like we're looking at old Hollywood mov ies; only here the animals are the stars."

Reed not only makes Old Master paintings feel contemporary by making them large and dismissing color, but she focuses on the contrasting mixture of wildness, as represented by tigers, lions, birds, and other animals, with high culture. She is fascinated with how human beings tend to understand the world in terms of themselves, yet wild animals have their own natures. She explores this complexity in both complicated narratives and simple animal portraits. The result is that we readily identify animals that boast, strut, threaten or attract other animals and at the same time realize that despite being the subjects of fine art, wild animals resist civilization. It is not their nature.

The art says they fit in, and so Reed has a built-in tension to her narratives. The grandest narrative in the show is a 47-foot-long mural entitled, In Dubious Battle, where a panorama of fighting, playing, and posing unfolds. The mural, with its cast of characters and dynamic action, feels like a silent movie where we get to invent the story along with the animals and the artist.

"The rewards for looking at the art of Shelley Reed are many," says South. "We are awed by her expert control of paint, and entertained by the high-energy compositions she puts together. And, beyond all that, we think about the ideas embedded in these wonderful pictures: how civilized are we, really? Are we not animals too, of a different stripe? Her paintings say we are."

Reed is represented by the Sears-Peyton Gallery in New York. She has had solo shows in New York, Toronto, and Boston and has participated in many group shows around the country. The School of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston has awarded her both the 2005 Maud Morgan Award and a Traveling Fellowship in 2013. Reed's work can be found in public and private collections including: Boston Museum of Fine Arts, Lila Acheson Wallace Collection, Bank of Boston, Rose Art Museum, Danforth Museum, and the DeCordova Museum and Sculpture Park. The artist is based in Boston.

Cheer for the Home Team: Animal Mas cots from the Collection is a family-friendly exhibition comprised of 41 works from the CMA collection featuring animals that serve as college mascots. The exhibition explores the qualities of certain animals that make them popular as symbols of luck to lead their schools to victory on the field, like the fighting gamecock and the tiger. A diversity of objects is drawn from all aspects of the collection, including European paintings, American folk art, and Asian ceramics. The exhibition features a number of the Museum's Audubon prints, as well as works by Eugène Delacroix, Romare Bearden, Edmund Yaghjian, Constantine Manos, and Sigmund Abeles. Many of these pieces are being shown for the first time in a number of years.

"This exhibition has such a wide variety of objects and animals that every visitor will find something to love," says CMA Curator Victoria Cooke. "It is fun to learn more about the history of animals in art, but also the stories of the mascots and how they were chosen by the colleges and universi-

Sports fans have a good time identifying the mascots for various teams across the US, while children, animal lovers, and fine art enthusiasts revel in the various styles and assortment of wildlife portrayed in the pieces. Visitors learn about the history of mascots for college sports teams as well as some of the unlikely and unusual mascots that have come to lead the rallying cry for

Both of these exhibitions are simply fun for all ages and educational as well. Free multimedia TAP tours for children focusing on animals in both Animal Instinct and Cheer for the Home Team are available to guide and teach families when they visit the shows. # Arts Council of York County in Rock Hill, SC, Features Works by Scott Zeigler, Diana Farfan, and Lucy Bailey

The Arts Council of York County in Rock Hill, SC, will present Strange Commonplace, an exhibition featuring three ceramic artists – Scott Zeigler, Diana Farfan, and Lucy Bailey, on view in the Dalton Gallery at the Center for the Arts, from May 2 through June 15, 2014. A reception will be held on May 22, beginning at 6pm.

By exploring the past, one is able to break free from its constraints. Through his work, Scott Ziegler provides an introspective look into his past experiences. The process of creating each work allows Ziegler to face his past, breaking free from its constraints, he finds the light, and begins to heal. Each piece Ziegler creates is symbolic of the truth he discovers and the healing it provides.

Work by Scott Zigeler

Originally from Park Ridge, IL, Ziegler graduated with an MFA degree in Ceramics from Northern Illinois University and currently teaches at the University of North Carolina at Pembroke. He was selected as an Emerging Artist by Ceramics Monthly magazine in 2006, was a featured artist for the magazine in 2009, and has appeared in Clay Times magazine. Zeigler's works are also featured in The Appreciations and Collections of Modern and Contemporary Ceramic Art, and Studio Ceramics: Advanced Techniques.

Ziegler's work has been juried into many competitions, most recently receiving an Honorable Mention in the Big Fish, Small Pot V: Fifth International Small Teapot Competition and Show in Pomona, CA,, and at the 4th Biennial Concordia Continental Ceramics Competition at Concordia University where he also received an Honorable Mention. Ziegler has served as a clay mentor for the Potter's Council. He received the Kiln God Residency Award at the Watershed Center for the Ceramic Arts, and he was featured in the PBS television show Broadstrokes.

In creating her marionettes, puppets and dolls, Diana Farfan begins a discourse on the human condition, self-image, the projection of self, and the revelation of human emotions. With their disproportional heads, torsos and limbs that are articulated at the joints with exaggerated industrial artifacts, they invoke the complexity of our mundane lives and their adaptation to a world more mechanical, industrial, and materialistic. Farfan's figurative ceramics are the metaphoric manipulation of the human being, calling into consideration the reality of our emotional defenses and how they change us.

Born in Bogota, Colombia, Farfan received her BFA at the National University of Colombia and her MFA in Ceramics at the University of South Carolina.

Her 2D and 3D works have been shown and awarded in a number of exhibitions in places including Colombia, the United States, and Taiwan.

For Lucy Bailey, working in ceramics offers the perfect balance of possibilities and limitations. Her works often make reference to the natural world, sometimes incorporating bones, bugs, shells and other artifacts of nature. Other pieces are focused on the human face and hands, connecting people to objects and words. Each piece begins with an image or phrase that inspires while remaining nebulous, with no attempt at grand statements or deeper meaning.

Bailey grew up on Lake Murray in Columbia, SC, earning degrees in theatre, clinical counseling, and school psychology. While working full-time, Bailey focused her creative energy on gleaning everything she could from research conducted online, in books and publications, and absorbed the knowledge of the clay community. She has studied under Janis Mars Wunderlich, Lisa Clague, Tip Toland, Adrian Arleo, and

Discovery Place® in Charlotte, NC, Offers an Opportunity to Experience Van Gogh in a New Way

The Discovery Place® in Charlotte, NC, is presenting Van Gogh Alive, presenting the imagery of Van Gogh in a whole new way, on view through June 1, 2014.

From Milan and Moscow, to Istanbul and Budapest, the globally-acclaimed exhibition Van Gogh Alive has come to the United States' east coast for the first time.

Presented to the community by Wells Fargo, Van Gogh Alive is the synthesis of traditional art and modern technology. Over 3,000 of Vincent van Gogh's most famous works are taken outside of the frame and brought to life in a whirlwind of vibrant colors and vivid details. For the first time, Page 34 - Carolina Arts, May 2014

guests can walk through images of famous works, such as "The Starry Night," "Sunflowers," "The Café Terrace on the Place du Forum," "The Yellow House," "Bedroom in Arles" and many more.

"This exhibition redefines a traditional museum experience, displaying Van Gogh's masterpieces in larger-than-life proportions. Guests may have had previous opportunities to see a few authentic paintings in a gallery, but this exhibit brings thousands of Van Gogh's images under one roof in a stunning audio-visual format," said Discovery Place, Inc. President and CEO, Catherine Wilson Horne. "Visitors can expect to be astonished and drawn into the splendor of this experi-

"We are pleased to support Discovery Place and help bring this acclaimed artwork to Charlotte," said Kendall Alley, Community Banking regional president for Charlotte. "Wells Fargo takes pride in supporting Charlotte, as well as the arts in our local communities. Our goal is to help build strong and vibrant communities, improve the quality of life and make a positive difference."

Upon entering the Sensory4 gallery, guests will be completely immersed in Van Gogh's paintings with floor-to-ceiling projections that scale Discovery Place's exhibition space. Synchronized to a classical score featuring the works of composers George Handel, Camille Saint-Saens and Franz Schubert, this extraordinary experience will transport visitors on an expressive journey into Van Gogh's troubled life and brilliant work using light, color and sound.

The exhibition traces Van Gogh's artwork from his early life in the Netherlands to his pinnacle masterpieces in Arles and Saint-Rémy-de-Provence. Throughout this journey, visitors will learn about the creative origins of the paintings and view excerpts from Van Gogh's letters that offer insight into the artist's life. Many of the images draw attention to key features of the art and allow people to study Van Gogh's dramatic use of color and technique.

From the gallery, guests can dive deeper into art exploration in the Artist's Studio to experiment with the intersections of art and science. What does a painting sound like? Listen to a Van Gogh print using robotic frequencies that translate colors into sound waves. Practice shadow techniques using light, texture and mixed media to create a unique masterpiece. Discover what electrical circuits and paint have in common to explore paintings that play musical notes.

Exclusive to Discovery Place is an experience created by celebrated artist Ivan Toth Depeña, known for his use of science, technology and traditional media. In partnership with McColl Center for Visual Art, Depeña has created an opportunity for visitors to become a Van Gogh painting. Using projection-based interactive technology, guests' silhouettes will be digitally 'painted' in Van Gogh's infamous style. To further investigate Depeña's work, explore texture using 3D-printed recreations of Van Gogh's art to understand his infamous brushstroke techniques.

Part of what makes Van Gogh's art so famous today is his life story. While exploring the exhibition, guests will get to meet the artist face-to-face through dramatic interpretation. Guests may encounter Vincent van Gogh himself; Theo van Gogh, younger brother and art dealer to Van Gogh; or Paul Gauguin, the artist who commissioned Van Gogh's famous "Sunflowers" paintings; or even Adeline Ravoux, the daughter of Van Gogh's inn-keeper who modeled for the painting "Portrait of Adeline Ravoux." Their interactions will bring the artist's story to life, giving guests the opportunity to ask questions and interact with history.

For further insight into Van Gogh, the artist and the man, Discovery Place brings to the IMAX® screen Van Gogh: Brush with Genius in The Charlotte Observer IMAX Dome Theatre. Guests will relive Van Gogh's life journey through his letters,

Central Piedmont Community College in Charlotte, NC, Features Works by Andi Steele & Kyle Worthy

Central Piedmont Community College in Charlotte, NC, will present two exhibits including: BURST - Andi Steele, on view in Ross Gallery I, from May 15 through Aug. 7, 2014, and Anyone's Ghost: Kyle Worthy, on view in Ross Gallery II, from May 15 through Aug. 7, 2014. A reception for both exhibits will be held on May 15, from 5-7pm.

Andi Steele is an installation artist working with colored monofilament line. Her installations, which are highly measured and planned, involve stringing the monofilament across her site in order to alter the way visitors interact with the space and with each other. A true hands-on artist, Steele believes that craftsmanship and touching the work are important, taking great care to design and fabricate the pieces, which can involve tying thousands of knots. Because of this unique process, all of her installations are completely one of a kind and specific to their site.

McColl Center for Visual Art in Charlotte, NC, Features Works by Aurora Robson

The McColl Center for Visual Art in Charlotte, NC, will present Aurora Robson: Stayın Alive, on view from May 9 through June 26, 2014. A reception will be held on May 9, from 6-9pm.

Contemporary artist Aurora Robson has a practice that is not only graceful and poetic, but ultimately part of a long-term solution to widespread apathy and nihilism. Robson's transformative practice intercepts from the waste stream plastic debris, excess packaging, and junk mail in order to address urgent issues of consciousness as they relate to our values and the environment.

Aurora Robson: Stayin' Alive is the artist's first major solo exhibition in the Southeast. Featured will be new suspended and wall-mounted works and a site-specific installation assembled from plastic debris. The exhibition's title references a wideawake vigilance, whimsically asking us to consider what exactly staying alive on earth entails? Consider the unnerving fact that all the plastic ever produced still exists and will remain on earth long after we are gone:

how and what we decide should stay alive is perpetually in question. Seemingly inconsequential decisions we make on a daily basis have sweeping impacts both in art and life.

The exhibition will feature previously created works including the massive Be Like Water (2011) in addition to new works created during her residency.

Sozo Gallery in Charlotte, NC, Offers Works by PARTNERS Artists

Sozo Gallery in Charlotte, NC, will present an exhibit by PARTNERS Artists, to help two local charities, on view from May 8 through June 24, 2014. A reception honoring the first of the two charities, Hospice & Palliative Care will be held May 8, from 5:30-8:30pm. A second reception for HeartBright Foundation will be held on May 29, from 5:30-8:30pm. Both events will be catered by local restaurants, Peculiar Rabbit and Bonterra and will be an opportunity to meet the exhibiting artists. Most importantly, Sozo Gallery will donate ten percent of the proceeds from each painting sold to the collector's choice of either charity.

PARTNERS Artist Initiative is composed of ten Charlotte visual artists, emerging and established who connect with communities through opportunities that bring awareness to specific causes. Artists being featured in this special exhibition are Adrian Chu Redmond, Amy Sullivan, Barbara Jamison, Dottie Leatherwood, Fonda Doerre and Libby Smart.

Work by Adrian Redmond

Each artist has a distinctive style and the art in the exhibition ranges from representational to abstract with subject matter just as varied. The artists work in a variety of mediums, from oils to acrylic and mixed media. Adrian Chu Redmond takes simple everyday subjects and gives them life and energy with bold brushstrokes, strong palette knife markings and vivid colors.

Artist Amy Sullivan's intuitive explorations of value and composition bring a fresh and ethereal approach to her mixed media

The founder of the PARTNERS group,

Barbara Jamison, strives to capture the movement and drama of the landscape using strong lights and darks.

Dottie Leatherwood is interested in capturing and preserving the emotion and energy of a moment in time and her paintings often contain vibrant brushwork and strong shapes and patterns.

Working both in acrylic and in oil, Fonda Doerre's paintings reflect her love of color and texture, giving the viewer a sense of peace or joy whether it is an idyllic landscape or a vibrant still life.

Artist Libby Smart's work is recognized by her spontaneous brushwork, diversity of subject matter and candid use of color.

This unique exhibition is truly a marvelous and varied feast for the eyes, yet what pulls it all together is a focus that the PARTNERS artists and Sozo Gallery share for the local Charlotte area. By concentrating on Hospice & Palliative Care Charlotte Region and Heartbright Foundation during this exhibition, Sozo and PARTNERS artists hope to not only showcase and sell wonderful art to benefit these charities but also to bring awareness and support for the important services they provide in the Charlotte community.

Sozo Gallery is tucked in a small storefront on the plaza of the beautiful Hearst Tower in uptown Charlotte. The gallery brings fresh, original artwork from local and national artists to Charlotte collectors. Sozo caters to both experienced art buyers and those just starting their collections.

Rail Walk Gallery in Salisbury, NC, Offers Works by Campagna Society

The Rail Walk Gallery in Salisbury, NC, will present Colore Naturale, featuring works representing the colors of nature by members of the Campagna Society of Artists, on view from May 1 - 31, 2014. A reception will be held on May 2, from 6-8pm.

Work by Regina Burchett

Artists in the Society include: Sharon Forthofer, Walter Stanford, Robert Crum, Regina Burchett, Lin Barnhardt, Marygrace Bianco, Paul Keysar, Mark Stephenson, James Taylor and Todd Baxter.

The name Campagna came from an area where artists worked for years in the mountains, the countryside around Rome. If you go to any museum you will probably find sketches executed in the 19th century whose subject is some element in the very attractive Campagna.

This group was started by Walter Stanford and Lin Barnhardt. The Campagna group "grew out of lone studios into a fellowship of accomplished, working, and exhibiting professional artists—framed with the mutual delights of friendship. The Society started with lunch, breaking bread together, and this fellowship continues as the primary focus of the group. In those early lunches, we reflected on the history of art-making in personal terms and shared experience, always searching for new insights. Exploratory conversation and communication built confidence and courage to [go] further than lunch. We did not have a particular agenda in image or method, but rather a desire for fellowship. We always shared and exchanged information of technical aspects [of] art-making. As we grew in our exploration we began to reflect on artistic courage, relevance of what we were doing individually and what contribution we could make to the wider world of art-making."

Ciel Gallery in Charlotte, NC, Offers a Show Celebrating Spring

Ciel Gallery: A Fine Art Collective in Charlotte, NC, will present Back-to-The-Garden, a whimsical celebration of birds, bees, flowers, trees, Adams and Eves, on view from May 2 - 31, 2014. A reception will be held on May 2, from 6-9pm.

This exhibition marks the six year anniversary of Ciel, which opened in 2008 as the first gallery dedicated to mosaic fine art in the US, and now known as Ciel Gallery A Fine Art Collective, houses a collective of 27 local artists working in a wide range of media in a newly expanded gallery.

Back to the Garden, open to artists across the nation, features the selections of juror Carla Hanzal. An independent curator and writer, Hanzal most recently served as the Curator of Modern and Contemporary Art at the Mint Museum in Charlotte, a position she held for ten years. Hanzal frequently lectures and serves as a juror for national and regional exhibitions. A recipient of a Truman Scholarship as well as a Fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts, Hanzal is currently a trustee of the International Sculpture Center, the publisher of Sculpture magazine.

Hanzal says, "The theme of the garden is rich in associations, evoking a tamed and controlled environment, or a place where the unfolding cycles of nature – life, death and regeneration - may be observed. Thirty works of art were selected from the sixtythree submissions, including a variety of media -painting, sculpture, photography and drawing. # Carolina Gallery in Spartanburg, SC, Offers Works by Robert Logrippo

Carolina Gallery in Spartanburg, SC, is presenting Just the way it is..., an exhibition of recent work by internationally known artist and illustrator Robert Logrippo on view through May 31, 2014.

In 2011, Fungi Magazine announced that "...the magazine of fantasy and weird fiction is celebrating 25...with a cover adorned by the work of fantasy grandmaster Bob Logrippo!"

That his work falls into a Naïve or Primitive stylistic category is simply a matter of convention. Logrippo is neither naïve nor primitive. A former instructor for over a decade at both the Parsons School of Design and the Pratt Institute, he has had his fine art interests represented by the Frank Miele Gallery, and the Jaro Art Gallery, all in New York. His illustration has been awarded 2 Gold Medal Awards and 14 Citations of Merit from the Society of Illustrators.

Commissions for book and magazine illustrations by Balantine, Random House, Dell, MacMillan, Houghton-Mifflin, Redbook, Playboy, Forbes, Cosmopolitan, and Readers Digest and album covers for RCA, Caedmon Records, Electra Records, ABC Records represent but a few of the hundreds of clients that have tapped in to Logrippo's creative talents.

The Balantine Adult Fantasy series "has been considered a high-water mark in fantasy publishing...It also featured cover art by illustrators such as Gervasio Gallardo, Bob Pepper, Robert LoGrippo, and David McCall Johnston." (Wikipedia)

Other notable projects included the original package illustration for Cape Cod Potato Chips, artwork for Celestial Seasonings Tea, and a poster for ABC for the 1984 Summer Olympics.

Much of Logrippo's current work is genre painting: scenes of daily life from the city, nostalgic country stores with pumpkins in front, boats sailing in the harbor. Yet, many of the scenes are fantastical. Hidden elements within the works play cat and mouse with the viewer's expectations. His interpretative map of Charleston is a prime example. A closer inspection of the aerial view of the city shows cows grazing on the battery, a sea serpent in the harbor, a balloon of nudists, and a double self-portrait of Logrippo, once as a plein-air artist painting the cows on the battery, and again hustling a portfolio of his work into an art gallery downtown. Impishly tongue-in-cheek, the work elicits smiles and winks.

Spartanburg Art Museum Organizes Public Art Exhibit Along Main Street in Spartanburg, SC

No Vacancies is a public art exhibition taking place along Main Street in downtown Spartanburg, SC, on view through July 31, 2014. This exhibition is the culmination of a community-wide collaborative process that fills vacant spaces with visual art. The artwork was created by over 35 art and design students from Converse College, Presbyterian College, USC Upstate and Wofford College - all in Spartanburg. What started as an impression for a new comer progressed into a collection of vibrant impressions for the entire community.

The Spartanburg Art Museum has a rich history contributing to Spartanburg's cultural landscape. Today, with a new Executive Director Elizabeth Goddard, the museum is undergoing some strategic changes to better serve the community. Exhibiting art work outside of the museum walls is a new intention and direction for the exhibition program. Goddard recently said, "Inclusion is one of the main charges about the arts as a whole. It is the responsibility of arts and cultural leaders to design programming that is accessible to all citizens."

No Vacancies began as an observation during a walk along Main Street in early September when Goddard landed in Spartanburg. "I was walking around getting my bearings and noticed many vacant and dark spaces along Main Street. How do you transform empty space into portals of visual excitement for everyone who passes by?" You fill them with art work.

The first meeting with college professors was in Nov. 2013. Nine professors from Converse, Wofford, USC Upstate and Presbyterian College came to the Spartanburg Art Museum to discuss the concept and began charting the course. Professors wove the concept into their spring curricula for their students across disciplines. Four commercial real estate brokers and commercial property owners were generous enough to provide these talented students real life exhibition experience by allowing them to install artwork within their empty windows. That generous group includes, Andrew Babb, Greg Graham, Foster Chapman and Tim Satterfield.

The levels of community support have been tremendous. When members of the Spartanburg Young Professionals heard about No Vacancies in late winter, they quickly added the project to a downtown spring cleaning initiative they were previously planning. On the morning of Mar. 22, 2014, more than twenty SYP volunteers came with brooms, sponges, squeegees and buckets and cleaned the interior and exterior of a variety of commercial spaces, including all of those designated for No Vacancies. It is not every day that you have diverse sectors of the community from non-profit, commercial and private business, higher education and young professionals come together to assist in a public art exhibition.

"One of the reasons I love public art, it's 100% inclusive, it lives in the every-day experience of those walking or driving down a street. It provides an unexpected surprise to people who have never been to an art museum or gallery. Art is for everybody and that is good cultural stewardship." No Vacancies received a One Time Project Grant from the South Carolina Arts Commission earlier this spring. Goddard commented, "Support from the state level is a wonderful confirmation that this type of project is providing a relevant experience to not only a group of students and a place, but for hundreds if not thousands of viewers."

The professors who have worked with groups of students this spring semester include: from USC Upstate, Jane Nodine, Dawn Dickins and Michael Dickins; from Wofford College, Kris Neely; from Converse College Greg Mueller and Jane Hughes, and from Presbyterian College, Ann Stoddard. Converse Sculpture Professor, Greg Mueller said," This has been a wonderful opportunity for our sculpture and interior design students to partner on a specific project. We divided students into two teams across disciplines. Early in the semester students presented concepts and worked through the design process. Having them work in a collaborative manner has been a great learning experience for

Artists' Guild of Spartanburg in Spartanburg, SC, Features Works by Doris Turner and Jessica Barnes

The Artists' Guild of Spartanburg in Spartanburg, SC, will present This Is It, featuring an exhibit of works by long-time members Doris Turner and Jessica Barnes, on view in the Artists' Guild Gallery, at Chapman Cultural Center from May 1 - 27, 2014, A reception will be held on May 10, from 5:30-8pm.

Turner and Barnes have been friends for many years. They met on an airplane going to New York to see a Van Gogh art exhibit. When Turner sat beside Barnes and found out that she lived in a tree, Turner immediately took a liking to her new-found friend. Both managed to be somewhat unconventional at times, bossy with plentiful ideas that sometimes clashed, they have cemented a lifelong friendship in which art is the glue. Barnes built a conventional home; Turner has raised a grandchild, and now they are retired and are having fun putting on this

Barnes is into still lifes, as well as plein air painting, and works mostly in oils whereas Turner continues painting trees, people, places, and pets, preferring the immediate effect of acrylics. They both enjoy showing with their long-time group, Southern Exposure.

Turner is retired from teaching art for many years in Cannons Elementary School, but says she is too busy to notice. An active member of the Guild, Southern Exposure, and various arts organizations in Spartanburg, Turner is painting, creating interactive art pieces, showing her work, eating nutritious foods, and exercising to starve off old age. She is planning to retire from childraising when her granddaughter leaves for college and says that even though there will still be the cat and the dog Smiley to deal with, she will have even more time to focus on art and maybe travel.

"Trees have always been a fascination for me. In this show are trees of Converse Heights. The houses just got in the painting. Scary is the noise and activity around cutting down the wonderful old ones. I chose some more trees from my travels for this show, and of course a couple of people got into the act as I also like to paint them," said Turner

Jessica Barnes was born to a South Carolina mother and a North Carolina father, and has an accent that reflects Americana after living in 38 states before finishing high school in Florida. She says that her art went through many "ups and downs" before receiving a bachelor's degree in painting and printmaking from the University of Hawaii. Her intention was to delve into sculpture when she moved to Boston, but ended up teaching instead in public schools for 10 years and then moved to South Carolina where she is now retired from the SC School for the Deaf and the Blind.

Barnes says "This retirement thing is fantastic. I get to paint and read 'till my cup runneth over. This art thing is part of the way I see the world, and I ask do you see what I see? If you don't, it is not important. When someone does, it is like finding a true friend. One of my biggest thrills is to see someone give themselves permission to enjoy and apply their talents. thing."

As long-time members of the Artists' Guild and other community arts organizations, they feel the Spartanburg community has a rich artistic culture. Turner said, "The Artists' Guild of Spartanburg played a major part in welcoming me back to Spartanburg in 1979. It is a pleasure to see it thriving and apparently in good younger hands now. I have participated in most of the shows from Art in the Park on the Converse College fence, to other places. The Artists' Guild Gallery has come a long way from the first one, and we are proud to be showing here. I like it, always free, open and with a large variety of members' work constantly being shown. The newsletters are informative and beautiful. Their outreach has been accomplished in many areas. Everyone knows that Spartanburg artists are exceptionally talented and there are many of them. The Guild gives a core, a platform for them to stand on. The Artists' Guild of Spartanburg makes us all proud and shows that art is indeed important."

Spartanburg Art Museum Features Works by Randy Shull

The Spartanburg Art Museum in Spartanburg, SC, is presenting Out of Line, a solo exhibition by Randy Shull, on view through June 20, 2014.

The exhibition will leave you with a lot of things to think about. This is not your traditional exhibition of paintings and sculptures. Out of Line is a body of work that continues Shull's central exploration of place and dislocation using the contour shape of the USA. With over twenty large scale mixed media pieces this exhibition presents an expanse of ideas that encourages a process of inquiry.

Living and working in both Asheville, NC and Merida, Mexico, the artist moves between countries several times a year. This routine of travel has given the artist many opportunities to observe the predominance of staying in line. Shull explains how one stays in this line for security, that line for passport control, this line for citizens, that line for foreigners, etc."

Shull writes in his artist statement, "We are trained to stay in line beginning in preschool. The reality of staying in line throughout our lives is something I am addressing in this body of work. Which side of line are we on? How did we get there? Can you look over or under the line? Step over the line? Step out of line? What does the line define? When do lines become walls?"

Elizabeth Goddard, Executive Director of the Spartanburg Art Museum, became aware of Shull's work by way of a catalogue of Shull's Channeling the USA when she first started her position back in the fall.

"It took me about a minute once I began turning those pages when I knew this artist was perfect for the exhibition program at SAM. It's contemporary work, which can be challenging for viewers who think of fine art as traditional oil paintings and bronze sculptures". Goddard knows that artwork created today can be made out of any type of material and it can seriously push the boundaries of traditional materials, which Shull does with such large paintings Blurred Interpretation and Simultaneous Pattern.

"The method in which the artist painted these forms was an incredibly inventive process – a process I am not revealing at the moment," Goddard said.

Work by Randy Shull

The scale in which Shull works is impressive. His smaller paintings average 6' and the larger works start at 8'. The largest work Saving Grace is a mixed media piece that spans 12'. The works balance on the fulcrum of humorous and serious. For example the iguana skin stretched over the shape of America in a piece titled, Reptiles Have Small Brains, is a mix of natural history, curiosity and why not? And then on the other hand the ominous work, Brooder is visually the darkest work in the exhibition and has the densest use of materials. Brooder is a mesmerizing tangle of ropes and objects, some order is represented at the edges of the piece, but the dense dark composition tends to keep the eyes centered and searching the interior space.

"I tend to gravitate towards work that has some ties to contemporary culture; political, social, economical or environmental. As with all contemporary art, your inquiry about the work begins with what you already know", Goddard said. For example with Out of Line, the portal of inquiry is, what do you know about the contour shape of the USA? What do you know about the materials Shull uses in his work? These basic questions will offer each viewer a unique and individual response to the artwork. That plurality of responses is exactly how the world works. We each have our impressions and conceptions and they are all valid and respected. Shull states, "Combining a wide range of materials in this exploration I am questioning the notion of what art is.'

RIVERWORKS Gallery in Greenville, SC, Offers Works by Amanda McCadams, Jeremy Hughes, and Justin Rabideau

RIVERWORKS Gallery in Greenville, SC, is presenting Reassigned, an exhibition of works by Amanda McCadams, Jeremy Hughes, and Justin Rabideau, curated by Robert Giese, on view through May 29, 2014. A reception will be held on May 2, from 6-9pm.

These three artists all recycle or reuse materials, imagery or ideas in ways that reassign meaning. Each artist challenges the viewers' associations with the original subjects and influences our interpretation of the new products. Amanda McCadams is a photographer whose work focuses on reassignment through technical innovation. She is currently making chromogenic color prints of abandoned payphones. These images are made with her mobile phone creating an interesting case of documenting an obsolete technology with the very technology that caused its obsolescence.

Jeremy Hughes' paintings reuse and transform concepts and technology. He begins by photographing women, usually friends and acquaintances, then he creates a painting from the photograph, but he infuses appropriated pop-culture references. This reassignment creates a completely new product with its own narrative, changing the meaning of the original photographs, the associations with the women and the associations with the pop-culture references.

Metamorphosis is a major theme in Justin Rabideau's sculptural work. By recycling discarded building materials into new sculptures, he reassigns a delicate, poetic meaning to the materials, while retaining a connection to the past. The viewer is then left to contemplate the meaning of the new work and that meaning's associations with the history of the

Work by Justin Rabideau

Amanda McCadams lives and works in Nashville, TN. She is currently an Interactive Web Designer and formerly she was Department Chair of Photography and Digital Film & Video at the Art Institute of Tennessee.

Jeremy Hughes paints in Atlanta GA. He has taught painting and drawing for the University of Georgia and the State University of New York, Oswego.

Justin Rabideau also lives in Atlanta where he is the Director of the Bernard A. Zuckerman Museum of Art at Kennesaw State University. All three award-winning artists have shown widely in both national and international exhibitions.

Greenville County Museum of Art Features Future Acquisitions & More

Impressionism, the first bombshell launched against academic tradition, defined light as color, becoming the first modern language of paint. Sun-drenched and spontaneous, the 40 American Impressionist paintings from the GCMA collection found in the exhibition Legacy of Impressionism: Languages of Light invite viewers to consider the ideas and techniques that opened the door to modern visual expression. The exhibit is on view through Sept. 21,2014

Ten future Museum acquisitions are featured in the exhibition. These paintings, each with a Southern connection, explore variations on the theme of Impressionistic light. All ten paintings are supported by the Museum's annual fundraising campaign, Art for Greenville, which culminates in a unique celebration of Greenville's genersity: the Antiques, Fine Art and Design Weekend, to be held Oct. 17-19, 2014.

One of the most advanced painters and teachers working at the beginning of the last quarter of the 19th century was Kentucky born Frank Duveneck (1848-1919). After enrolling in the Royal Academy of Munich at the age of 22, the precocious young artist progressed rapidly, and a host of talented American expatriates were drawn to him and his own fledgling Munich school.

Future masters of American Impressionism, including William Merritt Chase and John H. Twachtman, joined the "Duveneck Boys," as the group became known, traveling and painting with their mentor in Germany and Italy through the latter half of the 1870s. Duveneck's masterful Steps of the Riva, circa 1880, is one of his finest achievements and depicts the watery highway of St. Mark's Basin, the venerable stone facades and grand promenade of the Riva degli Schiavoni.

Another Kentuckian, Andrew Thomas Schwartz (1867-1942) took classes with Frank Duveneck at the Cincinnati Art Academy before attending the Art Students Page 42 - Carolina Arts, May 2014

League in New York. Schwartz became one of the most acclaimed architectural muralists in the United States, enjoying success with public and private commissions. Bathers, circa 1920, conveys his mastery of large-scale compositions and is typical of the artist's panoramic treatment of the landscape imagined from an aerial perspective.

Augustus Koopman (1869-1914), a nave of Charlotte, NC, attended the Pe sylvania Academy of the Fine Arts before moving to Europe in 1887. Koopman's grand Self Portrait, circa 1907, was probably completed during one of his excursions to Venice or nearby Chioggia, and stands as a summation of his years of portrait painting. Literally larger than life (the artist's passport described him as only 4 feet, 8½ inches tall), it is a tour de force that orchestrates muscular draftsmanship and unusual deep, glowing color combinations.

Having lost his father early in the Civil War, Gaines Ruger Donoho (1857-1916) was taken by his mother from the Mississippi cotton plantation where he was born to Vicksburg. After the war the family settled in Washington, DC, and Donoho was educated and later employed as a draftsman in the Office of the United States Architect. Drawn to a career as an artist, Donoho frequented artist communities in the Paris suburbs, such as Barbizon near the Forest of Fontainebleau. Consistently reflecting the distinct influence of the Barbizon painters, Donoho's work of the period is marked by

Mississippi-born Kate Freeman Clark (1875-1957) left her native Holly Springs, chaperoned by her mother, to enroll at the Art Students League. Over the next 20 years she studied with some of the most important teachers of the era, including John H. Twachtman and William Merritt Chase. She left the Art Students League for Chase's new school in Manhattan and spent six summers with him at Shinnecock. When Clark began submitting her plein air landscapes to competitive exhibitions, she enjoyed significant success, showing at the National Academy of Design, the Carnegie Institute, and other major museums. Some scholars speculate that she exhibited under the gender-neutral name of "Freeman Clark" to avoid a presumed anti-female bias. Most likely, however, she concealed her identity because of pressure from her family, who discouraged her aspirations for an independent career as a professional artist.

While the American South contributed the considerable talents of its native artists, it also inspired visiting painters with its exotic landscape and indigenous culture. Charleston, SC, with its picturesque Lowcountry environs became a popular destination for a number of American Impressionists immediately before and after World War I.

Alson Skinner Clark (1876-1949) was one of the earliest Impressionists to visit Charleston. His sojourn there in the spring of 1917 produced radiant treatments of such sacred and profane subjects as St. Michael's, Charleston and Philadelphia Alley. Clark's contemporaneous paintings drew timely attention to Charleston's precious architectural assets.

Alfred Hutty (1877-1954) and Ivan Summers (1886-1964), two Midwesternborn artists working in the Woodstock, NY, art colony, found that Charleston provided gainful seasonal employment and a respite from hard Northeastern winters. Before he began teaching at Charleston's Gibbes Museum School in 1920, Hutty had already achieved acclaim for his sun-drenched Impressionist landscapes, typified by Snow, Woodstock, circa 1920. After finishing the 1924 session, Hutty relinquished the Gibbes position to Summers, who taught during the winters of 1925 and 1926. During his short tenure in Charleston he finished a few small oils of colorful gardens and modest rural settings, such as Plantation Cabin, Charleston, circa 1925, that were richly rendered with classic Impressionist brushwork.

Another art colony denizen, Wilson Irvine (1869-1936), visited Charleston around 1930. By the time he visited Charleston, Irvine had developed an unusual technique that mimicked the effects of light refracted through a prism. He applied this method to Charleston street subjects found in the historic district as well as to Lowcountry genre scenes he observed at the Cheeha-Combahee Plantation, a parcel of 10,000 acres that was assembled and purchased in 1929 by industrialist Frederic B. Pratt, President of Pratt Institute in Brooklyn.

The natural beauty of the Lowcountry's rivers, lagoons, ancient live oaks, and brilliant azalea gardens repeatedly drew William P. Silva (1859-1948), a native of nearby Savannah, GA. Silva dedicated himself to painting at the age of 48. He studied French Impressionism firsthand in Paris, exhibited there, and, although he settled permanently in the Carmel, CA, art colony in 1913, he was active throughout his career in the Southern States Art League and often returned to paint in the picturesque coastal areas of South Carolina and Georgia. Reminiscent of Monet's famed studies of haystacks and cathedral facades, Silva's Sunrise Through the Fog, Runnymede, 1931, was one of a series of Lowcountry plantation paintings that explored in endless variations the atmospheric effects of heat and humidity on color and form.

The Greenville County Museum of Art is located in the center of downtown Greenville's cultural campus, Heritage Green.

Burroughs - Chapin Arts Museum in Myrtle Beach, SC, Offers Works Focused on Australian Crater Art

The Franklin G. Burroughs • Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum, in Myrtle Beach, SC, is presenting Track of the Rainbow Serpent: Australian Aboriginal Paintings of the Wolfe Creek Crater, which will be on display through Sept. 14, 2014.

In the Western Desert of Australia is a massive crater nearly 3,000 feet in diameter, created by a meteorite believed to have weighed some 50,000 tons. Aboriginal Australians called the crater Kandimalal; in their "Dreamtime" (i.e., creation) legends, the crater had been formed by the passage of a rainbow snake out of the earth. Identified as a meteor crater in 1947 by American geologist Frank Reeves, the crater - one of the continent's most acclaimed geologic features - is now known as Wolfe Creek

When Reeves' daughter, anthropologist Dr. Peggy Reeves Sanday, first visited the crater in 1999, she learned that it was part of the traditional territory of several Aboriginal groups - but that, as "traditional owners" of the crater, they were forbidden from speaking openly of their sacred knowledge of the site. They did, however, agree to share their stories through collaborative paintings. Sanday's quest for a perspective on the meteor crater evolved into an exploration of Aboriginal aesthetics and cosmology, where the Rainbow Serpent plays a pivotal role as the primary creative agent of not only the crater but of all features of the natural environment.

Out of this collaboration came an exhibition titled *Track of the Rainbow Serpent:*Australian Aboriginal Paintings of the Wolfe Creek Crater. This exhibition was organized by the University of Pennsylvania of Archaeology and Anthropology from the collection of Peggy Sanday.

Curated by Dr. Sanday herself, the exhibit comprises 19 paintings which portray the "Dreamtime" stories of the origins of the Aboriginals' ancestral lands, with most describing the creation of the crater. Works by different artists portray subtle variations in the story, depending on who is doing the telling. Commentary by the curator explains and interprets these stories.

The Aboriginal paintings in the exhibition, painted in acrylic on canvas, were created in a range of sizes, shapes and colors, from vibrant to earthy. Some offer images that bring the viewer in from an aerial perspective. Also included are regional Aboriginal art and stories not directly related to the Wolfe Creek Crater but rich in the native people's complex worldview.

New Elements Gallery in Wilmington, NC, Features Works by Kevin Bass and Kristen Dill

New Elements Gallery in Wilmington, NC, is presenting Organic Matter, an exhibition about nature and its elements by Raleigh, NC, artists Kevin Bass and Kristen Dill, on view through May 17, 2014.

Work will include both abstract and impressionistic paintings using form, color and texture to convey the artists' vision; each achieving very different yet complementary

Work by Kevin Bass

Kevin Bass is inspired by exploring his natural environment. He takes in his surroundings and transfers those thoughts, feelings and images to the canvas. Using forceful colors and a combination of natural minerals and found resources such as mica, pumice and sand mixed into the paint, Bass achieves a rich textured quality. Multiple layers of paint are added and removed to the canvas to create depth within each work.

Kristen Dill's favorite activity as an artist is to paint outdoors. Her paintings are quickly created as she wants to accurately depict her subject in the natural sunlight. This immediacy gives her pieces a lively, fresh feeling. Dill's vibrant color choices reveal an intense response to nature. "I am drawn to paint something because of stimulus, which may be a unique shape, or an evocation of a feeling. The painting becomes an expression which crystallizes psychological insight.'

painting longer so to accommodate for new ideas."

"My style of painting involves creating a complicated background of hundreds of grids of varying colors," adds Micah. "When done, the background will loosely look the intended composition. From there I concentrate on adding detail to segments of the painting. This method allows me the most expression because different parts are all done at different times. For example, a typical landscape composition might have twenty different trees. Painting all the trees during the same session will tend to create too many similarities and thus a boring composition. Patience and time allows my paintings to reflect my varying emotions and moods and in a strange way create a sense of balance and harmony in what are sometimes very detailed and confusing compositions."

Mullen learned to paint by being immersed in art for most of his life. His father taught art at the college level for over three decades and continues his passion in his retirement. Micah received a Bachelor's degree from SUNY Brockport and later a Master's degree from Duquesne University. He currently lives in Raleigh, NC.

Sunset River Marketplace in Calabash, NC, Features Garden Inspired Artworks

Sunset River Marketplace in Calabash, NC, is featuring Garden Inspirations: Think Outside the Boxwood, on view through May 31, 2014, owner Ginny Lassiter has announced. The exhibition includes work from 25 of the gallery's exhibiting artists along with Lassiter's collection of furniture and other garden pieces.

Lassiter, who is also a creative consultant and designer, says, "I love to repurpose furniture. One of the pieces in the show is a rustic painted potting bench that would also make a wonderful sideboard or bar in the right setting. That's what this show is about. It's also an exciting opportunity to bring some of our floral artists and potters to the forefront."

Clay art plays a major role in Garden Inspirations. A whimsical clay garden glove by A.J. Kessee hangs on the potting bench. Ceramic suns by potters Betsy Parker and Jamie Futera shine both indoors and out. Jane Truesdale and Janice Wyckoff have created clay bird nests to further blur the lines between your house and garden.

On the walls hang garden favorites such as Gloriosa Superba, oil by Celia Wester; Geraniums, watercolor by Janet Dixon; Sunflowers, photography by Louis Aliotta; Red Carnations, oil by the late Ramona Bendin; and Red Petunia, watercolor by Ed Harris. ## Hillsborough Gallery of Arts in Hillsborough, NC, Offers Works by Arianna Bara, Pat Lloyd, & Pat Merriman

The Hillsborough Gallery of Arts in Hillsborough, NC, will present The Fifth Element, featuring metalsmith jewelry by Arianna Bara, turned wood by Pat Lloyd, and paintings by Pat Merriman, on view from May 26 through June 22, 2014. A reception will be held on May 30, from 6-9pm.

What is the Fifth Element? Each artist continued above on next column to the right | describes it a little differently - void, spirit, thought or path, creative energy, inventiveness, intuition, the "here" or center, a signal that the soul is speaking.

For Pat Lloyd it began with a journey to the Portland Japanese Gardens last fall. "The guide pointed out a large Japanese stone lantern and described the 5 traditional elements in Japanese Buddhism: Earth,

Work by Pat Lloyd

Water, Fire, Wind and Void. I was most intrigued by this Fifth Element of Void. Void represents spirit, thought, creative energy and inventiveness. In the Navaho culture, their fifth direction (read: element) represents the 'here,' or the center."

This past year has been a struggle for Lloyd to find her way through some physical challenges that temporarily limited her ability to turn wood and she needed to find new ways to express her creativity. Woodturning was set aside, and photography took the lead. Then, says Lloyd, "a chance encounter led to my discovery of Kumihimo braiding and braided jewelry design. Once I let go of the need to control the uncontrollable, I was able to release the creative energy and inventiveness resident in my inner spirit, in that Fifth Element of Void. The discovery and exploration of the ancient art of Kumihimo braiding gave me a new voice.'

"In this new year, I am back to woodturning, with a renewed energy and passion. And the discovery of Kumihimo that energized that creative emptiness last year has taken on a life of its own. Kumihimo design is filled with endless possibilities. Of course, photography continues to influence my everyday life. Some days it is just hard to know what to do first, it's such a blessing."

Work by Arianna Bara

Metalsmith Arianna Bara, brings together all five elements in her jewelry. "The metal is extracted from the earth, air (wind) is needed to fuel the flame (fire), which is used to connect metal to metal. Water is used to cool metal after heating. The fifth element, creative energy or inspiration, is what the metalsmith contributes to the process. My pieces for the Fifth Element show are inspired by the five elements and the characteristics attributed to each. The Fire element, for example, represents energy and passion, and the stones and metal textures I used in my piece reflect that."

Bara describes one of the pieces for the show: "In the pendant I created for Spirit, I paired a glowing champagne pearl with an agua nueva agate, and set them on a swirling sterling silver arched background. To me this piece is about the energy of the creative process."

Work by Pat Merriman

For painter Pat Merriman, the Fifth Element is a signal of the soul speaking. "It seems to come at the beginnings - like a blank canvas or a fresh sheet of paper; or during transitions of anxiety about which path to take - like shape versus color decisions. And finally, perhaps, when an artist knows a piece is finished. Maybe it is also the 'Aha' moment that mindfully moves me, the artist, on a new path."

Her reading led Merriman to the philosophy of ancient Chinese poet and philosopher Lao-Tzu, who wrote: "Accept what is in front of you without wanting the situation to be other than it is. Study the natural order of things and work with it rather than against it, for to try to change what is only sets up resistance.... If we watch carefully, we will see that work proceeds more quickly and easily if we stop 'trying,' if we stop putting in so much extra effort, if we stop looking for results. In the clarity of a still and open mind, truth will be reflected. ... In other words: Simply be."

Says Merriman, "Often when painting, I get lost in time – in the zone – which is the process of painting without inner criticism. On the following day comes the critique, though often it is minor: redrawing some lines, heightening some color splashes, accenting or softening edges. When, on day one or two, I play with colors and shapes, I am in the Fifth Element."

Founded in 2006, the Hillsborough Gallery of Arts (HGA) is owned and operated by 22 local artists. HGA represents established artists, accomplished in their fields, exhibiting modern and contemporary fine art and fine craft. Represented media include painting, sculpture, ceramics, photography, fiber, jewelry, glass, metal, mosaics, enamel and wood.

FRANK Gallery in Chapel Hill, NC, Features Drawing and Print Works

FRANK Gallery in Chapel Hill, NC, will present GRAPHIC: Drawings & Prints, on display from May 6 through July 5, 2014.

The exhibition highlights the fascinating and diverse range of imagery made possible by these two fine art forms. The selected artists' works demonstrate the exciting diversity of image making using various printmaking and drawing techniques combined with the artists' personal vision.

As you walk through the gallery you are energized with the spirit, depth and rich variety of the work. Stunning drawings by artists Jenny Eggleston and Jillian Dickson, while both artists use similar drawing tools their works are polar opposites in style and technique. While Eggleston uses gently moving curvilinear graphite lines to Pati Scobey's intimate, dreamlike 'Seed Portraits' and Bill Fick's well-known narrative satire, which draws on elements of comics, cartoons and popular culture.

The show features the work of special guest artists including: Kelly Adams, Tamie Beldue, Mark Brown, Jillian Dickson, Jenny Eggleston, Michael Ehlbeck, Bill Fick, Aaron Foster, David Morrison and Pati Scobey. Roger Shimomura, Peregrine Honig and Akio Takamori will show work courtesy of The Lawrence Lithography Workshop. TLLW is a fine art print publisher producing original lithographs for over 30 years in the Crossroads Art District of Kansas City, MO.

Juried entries from FRANK members and consignors will also be included.

To accompany this exciting exhibition, FRANK has reached out into the community to inspire anyone with a pen or pencil to create a drawing. The Postcard Project, a companion exhibit to GRAPHIC: Drawings & Prints, will be on display throughout the duration of this exhibition. The Postcard Project is intended to give the public the opportunity to draw, and share their work at FRANK. Two thousand post cards were distributed throughout the Triangle.

A reception to celebrate The Postcard Project will be held Thursday, May 22 at the gallery. See all the drawings and meet all the people who participated.

Luna Lee Ray Studio in Chapel Hill, NC, Offers Mother's Day Weekend Art Show - May 10-11

On Mother's Day weekend, four established local artists - Luna Lee Ray, Cathy Kiffney, Jean LeCluyse and Mirinda Kossoff – will host a show and sale at Luna Lee Ray's home studio and garden, in Chapel Hill, NC, on May 10 – 11, 2014, from 10am-5pm, Saturday and noon-5pm, Sunday. The artists will offer a delightful selection of paintings, drawings, ceramics, prints and jewelry in a working studio and garden setting.

Each artist exhibits work at FRANK Gallery and in numerous other venues. Ray is well known as a mixed media artist and painter whose subject matter focuses on the natural world. LeCluyse's drawings and paintings are recognizable for their rich detail. Kiffney focuses on hand-built ceramic wall works, vessels and art tiles, based on her theme of an imagined Eden. Kossoff, a jeweler, creates her pieces with fine silver and detailed textures, often mixing metals and stones.

Ray's studio is located at 101 The Hollow, Chapel Hill, NC, and is conveniently located two miles from downtown Carrboro

The Carrack Modern Art in Durham, NC, Features Smartphone Art Exhibit

The Carrack Modern Art in Durham, NC, is presenting interface || interference - experience filtered by smartfones, juried by Smartphone Art Show, on view through May 10, 2014. Receptions will be held on May 2 and May 9, from 7-10pm and an Artist Talk will be offered on May 8, from

The smartphone is ubiquitous in our culture. And anything that changes us the way our smartphones have, and continue to do, demands artistic attention and exposition. Historically, artists have used tools like the Claude Glass (also referred to as a Black Mirror), Camera Lucida and Camera Obscura to help perceive the world differently through filters, reflections, superimpositions and projections of their surroundings, as a way to inform their artistic process.

The Claude Glass of today is the smartphone, which goes far beyond just filtering and reflecting an artist's perceptions but informing and transforming our experience in reality.

The artwork selected for this show explores our relationships with our smartphones...and our relationships with other humans, when the smartphone acts as our interface or interference with them. We are exposing the smartphone's role in our experience of intimacy, perception, emptiness, comfort, vanity, connection and disconnection, whether positive or negative.

And from this point forward we wonder, how will life with smartphones be different in a year? or two?

Before, during and after the show, we strongly encourage everyone - artists, participants, observers - to help document their experience with our show using the hashtag #INTERFF. Post a photo of someone hugging Jing Niu's plush iPhone, retweet the truths or lies you tell to Fernanda Duarte, physically tag yourself by wearing an #IN-TERFF button, post a Vine of Eric Raddatz in the process of creating a new piece for his #selfies series. All of the media generated by this show, using #INTERFF, will be incorporated into a future piece for the next Smartphone Art Show.

The Carrack Modern Art in Durham, NC, Features Works by Elsa Hoffman

The Carrack Modern Art in Durham, NC, will present Buried in Light and Shadow, an installation style display of metal and wood by Elsa Hoffman, on view from May 16 -24, 2014. A reception will be held on May 16, from 7-10pm and a gallery talk will be given on May 22, beginning at 7pm.

Hoffman is a wood and metal worker based in Chapel Hill, NC. With a handheld plasma cutter, she transforms thin sheets of salvaged metal into 2 and 3-dimentional designs including lights, sculpture and furniture. Using her skills as a trained woodworker, she artfully combines wood and metal, embracing and highlighting the imperfect beauty of the rusted metal and the gestural lines created with the plasma cutter.

Entering Buried in Light and Shadow is like entering a tomb. In the center of the darkly lit gallery, a coffin made out of intricately cut metal, glows with light. A flying hawk and running leopard propel the viewer into the space. The illumination of the work casts shadows and light, expanding the pieces beyond their physical dimensions. Hoffman's work, created from scrap sheets of metal and wood, evokes a sense of strength and fragility. The focus of the darkened space is not about mourning death but rather the vibrancy of life.

Hoffman grew up in the woods in Efland, NC. She attended Oberlin College 2006-2010 where she earned a double major in studio art and environmental studies. She moved back to the piedmont area four years ago where she has a small farm and works at the White Cross Woodworkers cooperative. She makes a living building custom furniture and metal designs and selling vegetables.

The Carrack Modern Art is a zero commission, community run art space in downtown Durham.

NC Museum of Natural Sciences in Raleigh Offers Works by April Flanders

The beauty-battle rages on between natives and invasive species in April Flanders' new show Beyond their Borders at the NC Museum of Natural Sciences' Nature Art Gallery, from May 2 - 26, 2014. A reception will be held on May 2, from 6-8pm.

Flanders holds a Master's of Fine Arts in printmaking from Arizona State University. She has held numerous solo exhibitions at galleries across the United States and her work has been featured in group shows at museums and galleries nationally and internationally, including the Center for the Book Arts in New York, NY, and the Anna Leonowens Gallery in Nova Scotia, Canada. Her work can be seen in several public collections, including the Scottsdale Museum of Contemporary Art and the Tucson Museum of Art in Tucson, AZ, and the Turchin Center for the Visual Arts in Boone, NC.

Flanders teaches full time at Appalachian State University in Boone, having taught printmaking for 13 years at various universities both nationally and internationally. Her current work addresses the issue of native versus invasive animal and botanical species and highlights a variety of media including printmaking, painting, drawing and installation.

"Relying on the visual language of seduction, I create work where viewers are confronted by their own attraction to the beauty of an ultimately destructive organism," says Flanders. "Using pattern, repetition, and layered color I seduce the viewer, luring them into a garden of exotics. Chosen for their exotic beauty, non-native species regularly escape their confines. Unfortunately, they often thrive and ultimately take over, becoming invasive, choking out native forest plants and animals and undermining natural ecosystems. The result is a globalized landscape that means an inexorable death for native species."

Walter Greer Gallery, at the Arts Center of Coastal Carolina, 14 Shelter Cove Lane, Hilton Head Island. Through May 3 - "Florals and Facades, Light and Shadow," featuring works by Margaret Crawford. A unique style of watercolor painting has been a long time focus for Crawford. Her dramatic floral portraits combine abstraction and realism to reflect the artist's fascination with the play of light and shadow on her subjects. May 8 - June 1 - "Cycles of Vitality: Ceramic Sculpture by Janis Wilson Hughes". A reception will be held on May 8, from 5-7pm and a Artist Talk on May 9, beginning at 6pm. Hughes' work draws inspiration from various cycles in nature: seasons of planting and harvesting, the migration of birds, the ebb and flow of the tide, changing phases of the moon, and our own arc from infancy to old age. With the Appalachian woods as her childhood playground, Hughes watched the forces of nature both build up and tear down life in an endless cycle. Today the themes of Hughes' work encompass both celebrating the protective shells of latent, dormant life personified in her seed pod sculptures as well as exploring the open spaces created through the weathering of time as embodied in her Traverse pots. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 10am-4pm. Contact: 843/681-5060 or at (www.artleaguehhi.org).

ALTERNATE ART SPACES - North Charleston Green Space, at intersection of East Montague Ave. and Spruill Ave., North Charleston. Through May 16 - "Untitled by Jordon Fowler". Standing at approximately eight feet tall, this abstract piece centers on the ideas of illusion and balance. Stylistically carved wooden blocks are carefully stacked in such a way that they appear to defy gravity. Hours: daylight hours. Contact: 843/740-5854, at (www.northcharleston.org) or visit (http://northcharlestonartsfest.com/).

Joy...Dance by Arianne King Comer

North Charleston City Hall, 2500 City Hall Lane, North Charleston. Lobby, Through May 16 - "Student Sculpture". Cultural Arts Department student intern, Caxton Beaty, pays homage to the unceasing patience and loyalty of canine companions with her sculpture, "Happy Dogface". Carved from wood, the piece is a portrait of her own nine year old dog, Darwin, whose stoic persona has made him the perfect subject for a number of her drawings, paintings, and photographs. 1st & 2nd floors, Through June 20 - "JOY! – 8th Annual African American Fiber Art Exhibition". This annual, juried exhibit showcases art quilts created by African American fiber artists from throughout the US. The 8th installment features works inspired by the emotion of joy. Joy can be seen in the eyes of a child or felt while dancing; it can be heard in an exuberant holler when we hear fantastic news or in a squeal of delight when receiving a surprise gift. Joy can be expressed in many ways and this year's theme challenged artists to show the world their joy through a variety of traditional and non-traditional fiber techniques. Selections were made by award-winning and nationally exhibiting textile artist, Torreah "Cookie" Washington. 2nd floor. Through June 20 - "Nature's Palette - Works by Charlynn M. Knight". Professional water media artist and native Charlestonian. Charlynn M. Knight, creates paintings that depict the beauty of the everyday. Her approach with watermedia captures the "glow" and vibrant colors and textures of her subjects, which include the marsnes, avenues of oaks, architecture, beaches, and Deep South beauty and charm that the South Carolina Lowcountry has to offer. Knight currently provides art instruction in North Charleston schools and for community groups as the City's Artist-in-Residence. Her work has been published in "International Artist Magazine" and her paintings are featured in several private and corporate collections, including the City of North Charleston's Public Art Collection. Through June 20 - "2nd Annual Wearable Art Competition & Exhibition". This unique exhibition showcases inspiring designs in the form of wearable art garments, ensembles, and accessories by emerging and established designers and wearable art artists from across the nation. Wearable art pieces in a variety of styles created through diverse techniques and materials will be on display and available for sale. Awards were determined by renowned textile artist, Torreah "Cookie" Washington, who specializes in quilted fiber art murals, elegant wedding gowns, unique soft accessories for special occasions, and Goddess blessing dolls. 3rd floor, Through June 20 - "Landscapes of Mozart & Beethoven - Works by Gingi Martin". Most of Gingi Martin's art is dedicated to an ongoing thesis tribute to Ludwig van Beethoven and, more recently, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart. In the exhibition, she presents a display of introspective oil paintings and found-object sculpture inspired by the lives and music of these famed Classical and Romantic Era composers. Her interpretation of landscapes is not representational, but rather what results from listening to music, walking in Nature, depicting places Beethoven and Mozart lived or roamed, and through the process of creating the art itself. Martin received a Bachelor of Arts in Music and Art from Hiram College (Hiram, OH), and a Master of Fine Arts from the College of Imaging Arts and Sciences at the Rochester Institute of Technology (Rochester, NY). Her work has been exhibited in venues throughout NY, PA, and SC, and has received numerous awards. Through June 20 - "Becoming Southern Steampunk - Works by Lillian Trettin". Trettin specializes in contemporary narrative art inspired by Southern literature and lore, shaped by memories of growing up in Appalachia and her fondness for speculative fiction. In this exhibit, Trettin presents a series of work about personal transformation and reckoning with one's heritage. Multi-media portraits of the artist's alter ego reflect the process of resolving a conflicted sense of Southern Womanhood. Progressing from static to active images, Trettin's works of cut-paper collage and collographic and silkscreened prints reflect her process of reexamining southern heritage; learning to embrace some aspects and leave others behind. Lillian has exhibited in SC, NC, and VA, and her work can be found in a number of collections throughout the Carolinas, Michigan, Texas, and Washington, DC. Through June 20 - "Pieces - Works by Maribel Acosta". Acosta is a Cuban born visual artist, actress, director, and educator. Her passion for the visual and performing arts has always motivated her to express ideas and feelings, and has pushed her to play with space and translate ideas both physically and through imagery. Each object, each place, and each color in her work has a story. Her characters are travelers who discover spaces, elements, landscapes, and feelings. In this exhibition, Acosta presents a collection of mixed media works made using acrylic on canvas, with added elements of linocut, xylography, and textures in oil and chalk pastels. Each piece shows the vision of the artist in every place that she has passed, and in every city where she has lived. That vision has recently taken root in Charleston, the place that most captivates her and reminds her of her native Havana. The exhibit will also include works from a new series called Masks and Wings, inspired by the topic of honesty and human relations. Acosta received her training as a visual artist from The National Academy of Fine Arts San Alejandro, the oldest and most prestigious fine arts school in Cuba. Her work has been exhibited in Cuba, Ecuador, France, and the US. Hours: daily 8am-8pm. Contact: 843/740-0854, at (www.nortnchaneston.org) of (http://northcharlestonartsfest.com/).

North Charleston & American LaFrance Fire Museum and Educational Center Lobby, May 2 - 10 - "Youth Photography Exhibition". Seventh grade students from Jerry Zucker Middle School of Science will display photographic posters inspired by a fieldtrip to the Dorchester #5 Fire Station and created through the Yo Art! Project. Yo Art, Inc. is both an in-school and after-school mentoring program with an academic focus that works to build self-esteem, job skills, and a sense of community through computer art workshops, exhibitions, and public art projects. FREE (does not include Museum admission). Hours: Mon.-Sat., 10am-5pm & Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 843/740-5854, at (www.northcharleston.org) or visit (http://northcharlestonartsfest.com/).

North Charleston & American LaFrance Fire Museum and Educational Center Grounds, Through May 16 - "Day of the Dead Fish by Tommy Fox". This vibrant, blue fiberglass fish celebrates the bounty of marine life that sustains the Lowcountry year after year. Decorated with a stylized mustache and a fancy sombrero, and surrounded by a bed of spring flowers, the piece is reminiscent of sugar skulls, or calaveras, which are the colorfully embellished skull shaped candies and clay toys associated with Day of the Dead celebrations. Hours: daylight hours. Contact: 843/740-5854, at (www.northcharleston.org) or visit (http://northcharlestonartsfest.com/).

Northwoods Park Community Center, 8348 Greenridge Road, North Charleston. Through May 16 - "Ghost by Nicholas Albia". In our world of mass communication, we always seem to be in conversation. But, how many of us are actually listening? This abstract seated figure created from welded steel pipes is inspired by those that listen, and dedicated to those that truly hear the message. Hours: daylight hours. Contact: 843/740-5854, at (www.northcharleston.org) or visit (http://northcharlestonartsfest.com/).

Palmetto Gardens Park, East Montague Avenue, North Charleston. Through May 16 - "Fat Dino by Caxton Beaty". For many, the brontosaurus is a creature of childhood memories dating back to the days of second grade science class. Its depictions in books and movies as a gentle giant made it a star in the world of dinosaurs, despite paleontological research that proves it never existed. This nine foot tall, playful and plump portrayal of the iconic "thunder lizard" is a play on the scientific controversy surrounding the brontosaurus, which is now nothing more than a fun-loving fictional character. Hours: daylight hours. Contact: 843/740-5854, at (www.northcharleston.org) or visit (http://northcharlestonartsfest.com/).

Quarterman's Lake at Buist Ave. and Spruill Ave., North Charleston. Through May 16 - "Subterranean Lizard by Austin Abt". Visitors to Park Circle's neighborhood duck pond will find a visitor emerging from the soil to bask in the spring sun. This friendly-looking reptile is made to be interactive, designed with a solar powered motion sensor that triggers a clicking noise from the creature's mouth, simulating a form of reptilian communication with the viewer. Hours: daylight hours. Contact: 843/740-5854, at (www.northcharleston.org) or visit (http://northcharlestonartsfest.com/).

An Ode to Architectural Form by Jordan Krutsch

Riverfront Park, 1001 Everglades Dr., The Navy Yard at Noisette (former Charleston Naval Base), North Charleston. May 10 - Mar. 31, 2015 - "National Outdoor Sculpture Competition & Exhibition". View 11 thought provoking, outdoor sculptures by established and emerging artists from across the nation in this 9th annual juried competition and exhibition. Eleven artists from six different states were selected by the juror, Brad Thomas, Director of Residencies & Exhibitions at the McColl Center in Charlotte, NC. A number of the pieces on display are available for purchase. Hours: daylight hours. Contact: 843/740-5854 or at (www.northcharleston.org).

Thomas M. Evans Sr. Community Center, 7801 Dorchester Road, North Charleston.
Through May 16 - "I Scream, You Scream by Bailey Amick". Color, texture, and a touch of whimsy are the key components in this sculpture depicting a gigantic ice cream cone with a doomed fate. The playful, pop art piece is sure to elicit an "Aww," both for its playful nature and because we can all relate to the feeling of dropping an ice cream cone in the dirt. Hours: daylight hours. Contact: 843/740-5854, at (www.northcharleston.org) or visit (http://northcharlestonartsfest.com/).

Traffic Circle, at Wescott Blvd. and Oak Forest Blvd., North Charleston. Through May 16 - "Untitled by Edward Byrd". This dynamic, life-size sculpture is both an exploration of the concept of man vs. nature and an exercise in depicting the human form in the state of extreme physical exertion. Two figures appear interlocked, engaged in combat on a platform simulating a boxing ring. One figure is made of cedar wood fashioned to depict human anatomy, while the second is made to resemble a mechanical or robotic form with a body constructed of welded steel rods and aluminum plates. Hours: daylight hours. Contact: 843/740-5854, at (www.northcharleston.org) or visit (http://northcharlestonartsfest.com/).

Rock Hill

Center for the Arts, 121 East Main St., Rock Hill. Dalton Gallery, May 2 - June 15 - "Strange Commonplace," featuring an exhibition featuring three ceramic artists – Scott Zeigler, Diana Farfan, and Lucy Bailey. A reception will be held on May 22, beginning at 6pm. Through his work, Scott Ziegler provides an introspective look into his past experiences. The process of creating each work allows Ziegler to face his past, breaking free from its constraints, he finds the light, and begins to heal. In creating her marionettes, puppets and dolls, Diana Farfan begins a discourse on the human condition, self-image, the projection of self, and the revelation of human emotions. For Lucy Bailey, working in ceramics offers the perfect balance of possibilities and limitations. Her works often make reference to the natural world, sometimes incorporating bones, bugs, shells and other artifacts of nature. Cone 10 Studios, 1080-B Morrison Drive, in the heart of NoMo, Charleston. May 26 - June 8 - "Walls Do Not Breathe," a Piccolo Spoleto exhibition. A reception will be held on May 29, from 5-8pm. Cone 10 Studios and the Coastal Carolina Orchid Society (CCOS) are joining to explore the diversity and environment of orchids. Thousands of species grow in different climates all around the world. The diversity of shapes, sizes, scents and color allow experimentation with the orchid's container. Cone 10 Studios members are invited to explore the possibilities of ceramic vessels as orchid containers. Vessels will be juried by Warwick Jones. CCOS board member and published author and Andrea Schenk, art provocateur. Each selected vessel will be paired with an orchid and installed in the gallery by Julie Ward, CCOS President and Cone 10 members. Ongoing - A studio and gallery of local potters and sculptors. We also offer classes in beginning to intermediate wheel throwing and clay sculpture. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 11am-5pm & Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 843/853-3345 or at (www.cone10studios.com).

Corrigan Gallery, 62 Queen Street, Charleston. May 2 - June 10 - "Look Back," featuring new works by Joe Walters. A reception will be held on May 2, from 5-8pm. Walters revisits his earlier work and gives us a look back over time with layered references. Born in 1952 in Kentucky, Walters earned a MFA from East Carolina University and began working in Rock Hill in 1989. He moved to Charleston in 1995 and has been hard at work ever since. This critically acclaimed and successful artist's sculptures (and works on paper) appeal across the board - his work is easy to relate to by all. Ongoing - Contemporary fine art including paintings, photography, prints and sculpture. Now showing works by Manning Williams, Richard Hagerty, Joe Walters, Sue Simons Wallace, Gordon Nicholson, John Moore, William Meisburger, Mary Walker, Kristi Ryba, Paul Mardikian, Kevin Bruce Parent and Judy Cox. Work by Russell Gordon

Wells Gallery at The Sanctuary, at The Sanctuary on Kiawah Island, about 30 minutes from Charleston, in Kiawah's newest and most luxurious resort. May 2 - 3 - "Russell Gordon Painting Live at Wells Gallery". On May 2nd and 3rd, from 1-6pm each day, Gordon will be in the gallery to visit with our guests, discuss his work, and paint live. His paintings join precise Realism with a painterly luminosity; a stylistic combination reminiscent of Italian Mannerism and 17th century Dutch and Flemish paintings, but rarely encountered in contemporary art. Even his materials reflect those of the past: he manufactures his own paint using a medium (Maroger medium) reformulated from that employed by Flemish artists. At the same time, Gordon's subject matter shows a decidedly contemporary viewpoint. In the end, the extraordinary impact of Gordon's art lies in his astonishing technique, his sense of visual realistic presence, and a fresh subject matter. Ongoing - Featuring a selection of paintings, jewelry and sculptures of some of the Lowcountry's finest artists, Betty Anglin Smith, Shannon Smith, Jennifer Smith Rogers, George Pate, Glenn Harrington, Gary Gowans, Karen Larson Turner, Kim English, Felice Killian, Grainger McKoy and Darrell Davis. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 10am-8pm & Sun., 10am-6pm. Contact: 843/576-1290 or at (www.wellsgallery.com).

ALTERNATE ART SPACES - Charleston The Real Estate Studio, 214 King Street, Charleston. Through June 3 - "Scintilla: little sparks; a glittering particle," featuring portraits and abstracts by Michelle Meek Jones. The exhibit is an exploration of the sparkle and flash beneath the curves and angles of our living beings. Spray paint, oils and iridescent pigments are used to create abstractions of life. A belief in all that glitters really could be gold is necessary. The exhibit will be split into two parts. Jones will display her portraits through May 8 and replace them with her abstracts beginning May 9 for the remainder of the show. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 9am-5pm & Sun., noon-5pm. Contact: Traci Magnus at 843/722-5618 or e-mail to (tmagnus@dunesproperties.com).

Work by Steven Whetstone

City Art. 1224 Lincoln Street, Columbia. Through May 10 - "Tetralogical Progress," featuring an MFA exhibit of works by Katie Boatman, Jeffrey Hodges, Shannon Lindsey, and LeeReyna Lopez Leyva. This exhibition reflects the work developed by four Master of Fine Arts candidates focusing on Studio Art at the University of South Carolina. Individually, their works are conceptually diverse. Collectively, they develop works through various painting approaches, including traditional and mixed media processes. The exhibition represents a unique culmination of experimentation and growth. This is generated from the artists' communal dialogue and fellowship while sharing a studio warehouse. These close relationships directly influence their respective processes by means of shared inspirations, theories, and research. May 15 - June 21 - "Transcendant," featuring an exhibition of works by Steven Whetstone. A reception will be held on May 15, from 5:30-8pm. As early as 1983 Steven Whetstone's passions have always been art and baseball. He grew up splitting his time between the two until 2004 when he took his love of art to the professional arena and left baseball behind. As a standout pitcher for USC and Brookland-Cayce High School Whetstone took that success on to the minor league with the Chicago Whitesox. But his USC

art degree and love clouted with extensive training led to his professional career as a full time fine-artist. Ongoing - Featuring works by Jane Aldridge, Jim Arendt, Randolph New Armstrong, Penny Baskin, Jo Dean Bauknight, Robbie Bell, Kimberly Betchman, Tarleton Blackwell, Angela Bradburn, Betty Bramlett, Joe Byrne, Carolita Cantrell, Kathy Casey, Anne Cunningham, Bob Doster, Gerard Erley, Claire Farrell, Amy Fichter, Tim Floyd, Michael Fowler, Teri Goddard, Harriet Goode, Vanessa Grubbs, Randy Hanna, Shelley Hehenberger, Mana Hewitt, David Kessler, Jan Kransberger, Robert Lyon, Rena MacQueen, Doug McAbee, Fred McElveen, Esther Melton, Max Miller, Lee A. Monts, Marge Loudon Moody, Blake Morgan, Bruce Nellsmith, Heather Noe, Susan Nuttall, Patrick Parise, Ann Hightower-Patterson, Leslie Pierce, Carol Pittman, Sylvia Ady-Potts, Alex Powers, Brian Rego, May Reisz, Tom Risser, Peggy Rivers, Cindy Saad, Sara Schneckloth, Ed Shmunes, Wanda Steppe, Nancy Thompson, Teri Tynes, Yisha Wang, Wendyth Wells, Sam Wilkins, Rod Wimer, and Katarina Zaric. This represents a rare opportunity to view a very wide range of acclaimed SC artists at one time. City Art features three distinct gallery spaces. A complete fine artists supply store is located on the lower level. Fine custom designer framing is available at City Art. In addition the Gallery is often host to a variety of events hosted by rental clients. City Art is a wonderful space to enjoy and purchase original art, art supplies, fine framing, take art classes and have wedding receptions, etc. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-6pm; Fri., 10am-5pm, & Sat., 11am-3pm. #### Asheville Area

Asheville Art Museum, 2 South Pack Square at Pack Place, Asheville. Through May 25 -"Blueprints: A Collaboration," celebrates the collaboration of two important contemporary artists, Susan Weil and José Betancourt. Alongside these evocative works, the Museum is pleased to show a selection of Susan Weil's Livres d'Artistes, which are also spirited collaborations. Through May 18 - "Social Geographies: Interpreting Space and Place". The art world operates within geographic frameworks. Spatial divisions between "inside" and "outside" impact how the art world describes, identifies and validates artists featured within the exhibition, Social Geographies: Interpreting Space and Place. Whether deemed outsider" – Henry Darger, Martín Ramírez, George Widener – or "self-taught" – Thornton Dial, Sr., Minnie Evans, Lonnie Holley - these artists bear categorical markers that organize their art but do not adequately speak of their art's unique qualities and circumstances. In response to such prescriptive terms, "Social Geographies" asks viewers to experience artwork regarded as different, differently. Through June 22 - "Pierre Daura: Modernist in the Mountains," features the beautiful artwork of artist Pierre Daura, including many mountain landscapes – scenes that residents of Western

North Carolina will feel connected to. In 1998, the Museum received a gift of 36 paintings by Pierre Daura, given by the artist's daughter Martha R. Daura, and the Museum is thrilled to be showing some of the works. Through Aug. 31 - "Prime Time: Second Annual New Media Juried Exhibition." In January of this year, the Museum announced an open call to North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee artists working in single channel, screen-based new media, including video art, experimental animation and time-based media. More than 50 submissions were received, of which 12 were chosen as finalists. The selections represent just a sampling of the broad variety of works that fall into this category of contemporary art. East Wing, Upstairs Gallery, Through July 20 - "Ralph Burns: A Persistence of Vision -Photographs 1972-2013". Burns has long been recognized as a documentary photographer whose images have captured the diverse and enigmatic nature of ritual and religion, and who has explored the subjective and often defining nature of belief, worship and culture. Like his predecessors - such as Walker Evans, Diane Arbus, Mary Ellen Mark and Robert Frank -Burns uses his cameras to probe a constantly shifting human landscape and to document the public and private aspects of culture and religion in transition, often working at the unclear and overlapping intersection of both. Holden Community Gallery, Through June 22 - "Take 10: Collectors' Circle 10th Anniversary," celebrates the generosity of the Asheville Art Museum's Collectors' Circle, a membership group that encourages the exchange of ideas and interests, art learning, connoisseurship and collecting. As a vibrant and critical source of support, they are dedicated to growing the Museum's Permanent Collection through annual gifts of artwork, selected and presented in partnership with the curatorial staff. This exhibition presents a wide variety of gifts to the Museum by this dynamic group and includes works of art from the Circles' first 10 years. Admission: Yes. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm; Fri. till 8pm & Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 828/253-3227 or at (www.ashevilleart.org).

Turchin Center for the Visual Arts, Appalachian State University, 423 West King Street, Boone. Galleries A and Mayer Gallery, West Wing, Through Aug. 2 - "Legacy, Tradition, Reinvention - Penland Resident Artists". Located just 45 miles from the Turchin Center, nestled in the Blue Ridge Mountains, is one of the most unique artistic educational facilities in the nation. Penland School of Crafts is a national center for craft education, hosting workshops of all varieties. Approximately 1,200 people come to Penland for instruction each year and another 14,000 visit the Penland Gallery and Visitor Center. Gallery B, Through Aug. 2 - "Ivan Fortushniak: In Christ Alone". Heavily influenced by early Modern American Art of the 19th century, the motivation behind Ivan Fortushniak's recent work is to convey the dire state of man and their need for what the Gospel offers. Some of these paintings convey biblical references through collaged material from art historical texts while others use appropriated figurative imagery from Winslow Homer and are juxtaposed with water-towers, smokestacks and aircraft. The re-contextualization of these figures creates multiple time frames to convey that the concerns for the heart and soul are the same in the present as they were in the past. Main Gallery, East Wing, Through June 7 - "William Dunlap - Geography Matters, North Carolina Collectors". The exhibition captures Dunlap's vast works from personal collections across North Carolina. Dunlap says that he became familiar with the power of place in art through southern literature. Surrounded by so much benevolence, talent, goodwill and glorious landscape, he was captivated by place and people in the creation of his works. TCVA Community Gallery, Through Apr. 26 - Behind the Scenes: Instructors of the Outreach Programs. The exhibition features the personal work of some of the artists who have worked as the instructors of the Turchin Center's outreach programs in the fall of 2013. These artists will also be hosting workshops at the Turchin Center in the spring and summer of 2014. These regional artists are committed to awakening the artist within each of us, to providing instruction that helps develop your own style and to helping each participant enjoy the process of creating art. Mezzanine Gallery, East Wing, Through June 7 - "11th Appalachian Mountain Photography Competition". AMPC is a partnership program between Appalachian State University's Outdoor Programs in partnership with the Blue Ridge Parkway Foundation and the Turchin Center. One of the region's most prestigious photography competitions, AMPC attracts photographs by amateur and professional photographers from across the country with over 1,000 submissions last year. AMPC celebrates the unique people, places and pursuits of the Southern Appalachian mountains. Hours: 10am-6pm, Tue., Wed., Thur., & Sat. and Fri., noon -8pm. Contact: Hank T. Ackland Art Museum, UNC - Chapel Hill, Columbia & Franklin Streets, Chapel Hill. Through June 1 - "Parts of the Sum: MFA 2014." curated by Lauren Turner. The exhibition examines dynamics between individual items and the notion of a "whole" by exhibiting works that divide, reduce, combine, or collide material elements. Rather than neatly coming together like a puzzle that forms one definite image, the works on view highlight the myriad ways in which fractional parts can interact with and influence one another. Included in the exhibition are works by Ben Alper, Michael Bramwell, Isabel Cuenca, Minjin Kang, Cody Platt, Meg Stein, Lile Stephens, Antoine Williams, and Connie Zamorano. Each participating artist is a 2014 Master of Fine Arts candidate at The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Through Dec. 31 - "Highlights from the Permanent Collection". The Ackland Art Museum presents a major reinstallation of highlights from its diverse permanent collection of over 17.000 works of art. The first presentations include The Western Tradition, from Ancient art to twentiethcentury art; Art from West Africa; and Art from China and Japan. Renaissance and Baroque Gallery, Ongoing - "Art and the Natural World in Early Modern Europe," features masterpieces by artists including Peter Paul Rubens, Jan Weenix, Salomon van Ruysdael, and a seventeenth-century landscape by Claude Lorrain on long term loan to the Ackland from the Tryon Palace Historic Sites and Gardens in New Bern, NC. This exhibit now combines with its neighboring gallery, "Art and Religious Life in Early Modern Europe," to showcase a wide range of Renaissance and Baroque subject matter. Hours: Wed., Fri., & Sat., 10am-5pm; Thur., 10am-8pm; Sun., 1-5pm; and 2nd Fri, each month till 9pm. Contact: 919/966-5736 or at (http://www.ackland.org/index.htm).

Chapel Hill Museum, 523 East Franklin Street, Chapel Hill. Ongoing - "Farmer/James Pottery - North Carolina Art Pottery Collection 1900-1960". Pottery by North Carolinian and southern potters, from a significant survey collection of southern art pottery. A portion of the 280-piece collection will be on display permanently, demonstrating the movement of art pottery displacing utilitarian pottery made here in NC and throughout the South. Noted author and folklore expert, Dr. A. Everrette James, and his wife, Dr. Nancy Farmer, have generously gifted the Chapel Hill Museum with this significant survey collection of southern art pottery. Hours: Wed.-Sat., 10am-4pm & Sun. 1-4pm. Contact: 919/967-1400 or at (www. chapelhillmuseum.com).

Bechtler Museum of Modern Art, Levine Center for the Arts, 420 South Tryon St., Charlotte. Through July 25 - "Mario Botta: Architecture and Memory". Botta is among the most noted architects on an international scale. His reputation and status have long been established throughout the rest of the world by the great number and wide variety of commissions the 70-year-old architect has received in the last 50 years throughout Europe and most recently Asia. He is considered one of the world's foremost architects of churches and museums. Botta's body of work ranges from private residences in the Swiss Alps to urban projects in Europe and Asia. The Bechtler Museum of Modern Art is the only US venue for this engaging exhibition that highlights the designs for some of Botta's significant museums, libraries, theaters and religious spaces. Over the last decades, Botta has focused on creating major public buildings worldwide. The exhibition features sketches, original wood models and photographs for 30 of these projects. Ongoing - The Bechtler Museum of Modern Art is named after the family of Andreas Bechtler, a Charlotte resident and native of Switzerland who assembled and inherited a collection of more than 1,400 artworks created by major figures of 20th-century modernism and donated it to the public trust. The Bechtler collection comprises artworks by seminal figures such as Alberto Giacometti, Joan Miro, Jean Tinguely, Max Ernst, Andy Warhol, Alexander Calder, Le Corbusier, Sol LeWitt, Edgar Degas, Nicolas de Stael, Barbara Hepworth and Picasso. Only a handful of the artworks in the Bechtler collection have been on public view in the United States. Admission: Yes. Hours: Mon., Wed.-Sat., 10am-5pm; Sun. noon-5pm; and open

Work by Andi Steele

Elizabeth Ross Gallery, Central Piedmont Community College, Central Campus, Overcash Performing Arts Center, Elizabeth Avenue and Kings Dr., Charlotte. Ross Gallery, Through May 1 - "2014 CPCC Juried Student Show," comprised of works created by students enrolled in the Visual Arts program. This year's student show contains 76 individual artworks by 50 CPCC Visual Arts students, created over the past year at CPCC. Works on view represent all media taught at CPCC, including painting, drawing, photography, sculpture, ceramics, jewelry/metalworking and more. Proceeds from all sold artwork will benefit future gallery programming and exhibitions. This year's event juror is Seth Rouser, a painting instructor at Winthrop University, located in Rock Hill, SC. Rouser has shown his paintings throughout the region and will have a solo exhibition in Ross Gallery in fall 2014. Ross Gallery I, May 15 -Aug. 7 - "BURST - Andi Steele". A reception will be held on May 15, from 5-7pm. Steele is an installation artist working with colored monofilament line. Her installations, which are highly measured and planned, involve stringing the monofilament across her site in order to alter the way visitors interact with the space and with each other. Hoss Gallery II, May 15 - Aug. 7 - "Anyone's Ghost: Kyle Worthy". A reception will be held on May 15, from 5-7pm. Worthy is an abstract landscape photographer living and working in Charlotte. The action of taking a photograph is just the beginning of his extensive development process, which involves digitally abstracting the image, printing, and sometimes even treating the surface with encaustic to give it a velvety finish. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-2pm. Contact: Sharon Dowell, Gallery Coordinator, at 704/330-6211 or at (www.cpcc.edu/art_gallery).

Harvey B. Gantt Center for African-American Arts & Culture, Levine Center for the Arts, 551 S. Tryon St., Charlotte. Through June 1 - "African American Art Since 1950: Perspectives From The David C. Driskell Center African American Art Since 1950". Featuring an exhibition in which works by renowned artists such as Romare Bearden, Elizabeth Catlett, and Sam Gilliam are coupled with exciting new visionaries, including Chakaia Booker, Lorna Simpson, and Kara Walker, collectively reflects the growing prominence-and complexity-of the field of African American art over the last 60 years. Through June 1 - "Question Bridge: Black Males". The exhibit explores the ongoing challenges within the black male community by instigating a transmedia conversation across the geographic, economic, generational, educational and social divisions of American society.

Ongoing - Featuring selections from the John & Vivian Hewitt Collection of African-American Art, one of the nation's most important and comprehensive collections of African-American art. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm & Sun. 1-5pm. Contact: 704/547-3700 or at (www.ganttcenter. org).

Work by Jeannine Marchand

Latin American Contemporary Art Projects (LaCa), 1429 Bryant Street, in the heart of the revitalized FreeMoreWest neighborhood, Charlotte. Through May 2 - "Cuba: Art of the Fantastic," curated by Abelardo Mena. The exhibit brings together four masterful artists, Juan Carlos Verdial, Alicia de la Campa, Alexander González, and Vicente Hernández, who offer personal speeches through figurative, vibrant, and highly emotive paintings and drawings. Full of imagination and fantasy, these artists are joined by their eagerness to freely reinterpret symbols of the Cuban culture, of its geography and history, Catholic and African popular religions, proverbs of the Cuban popular idiosyncrasy, and by their deep knowledge and intertextual game with iconic works of the Western, European, and United States, all places where they have gathered considerable momentum. May 8 - June 20 - "Jeannine Marchand: Con Relación al Espacio". A reception will be held on May 8, from 6-9pm. The exhibit is a body of ceramic works based on Marchand's studio as her environment. Focusing on architectural openings, these contemplative pieces of framed ceramic folds juxtaposed with sculpture reinterpret windows and doors as points of departure, exploring notions of body and space. Marchand is a Puerto Rican studio artist living in Spruce Pine, NC. Ongoing - LaCa Projects is a platform dedicated to the presentation, development, and promotion of Latin American art and culture within the United States. The gallery encourages cross-cultural dialogue by representing a small group of influential and thought-provoking contemporary, emerging and mid-career artists, as well as exhibiting a broader range of work by established and Master Latin American artists. The gallery, which has expertise in a number of different art media with a significant focus on paintings, wiii also de part of a larger planned expansion that includes open artist studios and a dining concept. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 1-5pm or by appt. Contact: Neely Verano at (neely@lacaprojects. com) or call 704/609-8487.

Levine Museum of the New South, 200 E. Seventh St., corner of College St & Seventh St., Charlotte. Through June 29 - "Out of the Shadows: Undocumented and Unafraid," conceived and orchestrated by artist Annabel Manning and organized with the assistance of independent curator Carla Hanzal. Undocumented Latino youth who have lived in this country since they were infants or toddlers are an increasingly significant demographic in the South. They consider the U.S. their home: it's all most have ever known. Yet they face considerable barriers, often live in fear, and exist in the shadows of their communities in order to hide their legal status. In recent years many undocumented youth have made the decision to step out of the shadows and have emerged as activists. Through Aug. 17 - "Faces of Freedom Summer: The Photographs of Herbert Randall". The exhibition features 102 photographs taken by Herbert Randall in Hattiesburg, Mississippi. These powerful images document the struggles and triumphs of Civil Rights activists and disenfranchised African-American voters during the summer of 1964. That summer, students of all races and backgrounds, voting rights organizers, and a coalition of local black residents worked together to secure the rights for all Americans to vote in the South. Among them were three young civil rights workers, James Chaney, Michael Schwerner, and Andrew Goodman, who were murdered days after arriving in Mississippi. Ongoing - "Cotton Fields to Skyscrapers," featuring a permanent exhibition featuring interactive environments that trace the history of the New South from the end of the Civil War until today. Admission: Yes. Free on Sat. Parking: next door in Seventh Street Station. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 10am-5pm & Sun., noon-5pm. Contact: 704/333-1887 or at (www.museumofthenewsouth.org).

Detail of a work by Aurora Robson

McColl Center for Visual Art, 721 North Tryon Street, Charlotte. May 9 - July 26 - "Aurora Robson: Stayin' Alive". A reception will be held on May 9, from 6-9pm. Contemporary artist Aurora Robson has a practice that is not only graceful and poetic, but ultimately part of a long-term solution to widespread apathy and nihilism. Robson's transformative practice intercepts from the waste stream plastic debris, excess packaging, and junk mail in order to address urgent issues of consciousness as they relate to our values and the environment. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 11am-4pm. Contact: 704/332-5535 or at (www.mccollcenter.org).

Mint Museum Randolph, 2730 Randolph Road, Charlotte. Through June 29 - "Bearing Witness: The New York Photo League and Sonia Handelman Meyer". The New York Photo League was established in 1936, and centered on the exploration of the power of photography to effect social change and capture the lives of ordinary people as they had never before been depicted. And now, the work of this era - focusing in particular on the remarkable photography of Sonia Handelman Meyer is on view. The exhibition includes approximately 100 photographs from Photo League members. Through Aug. 17 - "North Carolina Pottery, Then and Now." Selections from the museum's recent exhibition, "A Thriving Tradition: 75 Years of Collecting North Carolina Pottery," are supplemented by more highlights from the museum's permanent collection. From the earliest decades of the nineteenth century regions of North Carolina emerged as key centers of pottery production. Randolph, Moore, and Chatham Counties in the Eastern Piedmont developed strong ceramics traditions, with potting families like the Foxes and the Websters creating well-crafted, utilitarian vessels in salt-glazed stoneware. Farther west, the Catawba Valley counties of Lincoln and Catawba developed their own notable ceramics traditions, with the Seagles, Hartsoes, and other potters making storage jars and jugs in ash-glazed stoneware. The ash-glaze tradition was kept alive in the twentieth century by Burlon Craig and his followers. Ongoing - "American Glass". The nineteenth and early twentieth centuries represented a time of extraordinary growth for the American glass industry. Such companies as Boston & Sandwich Glass Company in Sandwich, MA; Steuben Glass Works in Corning, NY; and Libbey Glass Company in Toledo. OH, began operation and soon developed notable reputations for producing fashionable wares that were coveted by many middle- and upper-class consumers. "American Glass" showcases objects by these and other American glass companies, illustrating the variety of forms and styles that prevailed during this period. Glass-manufacturing techniques will be another focus of the exhibition, with representative examples of pressed, cut, blown, and molded glass. Nearly all of the works on view are from The Mint Museum's permanent collection of glass, which is second in size only to the ceramics collection in the museum's Decorative Arts holdings. Ongoing - "Arts of Africa". The African continent is remarkable in its geographic, social, political, and cultural diversity. This impressive diversity is reflected in the visual arts through a variety of media and forms including ceramics, masks, textiles, sculptures, prestige staffs, and shrines. With exceptional loans from private collectors and The Mint Museum's own collection of African Art, the museum is pleased to announce the expansion of its presentation of Arts of Africa, thereby providing visitors a more in-depth, meaningful, and exciting overview of African art. Heritage Gallery, Ongoing - Feature works of art, archival documents, and photographs documenting the growth and evolution of the museum, from its beginnings as the original branch of the US Mint to its founding as an art museum to the present and beyond. Ongoing - "Art for the Millions: WPA Prints" and "Carolina Clay," featuring a display of colorful wares made between 1920 and 1950 as potters from NC adapted their works to a market economy. "Art of the United States," featuring contemporary works from the Mint's permanent collection, including works by Romare Bearden, Maud Gatewood, John Biggers Juan Logan, Tarlton Blackwell, Radcliffe Bailey, Kojo Griffin, and others. "Art in the Americas," featuring paintings, precious metalwork, sculpture, furniture and decorative arts from the 17th through the 19th centuries illustrate the unique culture that emerged from the Spanish colonization of the Americas. Crosland Gallery - Featuring a presentation of portraits with many fascinating images presented. Rankin Gallery -Featuring a presentation of the Romare Bearden Collection, including two "new" Beardens. Harris and Crist Galleries - Featuring some contemporary works that are new to the collection or have not been seen for a while. Delhom Gallery, Ongoing - The European Collection of ceramic works. Admission: Yes. Hours: Wed., 11am-9pm (free admission 5-9pm); Thur.-Sat., 11am-6pm; & Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 704/337-2000 or at (www. mintmuseum.org).

Mint Museum Uptown, Levine Center for the Arts, 500 South Tryon St., Charlotte. Through Aug. 10 - "Allure of Flowers: Botanical Motifs in Craft, Design, & Fashion." The exhibition presents a survey of outstanding works from the mid-nineteenth century to today that collectively illustrate the evolution of floral ornament in modern and contemporary applied art. Floral patterns have appeared in decorative arts since ancient times. Inspired by the forms, colors, and textures of the botanical world, artists from across the globe have copied and interpreted individual flowers, bouquets, and gardens in glass, ceramic, textile, and jewelry design. Allure of Flowers presents a survey of outstanding works from the mid-nineteenth century to today that collectively illustrate the evolution of floral ornament in modern and contemporary applied art. Through July 20 - "Women of Vision: National Geographic Photographers on Assignment". The 11 photographers featured in this exhibition are inspiring trailblazers and storytellers. The 100 photographs capture compelling stories of our planet and its people. For the last decade, some of the most powerful and impactful stories published by National Geographic have been produced by a new generation of women. The 11 photographers featured in "Women of Vision: National Geographic Photographers on Assignment' are inspiring trailblazers and storytellers. They are as different as the places and the subjects they have covered, but they all share the same passion and commitment to storytelling that has come to define National Geographic. The more than 100 photographs in the exhibition capture compelling stories of our planet and its people from the savannahs of Botswana to the war torn streets of Libya and Afghanistan; the beaches of the Jersey Shore to the Mongolian steppe or the rainforests of New Guinea. Ongoing - The Mint Museum Uptown will house the world renowned collections of the Mint Museum of Craft + Design, as well as the American Art and Contemporary Art collections and selected works from the European Art collection. The building also includes a café, a Family Gallery, painting and ceramics studios, classrooms, a 240-seat auditorium, a Special Events Pavilion with outdoor terrace, and an expanded Museum Shop specializing in crafts of the Carolinas. Admission: Yes. Hours: Wed., 11am-9pm (free admission 5-9pm); Thur.-Sat., 11am-6pm; & Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 704/337-2000 or at (www.mintmuseum.org).

Pease Auditorium Gallery, Central Piedmont Community College, Central Campus, Pease Lane & Elizabeth Ave., Charlotte. Through July 3 - "Past Perfect: Kirsten Tradowsky." San Francisco painter Kirsten Tradowsky takes inspiration from the past. She paints scenes from old photographs, or of old objects, taking no pains to hide their present condition. An exhibition of her work feels like a search in a thrift shop, complete with the imperfect objects and places worn by time. This exhibition will include a group of her most recent paintings, rendered in both rich and faded hues that reference the age of her subjects. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-2pm. Contact: Grace Cote, CPCC Gallery Coordinator by calling 704-330-2722 ext. 3183 or by e-mail at (grace. cote@cpcc.edu).

Projective Eye Gallery, UNC-Charlotte Center City Building, 320 E. 9th Street, Uptown Charlotte. Through June 26 - "Sustain Me Baby". Combining the work of two artists in different media, the exhibition examines the danger of plastics we cannot recycle. Joyce Dallal's "The Other Toy Story" is a 10-foot tall trash-receptacle "baby" that was "fed" during the opening reception and throughout the exhibition with plastic toys. While the giant baby, which can hold several hundred pounds of toys, evokes a sense of play, it also illustrates through scale that the waste we leave behind today will be a massive problem for the next generation. Mine., a video about our attachment to toys by John Flynn, will screen continuously in the gallery. Surrounding this centerpiece installation will be powerful images from Chris Jordan's "Midway" series. The Midway Atoll lies in the northern Pacific Ocean, more than 2,000 miles from the coasts of Asia and North America. Jordan visited the islands some three years ago to photograph dead baby albatrosses, whose stomachs bear the remains of plastics fed to them by their parents, who mistake the trash for food. "Choked to death on our waste," writes Jordan, "the mythical albatross calls upon us to recognize that our greatest challenge lies not out there, but in here." Hours: Mon.-Sun., 9am-9pm. Contact: Crista Cammaroto, Director of Galleries at 704/687-0833, 704/687-2397 or at (http://coaa.uncc.edu/Performances-exhibitions/Center-city-gallery).

Discovery Place®, 301 N Tryon St., Charlotte. Through June 1 - "Van Gogh Alive". From Milan and Moscow, to Istanbul and Budapest, the globally-acclaimed exhibition Van Gogh Alive now comes to the United States east coast for the first time. Presented to the community by Wells Fargo, the exhibition is the synthesis of traditional art and modern technology. Over 3,000 of Vincent van Gogh's most famous works are taken outside of the frame and brought to life in a whirlwind of vibrant colors and vivid details. For the first time, guests can walk through images of famous works, such as "The Starry Night," "Sunflowers," "The Café Terrace on the Place du Forum," "The Yellow House," "Bedroom in Arles" and many more. "This exhibition redefines a traditional museum experience, displaying Van Gogh's masterpieces in larger-than-life proportions. Guests may have had previous opportunities to see a few authentic paintings in a gallery, but Van Gogh Alive brings thousands of Van Gogh's images under one roof in a stunning audio-visual format," said Discovery Place, Inc. president and CEO, Catherine Wilson Horne. Center for Documentary Studies at Duke University, 1317 West Pettigrew Street, Durham. Through May 17 - "My White Friends," featuring photographs by Mrya Greene. Greene has often used the human body-primarily black and brown ones, often her own-to explore issues of difference, beauty, and memory. In conversations with white friends, she realized that they had very different notions of racial identity than her own; in one pivotal exchange, a friend remarked that he really didn't think about whiteness at all. "I had never considered this was possible," says Greene. The exhibition was born out of this revelation. The project's "racial identity portraits" are co-constructions with Greene's friends that allow them to "respond to the idea of being imaged for their race," she says. Her goal is thoughtful dialogue about how we describe and think about racial identity: "I want conversations, not categories." Hours: Mon.-Thur, 9am-7pm; Fri., 9am-5pm; Sat., 11am-4pm; & Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 919/660-3663 or at (http://documentarystudies. duke.edu/).

Work by Jillian Dickson

The Carrack Modern Art, 111 West Parrish Street, Durham. Through May 10 - "interface II interference, experience filtered by smartfones, juried by Smartphone Art Show". A reception will be held on May 2, from 7-10pm. The smartphone is ubiquitous in our culture. And anything that changes us the way our smartphones ive, and continue to do, demands tention and exposition. Historically, artists have used tools like the Claude Glass (also referred to as a Black Mirror), Camera Lucida and Camera Obscura to help perceive the world differently through filters, reflections, superimpositions and projections of their surroundings, as a way to inform their artistic process. The Claude Glass of today is the smartphone, which goes far beyond just filtering and reflecting an artist's perceptions but informing and transforming our experience in reality. May 13 - 24 - "Buried in Light and Shadow," featuring works by Elsa Hoffman. A reception will be held on May 16, from 7-10pm and an artist talk will be given on May 22, beginning at 7pm. Hoffman is a wood and metal worker based in Chapel Hill. With a handheld plasma cutter, she transforms thin sheets of salvaged metal into 2 and 3-D designs including lights, sculpture and furniture. May 27 - June 7 - "Our Epidural Currency," featuring drawings by Jillian Dickson. A reception will be held on May 30, from 7-10pm. This series examines the forgotten and neglected connection between our tactile bodies and wild nature. Within the compilation of technological evolution, the basic conditions of being human have changed, in that our physical bodies no longer play and essential roll in our survival.

Ongoing - The Carrack Modern Art features work by local artists in group and solo exhibitions, punctuated by a myriad of shorter artistic events that include outdoor projections, slam poetry, film screenings and musical performances. Hours: Mon.-Fri., noon-6pm; Sat., 2-5pm or by appt. Contact: 704/213-6666 or at (http://thecarrack.org).

Wilmington

Louise Wells Cameron Art Museum, @ intersection of Independence Blvd. & South 17th Street, Wilmington. Through June 1 - "Requiem in Glass: Brady's Greenhouse: An Installation by Harry Taylor." Mathew Brady (American, of photojournalism and was responsible for most of the photographic documentation of the American Civil War. When the war was over, Brady was forced to sell most of his glass plate negatives to settle his debts. These glass negatives then were recycled to build greenhouses, but as the years went by, the sun's rays burned the imagery from the glass and the images were lost. In this installation Wilmington photographer Harry Taylor re-imagines these fabled greenhouses, inspired by how these structures may have appeared during Reconstruction. The greenhouse features 300 of Taylor's glass plate images which invoke Brady's Civil War photography and the history of the Cape Fear region. Through June 1 - "Bruce Barclay Cameron Duck Decoy Collection." Avid huntsman, sportsman, and philanthropist, Bruce Barclay Cameron, Jr. collected duck decoys throughout his lifetime. This exhibition highlights a selection of Mr. Cameron's most noted decoys. Artisans included are A. Elmer Crowell from Cape Cod, MA; Joseph Lincoln from Accord, MA; Hucks Caines from Georgetown, SC; the Ward Brothers, Lemuel and Stephen from Crisfield, MD; Mitchell Fulcher of Stacy, NC; and Ned Burgess of Duck, NC. Through Aug. 3 - "Corrugated World: The Artwork of James Grashow". Brooklyn born sculptor and woodcut artist James Grashow is known for his large-scale sculptures and installations made from cardboard. Grashow has worked with the medium of paper for over forty years exploring the human condition, mortality and the natural world. This exhibition features whimsical, animal-inspired installations as well as new sculptures created specifically for the Cameron Art Museum exhibition. When asked what keeps him interested in working with cardboard and his constructions, Grashow states, "I have always loved the line between fantasy and reality, metaphor and truth. It seems to me that in that space between the two, people are the most open and willing to see and learn." Reynolda House Museum of American Art, Reynolda Road, Winston-Salem. Northeast Bedroom Gallery, Through June 1 - "Reynolda Moderns". In the early 20th century, artists in America began challenging the idea that the purpose of art is to represent reality. Instead of striving to produce window-like views of the world, artists such as Georgia O'Keeffe, Marsden Hartley, and Arthur Dove began experimenting with color, form, line, space, and content. West Bedroom Gallery, View Gallery, Through Sept. 13 - "Written with Water: American Watercolors from Homer to Close". This exhibition celebrates the distinctive qualities of the watercolor medium by examining works from 1881-1979. Artist Charles Burchfield once explained, "My preference for watercolor is a natural one. To paint in watercolor is as natural to me as using a pencil; whereas I always feel self-conscious when I use oil. Each work in this exhibition demonstrates the various ways artists use watercolors to evoke emotion and capture movement, time, and timelessness." Ongoing - Collection of 18th through 20th century art, sculpture, American art, and pottery. Admission: Yes. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 9:30am-4:30pm & Sun., 1:30-4:30pm. Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art, 750 Marguerite Drive, Winston-Salem. Through June 30 - "Eric Fertman: A Comic Turn," curated by Cora Fisher. The exhibition explores object-based humor through the medium of sculpture in a survey of Fertman's work. Fertman's practice gives absurdist humor many forms, from the wordplay of a title to gently ironic manipulations of the Modernist canon, to cartoon motifs lovingly crafted in wood, evoking a more sophisticated sense of humor. SECCA Executive Director Mark Leach says, "We're thrilled to invite the community to get acquainted with Cora's imaginative and playful curatorial vision. I think our public will thoroughly enjoy her intelligent gathering of the featured work and her insightful analysis of Mr. Fertman's creative practice." Through May 24 - "Jennifer Meanley: Far away, in the meadow," features a solo exhibition, organized by SECCA and curated by Steven Matijcio. The paintings and collages of this North Carolina-based artist lure us into richly hued and strange worlds. The exhibition includes new work by Meanley and features a site-specific 27-foot collage, which draws on classical narratives and further demonstrates the emotional complexity of the artist's imagery and storytelling. The title "Far Away in the Meadow" comes from Ray Bradbury's 1962 novel, Something Wicked This Way Comes. It is in that meadow where shadows flicker, "as if parts of someone's life, yet unborn, were trapped there, waiting to be lived." The landscapes of Meanley's paintings, like Bradbury's meadow, are somber and mysterious, taking shape before our eyes. Yet, strangely, their colors are rich and bright. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm, Thur. till 8pm; Sun., 1-5 pm, and closed Mon. & state holidays . Admission is free. Contact: 336/725-1904 or at (www.secca.org).

Their two special guest ceramic artists are Dan Anderson and Blair Clemo. Their kinship is based on a shared appreciation for the pursuit of excellence within the diverse language of clay. In other words, "They Dig Clay." These five nationally known studio art potters will gather together to sell their work and talk with the public about making art that comes from the earth under their feet. This two-day event begins May 31 at 10am -5pm. And on Saturday, for an added touch of enjoyment, Chronis Pou Vasiliou of Greensboro will fill the air with his enchanting Greek Bouzouki music while you visit with the "Cousins in Clay." The event continues on Sunday from 10am-5pm with the annual Potters' Potluck starting at noon... all are welcome to bring a dish to share. Ongoing - Bruce Gholson and Samantha Henneke collaborate to make graceful forms, and develop their own unique glazes. Expect distinctively unusual work at Bulldog Pottery.
