

Art Trail Gallery in Florence, SC, Offers Another Regional Group Show

Visualicious, the 2-D exhibit at the Art Trail Gallery in Florence, SC, is counting down to the deadline for receipt of participation forms, June 3, 2011.

Work by Mary Williams

The show will be an exciting survey of 2-D works created by professionals and amateurs alike with over 100 artists expected to be participating. With categories for children, novices, and professionals, the gallery is reaching out to those who create those intriguing marks on surfaces that engage the mind. Some do it through paintings on canvas, designs on the surface of wood, metal, paper, and fiber. The show includes traditional watercolors, oils, acrylics, ink, pencil, and mixed media, among others.

Broadhurst Gallery in Pinehurst, NC, Features Works by T Barney

The Broadhurst Gallery in Pinehurst, NC, is presenting an exhibit of works by T Barney, a California stone sculptor, on view through June 30, 2011. Barney is celebrating 30 years as a professional sculptor; this traveling show is moving from Connecticut to North Carolina for this engagement, back to California and then onto New Mexico.

Barney's passion is stone. The new sculpture will include stone pieces carved from Utah Calcite, Argentine Onyx and Canadian Anhydrite to name a few. His bronze collection will also be featured as well. This is an exhibit of sculpture that emphasizes the theme that "stone is universal" and appeals to all as does music and art.

"Stone has personality, character, texture and density," says Barney. "Knowing how to work with many types of stone has been a challenge and I've had to draw upon my 30 year carving background to accomplish this type of show."

Barney has shown in over 300 shows in 30 years. His professional sculpting career has spanned decades and his pieces hold prestigious placement in collections internationally. His studio is in the heart of the California Wine Country.

Daniel Vaughan was born and raised in Michigan where he received degrees in biology and medicine from Michigan State University and Wayne State University. After retiring from the University of Chapel Hill in 2003, Vaughan had more time to dedicate to his painting. In 2006, he was the artist-in-residence in the Badland's National Park in South Dakota. A retired Biologist, he likes to incorporate wildlife in their natural habitats into his landscapes.

Work by Judith Glazier

Judith Glazier, a High Point resident, paints with watercolors, oils, and acrylics. She describes her painting style as one that involves movement, color, and flow to use her creativity to express her impressionistic vision of the outer, physical world, and her inner imaginary one. Glazier served
