Editorial COMMENTARY

by Tom Starland, Editor and Publisher

Why Are We Celebrating This?

The SC Arts Commission is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year with a series of exhibits to be presented around SC at various venues, starting with SC Fellows Part I & II, curated by Eleanor Heartney, presented at Columbia, SC, venues. What a surprise that they selected Columbia as the location to have their kick-off receptions.

The exhibitions could also have been titled, SC's College & University Review or a Survey of Artists Who Took the Money and Ran Out of SC. We've seen a lot of these works in Arts Commission organized shows before.

The main flaw of the Fellowship program is that artists are selected solely on the basis of artistic merit (at the time they applied) and not based on contributions to the SC art community. Why are we rewarding artists who are drifting through SC at the time of their application for this award? Also, some artists have received this award two and three times. That shouldn't happen either.

Of course the major cop-out answer from the Arts Commission is - we can't stop artists from applying for this award. And, if other artists don't apply - what can we do?

I'm not going to go into a major rant about the SC Arts Commission and the Fellowship program, but I will ask you to do one thing. Look at the list of artists selected for these exhibitions and ask yourself when you've seen their names associated with an exhibit in SC that is not being presented by the SC Arts Commission. There are some, but not many. What we have here is art welfare.

Here's an idea - how about the SC Arts Commission host a major exhibit by artists who have been working in SC for 30 - 40 years and they have never had anything to do with them in the past. Boy that would be strange - for them.

City of Charleston, SC, Offers Works by Charleston Rhizome Collective

The City of Charleston, SC, is presenting conNECKted: Imaginings for Truth and Reconciliation, a multi-media installation by the Charleston Rhizome Collective, on view at City Gallery at Joseph P. Riley, Jr., Waterfront Park, through Aug. 27, 2017.

Led by artists Jean-Marie Mauclet and Gwylyne Gallimard, with members of the Charleston Rhizome Collective including educators/activists Pamela Gibbs, La'Sheia Oubre and Debra Holt, the artistic team for conNECKted has developed interactive pieces that will be installed throughout City Gallery. conNECKted is an Art-in/with community project that seeks to explore social dynamics and to question cultural expression in Charleston.

The NECK of conNECKted refers to anatomy as well as the geography of Charleston, where the "NECK" happens to be one area of significant development and change. The goal is to challenge Charleston to engage with the issues at play by amplifying the voices of people most susceptible to displacement, utilizing creative community-engaged arts strategies and actions.

This gallery-wide installation features a series of uniquely-built cultural spaces and community videos, allowing for exchanges, conversations, improvisations and events between artists, educators, activists and citizens. The members of the Charleston Rhizome Collective have developed interactive pieces, including "Debra & Geraldine's street," "Nautical stories," "Penetrable Banners and Poetry for Memorialization with Action," "Peace Scrolls by Youth," "A low-line of Portraits of the News Media," "Imagination Tables" and sound installations.

Designed for interactivity, visitors are invited to participate in game-like mappings, enter ideas into a Book of Grievances in the shadow of a Justice Tree, initiate "Cultural Impact Studies" (to parallel Environmental Impact Studies), discover stories from neighbors and add their own. Creative gallery tours will be led by the conNECKted team, volunteers, and poets. There will be seating in the space to encourage visitors to stay longer and engage in further reflection.

A schedule of related events and workshops will be available on the City Gallery website.

On Saturdays from 10am to 5pm, as well as select Tuesday and Thursday evenings, the artists will conduct "Imaginings for Truth and Reconciliation" workshops, proposals and performances-in-progress. Discussions will be led by engaged artists, educators, activists and citizens who are dedicated to youth and adults. Workshops and discussions will be in multiple formats; for a detailed list of events visit the gallery website.

conNECKted seeks to more deeply explore social, economic, and educational policies and practices through a social justice lens. The artistic team notes, "The goal is to realize that, in this era of displacement and denial of history and culture, "Belonging" is the key to empowerment and transformation, the cornerstone of our present and future realities."

conNECKted will end with the festive "Launching Weekend" of August 25-27. With community input, new plans will be launched for continued dialogue in the future. All visual elements, documents and processes will be documented and made available moving forward as art tools to accompany the journey.

Charleston Rhizome Collective is an Art-in/with community group, where education, art and activism intersect. By design, it is grassroots, inter-racial and inter-generational. Through the arts, they aim to amplify the voices of neighborhoods absent from public and private plans: social, cultural and economic.

Established in 2003, the City Gallery at Joseph P. Riley, Jr., Waterfront Park is a free and non-profit gallery owned by the City of Charleston and operated by the Office of Cultural Affairs.

For further information check our SC Institutional Gallery listings, call the gallery at 843/958-6484 or visit (www.charleston-sc.gov/citygallery).

College of Charleston in Charleston, SC, Offers Works by Marc Trujillo and Riccarda de Eccher

The College of Charleston in Charleston, SC, will present two new exhibits including: Marc Trujillo: American Purgatory and Riccarda de Eccher: Montagna, both on view at the Halsey Institute of Contemporary Art, from Aug. 25 through Oct. 7, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 25, from 6:30-8pm.

The paintings of Marc Trujillo portray commonplace scenes: fast food restaurants, big box store aisles, the long terminal corridors of airports, and so on. The scenes are remarkably unremarkable. In their ubiquitous nature, the paintings present an anti-place: scenes that refer not to a specific place, but to uncannily similar tableaux that unfold everyday in communities across America. While Trujillo models his paintings after specific locations, usually in the Los Angeles area, his scenes appear strikingly similar to viewers' own relationships with local commerce. His paintings critique a hallmark of modern capitalism: one that aims to recreate identical commercial experiences across the country.

With the title American Purgatory, Trujillo's exhibition presents a body of work in which each painting locates a place that's not a place. As Charleston is in the midst of a period of high growth, many national chains are replacing local stores that have existed for decades. The exhibition will resonate with local audiences, asking them to consider the price, if any, that comes with restructuring a local economy to one with a national scope.

On view simultaneously with Marc Trujillo's exhibition, Riccarda de Eccher's sublime watercolors of mountain peaks also explore familiar scenes. In this case, her works evoke picturesque representations of snow-capped mountains from the Italian Alps. De Eccher's watercolors offer a subversion of our current age in which images are vastly and readily shared online, especially those that are high-resolution and digitally retouched. In a way, they correlate with Trujillo's paintings: though titled, her pictures are cropped as to present anonymous mountains that could exist on almost any continent.

Though she started creating art in her forties, de Eccher has become known for her realistic and insightful depictions of mountains in the Italian Alps. Her detailed treatment of the craggy faces of cliffs and the billowy snow-covered slopes stands out, and it speaks to her experience as a mountain climber herself. Well-versed in mountain-climbing from growing up in the Dolomites in northern Italy, she went on to climb part of Mount Everest in 1980. Shifting between different scales and varying perspectives, de Eccher's paintings help viewers consider our own relationship with the world we inhabit.

City of North Charleston, SC, Features Works by Rick Austin and George Gregory

The City of North Charleston's Cultural Arts Department is pleased to announce that concurrent solo exhibitions by local artist Rick Austin, and Columbia, SC, based artist George Gregory will be on display at the North Charleston City Gallery, located at the Charleston Area Convention Center, from Aug. 3 - 31, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 3, from 5-7pm.

Local artist Richard "Rick" Austin presents Observations, a collection of landscape paintings that showcase the atmospheric quality of light in the natural world. Born and raised in rural upstate New York, Austin spent much of his childhood exploring the woods of the Adirondack Mountains. His affection for the peace and beauty of the natural world is communicated in his paintings. Influenced by the 18th century Impressionists and the 19th century Tonalists, as well as early American illustrators, Austin uses a glazing technique, applying thin layers of color suspended in oil. This "creates an almost translucent effect," Austin explains, "much the same way nature paints with light and atmosphere."

After four years in the Navy, Austin attended the Art Institute of Boston, majoring in Illustration and Fine Art. Upon graduating, he developed a commercial art and illustration studio in northern New York while teaching art classes for the New York State Council of the Arts. He went on to lead the Communications Design Department at Clarkson University, manage the multimedia department for an international marketing corporation, and work with land developers to create branding materials and 3-D architectural renderings before retiring in Folly Beach to paint full-time. Rick Austin's artwork has been exhibited at Spencer Art Gallery and Ellis Nicholson Gallery, among others.

Mixed media artist George Gregory pres-

Gregory presents Pixel-ed Images, a collection of images produced using a combination of craft and fine art materials. "Since childhood, I have embraced materials considered part of the arts and crafts world," the artist explains. "It's a way for me to combine my childhood experiences of crafting with my grandmother and spending time with my carpenter father while he worked." Pushpins, sequins, beads, and thread come together to create images that have a pixelated look but a tactile quality. "The relationship between hard and soft plays an important role in my work. This is demonstrated through the materiality of fiber and wood... I pay homage to my father and grandmother by incorporating the same materials that played a part of my childhood."

Gregory received a BFA in Sculpture from Virginia Commonwealth University in 2008 and an MFA in Sculpture from The Ohio State University in 2011. Since then, he has exhibited widely in solo and group shows, most recently in Pointillist Revival at City Art in Columbia, SC, and in Glimmer at USC Upstate.

The North Charleston City Gallery is situated in two corridors of the northwest corner of the Charleston Area Convention Center, located on Coliseum Drive in North

Fabulon in Charleston, SC, Offers Group Exhibit in Response to Summer

Fabulon, A Center for Art and Education, located in the West Ashley area of Charleston, SC, will present Souvenirs of Summer, on view from Aug. 14 through Oct. 6, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 26, from 5-8pm.

As summer swiftly comes to a close, we transition to new schedules, rituals, and routines. For some it is a new beginning associated with starting school, but for others it is bittersweet evidence that children are growing up and venturing out. Perhaps our parents are in the autumn of their years. Often we are too busy to savor the fleeting moments. Or maybe we are acutely aware that this is the very moment we will miss.

Work by Susan Irish

Work by Nancy Warren

We asked artists to share their representation of that concept and these queries:

What conjures up a sense of nostalgia? What have you lost?

What do you hold most dear? For what do you long?

See homage to a different time when children were curious and played freely. There are documents of special places that have changed over time. Witness reminders of all that is precious and ephemeral.

Each year in late August, Fabulon artists regroup after vacation adventures to show recent work, commemorate the passage of time, and start off the new gallery season. We call this show Souvenirs of Summer.

This year we welcome some new artists, local friends, and new acquaintances from across the nation.

Artists participating in this exhibit include: (Painting) Louise Aug, Charleston, SC; Christine Blyth, Charleston, SC; Brad Carroll, Mount Pleasant, SC; Rosemary Giusti Charleston, SC; Dillon Art Klein, Charleston, SC; Judy McSween, Charleston, SC; and Henry Woolfe, Charleston, SC. (Photography) Dale Aren, Charleston, SC; John Belue, Pittsburgh, PA; Ana Delgado, Brooklyn, NY; Marlene Herrera, Miami FL; David Lunan, Charleston, SC; Nicole Robinson, Charleston, SC; and Tanya Sue Todd, Harrells, NC. Society of Bluffton Artists in Bluffton, SC, Offers Works by Nicholas Di Mona

The Society of Bluffton Artists in Bluffton, SC, will present an exhibit of works by Nicholas Di Mona, wood sculptor and wood turner, on view in the SOBA Gallery, from Aug. 7 through Sept. 3, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 11, beginning at 5pm.

Di Mona creates unusual wood sculptures from dead and fallen trees. The beauty and elegance of the knots, inclusions, grain and natural imperfections make the final product a one-of-a-kind piece of art.

"When turning a project, I am the mechanic, but God is the designer," Di Mona said. "I rarely have a predetermined vision of the final product."

Di Mona began carving when he was 10 years old, making objects from his grandfather's wine grape boxes. His creations included realistic birds, animals and wood spirits from Basswood.

Di Mona's passion included a stint as a president of the Nature Coast Carving Club of Inverness, FL, and the Hands On WoodTurners Club of Beverly Hills, FL. Additionally, he has shared his craft with Page 8 - Carolina Arts, August 2017

Art League of Hilton Head on Hilton Head Island, SC, Offers Works by Gayle Miller

Art League of Hilton Head on Hilton Head Island, SC, will present Gayle Miller: Women Together, Feminine Expressions in Watercolor, on view at the Art League Gallery, inside Arts Center of Coastal Carolina, from Aug. 1 - 26, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 9 from 5-7pm.

After graduating from the University of Maryland, Miller's relocation for her career ultimately lead her to Apparel Arts of San Francisco where she delved into clothing design and patterning. While at AASF, she discovered her love of watercolor painting. Fifteen years later, Miller has found great success here in the Lowcountry; she is President of Society of Bluffton Artists, Vice President of All About Art, exhibits additionally at Alexander's Restaurant, Twenty/ 20 Coffee Shop, and was the cover artist of Lady Lowcountry for 10 months.

Work by Gayle Miller

Miller's exhibition Women Together features "stunning, eclectic, fashionable women that are fun to paint and very expressive" describes Miller, "some of my personal attitude shows in their style." Her whimsical watercolors portray a variety of

Main & Maxwell in Greenwood, SC, Features Works by Randi Johns

Main & Maxwell in Greenwood, SC, will present an exhibit of works by its newest Member Artist, Randi Johns of Pickens, SC, on view from Aug. 1 - 31, 2017.

Johns joined the membership gallery in June and has a number of works currently on display. Main & Maxwell is a unique gallery offering a selection of high quality art and handcrafted pieces. It is the intent of the gallery to support our community by featuring locally and regionally produced work and by providing our member artists with a means to grow their craft through our exclusive granting program.

As a child, during the long and dark winters of Denmark, Johns was often found with her nose pressed flat against the exclusive shop windows of inner Copenhagen. Not because of the items on display, but because of the brilliant colors and bright lights. Inadvertently, the colors came to represent her fairytale universe.

Work by Randi Johns

AR.

In the constant pursuit of products by gifted artisans for gallery inventory Johns came across an artist colony in Mexico, San Miguel de Allende. San Miguel was like revisiting her fairytale universe of colors which resulted in a one-year sabbatical to this location where she had her first solo shows in Mexico City and San Miguel de Allende.

Eventually life circumstances took her back to Denmark where as a free-lance artist she created interactive murals in institutions with a variety of groups such as developmentally handicapped patients, geriatrics and refugees in a Red Cross refugee center.

For the past decade, Johns has maintained a studio nestled in the woods of the Northwest corner of SC. In 2012, she was elected "South Carolina Artist of the Year" by Tosca Magazine of the twin cities. Her most recent work is inspired by the breathtaking scenery of mountains and streams, as well as by the multitude of environments imbedded in her heart and soul from around the world.

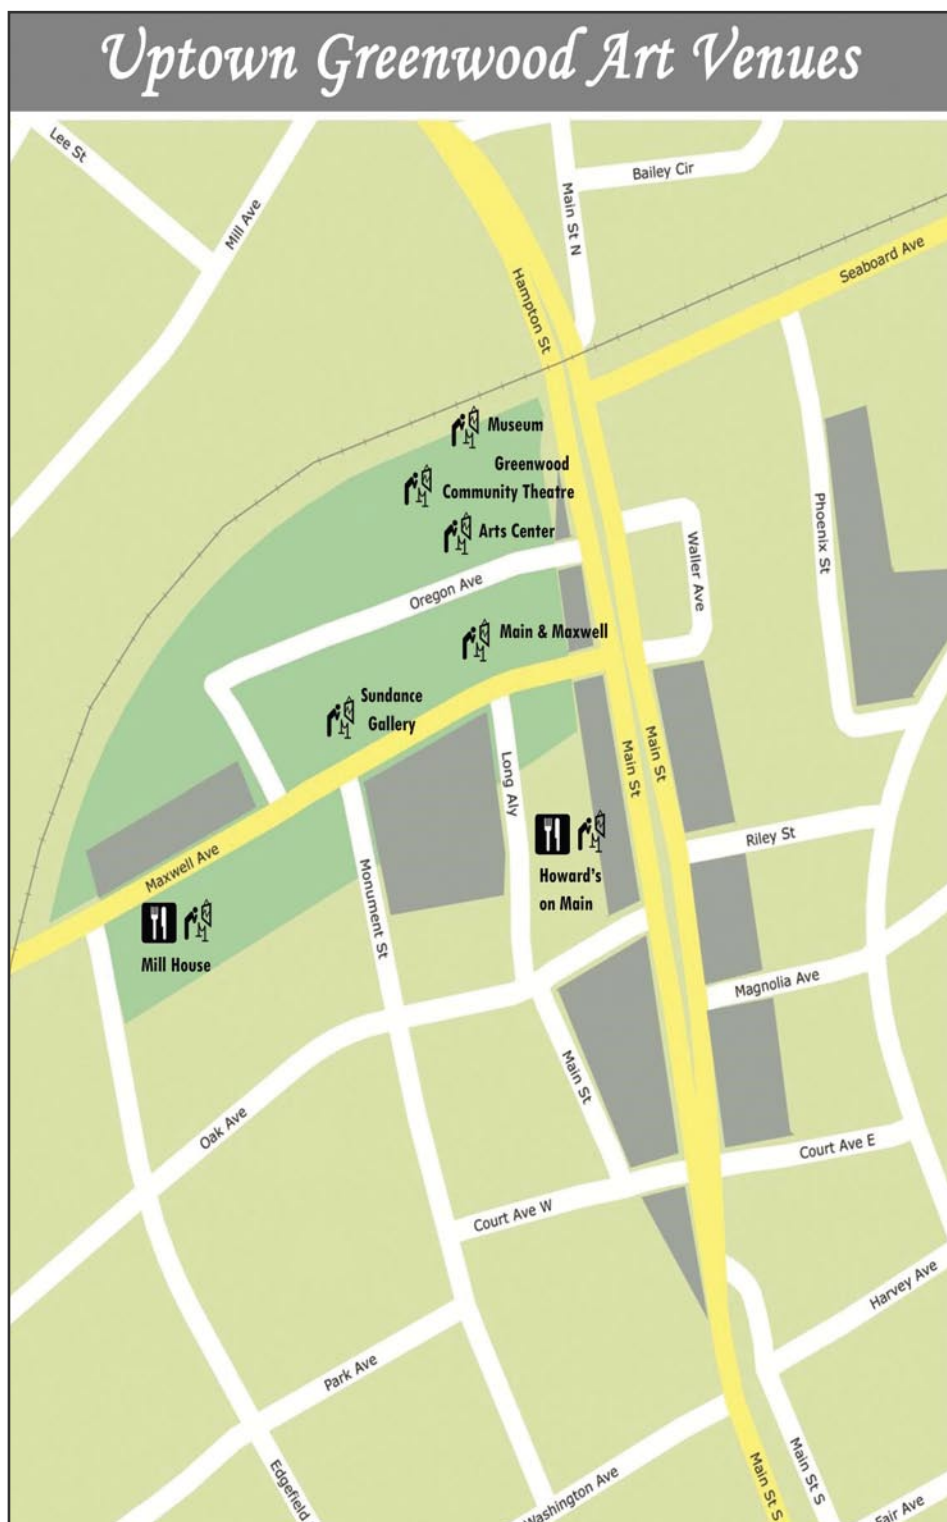

Main & Maxwell is located on Main Street in Greenwood, South Carolina, at the intersection of Main and Maxwell.

Ten years later, as a professional draftsman Johns decided to move to the United States and study art and architecture. In 1979, she graduated Cum Laude with a degree in Architecture from a five-year program at the University of Houston. After practicing architecture both in the US and Denmark, related avenues began to present themselves resulting in Johns opening a Fine Art and Design Gallery that featured local and regional artists in Eureka Springs,

Greenville Technical College in Greenville, SC, Features Works by Paul Yanko

Greenville Technical College in Greenville, SC, will present, Snap to Grid. Migrate from Center. Deviate and Expand, featuring works by Paul Yanko, on view at RIVERWORKS Gallery, from Aug. 4 through Sept. 24, 2017. A reception will be held on Sept. 1, from 6-9pm, with a Gallery Talk at 7pm.

This is a single exhibition with a 3 phrase title. Each phrase applies to each of the works in Yanko's exhibition which consists of five works on paper anchored by a site-specific wall mural. The works initiate from a horizontal grid with abstract shapes and images that migrate from the center as they deviate from the grid, with marks that expand to describe texture and record shapes and colors.

Yanko speaks of his grid as "shelving to categorize and organize objects." His works are autobiographical, an amalgam of the visual vocabulary he has been building since childhood in his mother's kindergarten classroom, through his lifelong encounters with art, including Egyptian hieroglyphs, his great grandmother's sampler, and the paintings of Wayne Thiebaud, Paul Klee and Claude Monet. His collection though lyrical and poetic is not just a personal language. Yanko asks, like Monet's haystacks, "for engagement over time, not just an instant read."

Yanko often uses "reveal" in speaking about his process and his completed works. Each phrase in his title refers to an action. He is inviting us to accompany him as his process reveals his images. Beginning First Friday, Aug. 4, Yanko will begin work on his mural in Riverworks Gallery and we can literally accompany him as he reveals those shapes, colors and textures. For subsequent dates and times that he will be painting in Riverworks Gallery, please e-mail to (Eliza-

Clemson City Hall in Clemson, SC, Offers Regional UHQT Quilt Show

The ARTS Center of Clemson is pleased to announce the opening of Inside / Outside, the Upstate Heritage Quilt Trail Exhibit, on view at Clemson, City Hall, 1250 Tiger Blvd. #1, Clemson, SC. The exhibit will run through Sept. 29, 2017. The exhibit celebrates the link between the quilts and the quilt blocks.

The exhibit features eight unique hand-made quilts, each with their own special history and story. Each quilt pattern is carefully recreated on a 4' x 4' quilt block that is then installed on the UHQT trail. Typically, you must travel the Upstate Heritage Quilt Trail to view the beautiful patterns and nostalgic pictures. But, during the exhibition at Clemson City Hall, you can see a select group of the quilts and quilt block patterns together in one location. Each quilt celebrates a rich history, a love of design, color and dedication to the craft of quilting.

The Upstate Heritage Quilt Trail gives locals and visitors a guide by which to seek out some of the fascinating history of this region. There is much to discover beyond just the beautiful quilt squares themselves. Visit the Upstate Heritage Quilt Trail website at (www.uhqt.org), for a full list of quilt trail stops, interactive maps, and suggested itineraries.

Furman University in Greenville, SC, Offers Works by Liz Rundorff Smith

Work by Liz Rundorff Smith

Furman University in Greenville, SC, will present Found Painting, an exhibit of paintings by Liz Rundorff Smith, on view in the Thompson Gallery, in the Roe Art Building, from Aug. 1 - 25, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 25, from 6-7:30pm. Rundorff Smith, who is Art School Director for Greenville Center for Creative Arts (GCCA), will present a talk about her work during a reception.

In a statement, Rundorff Smith says, "My work explores the presence of loss and the abandonment of the secure to confront the instability of memory. I am interested in capturing the traces that are left behind when a tangible presence is lost. In the precarious space between representation and abstraction I find a compelling duality between presence and absence. I work from familiar spaces that are stripped of detail so that the resulting imagery is an uncanny reminder of a place but serves as a physical representation of loss. Ultimately, the image left behind in the process, while tied to a tangible experience, serves as a mask of the original moment."

Rundorff Smith received a bachelor's in Studio Art from the College of Wooster (Wooster, OH) in 2000. She studied abroad at The Marchutz School of Painting in Aix en Provence, France in 1998 and The British Institute of Florence in Florence, Italy in 2004. From 2000 to 2003 she served as Program Director of the Hoyt Institute of Fine Arts in New Castle, PA, where she developed and organized exhibitions and educational programming. In 2005, she received an MFA in Painting from Edinboro University of Pennsylvania.

Rundorff Smith moved to Greenville in 2006 to serve as Program Director for the Artisphere arts festival until July of 2016. During her tenure with Artisphere, the festival gained national recognition and top industry rankings.

As Art School Director, Rundorff Smith upholds GCCA's mission is to enrich the cultural fabric of the community through visual arts promotion, education and inspiration.

Rundorff Smith lives in Travelers Rest, SC, with her husband and two daughters, and continues to exhibit her work in solo and group exhibitions.

Greenville Technical College in Greenville, SC, Features Works by Demorris Giovanni Dodd

Greenville Technical College in Greenville, SC, will present D25, an exhibit of works by Demorris Giovanni Dodd, on view at the RIVERWORKS Gallery, from Aug. 3 - 6, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 4, from 6-9pm.

D25 is an exhibition of photography made by current Greenville Technical College student, Demorris Giovanni Dodd. Dodd has proven himself to be an exceptional student and more importantly an exceptional human being filled with empathy.

Dodd speaks eloquently about this series of photographs and himself, “D25 is a series depicting the people and surroundings of where I came from. I want to explore the idea of growth and people’s misconceptions of who people are based on their current appearance. For instance, now I may be in coffee/tea shops and dress in menswear but eight years ago I was in the hood. People think that once your outside appearance changes, you change. In reality I’m still in the hood, I’m still the young man from District 25. The hood never left me. I just adapted to new environments and people. I feel as if the rest of society doesn’t understand that people in the hood live normal lives too.”

“21 Savage has a lyric that states ‘I’m just another bad young nigga from the apartments.’ I want to establish that it’s all the same with me. So no matter how people look at me now, I remember how easy it is to go down another road. I was presented with some of the same opportunities everyone else has, I just chose my way. I’m also not here to say that what I chose was right or wrong. The uniqueness of humanity comes from how we each decide to make our way through life.”

“This series presents questions: ‘Have I truly made it out of the hood if my people are still there?’ — I guess this is a Moses syndrome — I think to myself, ‘how can

Work by Demorris Giovanni Dodd

I eat if my family isn’t eating?’ ‘Is it my responsibility to give back?’”

“Generation after generation of kids are growing up in my neighborhood, District 25, and we all see the same struggles and hardships. Many of us were raised by drug money, EBT, and single mothers. No one can ever take these experiences from us.”

“I’m not looking for street credit or to exploit any of my subjects. If anyone is exploited in this project it would be myself— this project has to deal with me being vulnerable, and everyone around me telling my story and how my surroundings shaped me to be the person I am today—these images tell the story of myself and the others who were brought up like me. The goal is to be more open and explore the depths of what I’m made of. I want viewers to see each layer of self- discovery and consume them as honest truths, or self-realizations.”

Cabarrus Arts Council in Concord, NC, Celebrates 10 Years with Exhibit

Cabarrus Arts Council in Concord, NC, will present Ten, an anniversary exhibition featuring the new works of previously exhibited, on view in The Galleries, from Aug. 3 through Oct. 20, 2017. An Art Walk reception will be held on Aug. 11, from 6-9pm.

It’s a celebratory year for which marks its tenth anniversary this month with a special exhibition, Ten. The exhibition will feature the current works of 25 artists whose pieces have shown in The Galleries during the last decade.

“I can hardly believe it has been 10 years since the grand opening of The Galleries,” said CEO & President Noelle Rhodes Scott. “Our goal from the beginning has been to exhibit high quality art work from across the nation as well as local art.”

The Galleries opened one year before the recession, and during a time when no other gallery existed in Cabarrus County. To ensure its success, Scott organized evening art walks, inviting downtown businesses to create temporary outdoor galleries featuring local artists.

Work by Tim Ford

“In a community where people were not accustomed to visiting galleries, we needed to figure out a way to make them accessible and enjoyable,” said Scott. “The very first walk attracted 300 people, restaurants ran out of food and downtown shops that stayed open had sales.”

Work by Holly Fisher

Curated by Rebecca Collins, Ten’s artists exemplify the diversity of The Galleries’ past exhibitions throughout the last decade.

“I wanted to show a wide range of artwork in a selection of mediums and with specific attention to local and regional artists,” said Collins.

The 25 artists featured in Ten include: Ráed Al-Rawi, Byron A. Baldwin, Elizabeth Bradford, Regina Burchett, Robert Alvin Crum, Carolyn DeMeritt, Susan Edmonson, Ingrid Erickson, Kiki Farish, Andy Farkas, Louise Farley, Charles Farrar, Holly Fischer, Timothy Ford, Harriet Marshall Goode, Paul Keysar, Roger Martin, Jerry Measimer, Sonia Handelman Meyer, Terri Otten, Walter Stanford, Beth J. Harvey B. Gantt Center for African-American Arts + Culture in Charlotte, NC, Offers Four New Exhibitions

The Harvey B. Gantt Center for African-American Arts + Culture in Charlotte, NC, located at the Levine Center for the Arts is presenting four new exhibitions, on view through the first of 2018.

Instill & Inspire: Selections from the John & Vivian Hewitt Collection of African-American Art, will be on view through Jan. 22, 2018.

For over a 50-year period, John and Vivian Hewitt visited galleries, artists’ studios and exhibitions, collecting hundreds of paintings, etchings and sketches. The John & Vivian Hewitt Collection of African-American Art is an assemblage of fifty-eight two-dimensional works celebrating the expression and passion of twenty artists, including Charlotte-born Romare Bearden and other master artists, Margaret Burroughs, Jonathan Green, Jacob Lawrence, Elizabeth Catlett, Ann Tanksley and Henry Ossawa Tanner.

The Gantt Center is the permanent home for the Hewitt Collection. Acquired by Bank of America and pledged to the Center in 1998, the Hewitt is a cornerstone of the Gantt Center’s permanent collection.

Immortal: A New Series by Miya Bailey, will be on view through Jan. 22, 2018.

Memories, visions and dreams elicit stories about personal experiences, histories and cultures. They are a part of the human experience. Elie Wiesel once said, "Without memory there is no culture ... there would be no civilization, no society, no future," yet, with time, memories can fade, become lost, or forgotten.

North Carolina-born and Atlanta-based artist Miya Bailey does just this in his new exhibition, Immortal. This exhibition, created for the Gantt Center, explores Bailey's personal memories of happiness and pain and how artists immortalize people, places and the past through the visual arts.

Sloane Siobhan: Archetypes of the Subconscious, will be on view through Jan. 22, 2018.

Archetypes of the Subconscious is an exhibition by Charlotte artist Sloane Siobhan. This series explores the notions of growth, loss and the inner battle of the mind, the spirit, and the heart. Siobhan's raw emotions following the loss of her mother in November 2016 serve as the conduit for this artful expression of love, heartbreak, remembrance, and grief. Fears and other hidden emotions, intertwined with beautifully rich colors are captured by the artist in each image.

Both mesmerizing and mysterious, Siobhan's works represents the interactions, and sometimes conflicts, of her conscious and subconscious states of mind. These thoughts are characterized by stunning power animals – pandas, tigers and grizzly bears – and antagonists such as bees.

The Darryl Atwell Collection of African-American Art, curated by Dr. Michael D. Harris, will be on view through Jan. 22, 2018.

This exhibition is the debut of one of the most expansive collections of abstract and contemporary African-American art.

These exhibits of contemporary collections, figurative and abstract paintings, and mixed-media sculptures celebrate collectors of African-American art. Join us as we celebrate collectors who are preserving African-American art for future generations.

Jerald Melberg Gallery in Charlotte, NC, Features Works by Lee Hall

Jerald Melberg Gallery in Charlotte, NC, is presenting Lee Hall, A Memorial Exhibition: The Last Paintings, on view through Sept. 9, 2017.

Jerald Melberg Gallery is pleased to present an exhibition of new abstract landscapes by Lee Hall (1934-2017). The exhibition is comprised of the last paintings Hall completed before her death in April of this year. Jerald Melberg Gallery has represented Lee Hall for four years and this is her fourth solo exhibition at the gallery.

Hall was a North Carolina native and renowned Abstract Expressionist, whose muses were the American and Mediterranean landscapes. Her paintings, titled by the locale they represent, were rendered using sophisticated, muted color relationships and varied, textural painting techniques. Her poetic landscapes are iterations of the tradition of abstraction derived from meditations on nature, whose forbearers include a myriad of great minds from painters of the Sung Dynasty to modernist John Marin.

She leaves an enormous legacy as an exceptional painter as well as a respected educator and writer. Hall stood toe to toe with the great artists of the New York School, earning herself representation at Betty Parsons' famed New York gallery. Lee also served as president of the esteemed Rhode Island School of Design, and she has written a number of books, including biographies of Willem and Elaine DeKooning and Betty Parsons.

Lee Hall was born in Lexington, NC, in 1934 and pursued her academic career at the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, where she studied with the painters John Opper and George Ivy. She received her MA in 1958 and her PhD in 1965, both from New York University, and continued her post-doctoral work at the prestigious Warburg Institute at the University of London with research fellowships from the American Philosophical Society.

In New York, she forged close relationships with leaders in American modern painting, including Elaine and Willem de Kooning, and exhibited alongside Jackson Pollock, Mark Rothko and Robert Motherwell.

Hall's works are held in the permanent

Ciel Gallery in Charlotte, NC, is presenting Accidental Obsessions, on view through Aug. 26, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 4, from 6-9pm.

Artists have a long history of marrying obsession to creation, often culminating in bodies of work that both delight and slightly mystify. Through the artist lens, you will see and feel how each artist craves like an addict, longs for it like lovers, obsesses until overtaken with process and just. Cant. Quit.

This art exhibition features the work of Jean Cauthen, Pam Goode, Laura McRae Hitchcock and Marianne Huebner.

too small and rush-hour-congested on thin pages. Breaking every rule of design, there was no visual 'resting place' from the frenetic. It was simply delicious, and I couldn't get enough of its magic."

"Years later, I find myself compelled to congest canvases with thousands of shapes in unlikely combinations of color. These puzzle pieces find form as trees, stacks of playing cards or glowing chandeliers. In this chaos, I work to convey order, with the goal that harmony, meaning and maybe a glimpse of magic might emerge."

"As a mosaic artist," says Pam Goode, "my daily job is to create art based on a fluid and ever-changing concept while using fixed, unyielding, hard as rock materials that I must shape to my will. It seems quite counter-intuitive. Stubborn and recalcitrant, in fact — a match made in heaven. It's probably no real surprise to anyone that my two earliest art influences were both obsessives who collected and created with trash. Glittery trash. Treasure indeed. I work primarily with glass and china, and have been known to pattern cuts that measure a third of an inch on the longest side."

Painter Marianne Huebner talks about her obsessions in cultural terms. "I ritualize the hunt at art supply stores like Americans craving Starbucks. Hand me a stash of new supplies and I'm like a kid with a new iPhone. Knowing my weaknesses, a friend suggested I research Henry Darger, a self-taught artist compelled to document his life through visual story and imaginative forms. Henry used repetition to convey relationship, meaning, and liveliness. He traced. He copied. He drew and painted. Fifteen thousand pages later, he died with his work unfinished."

"Intrigued, I began to explore ways to repeat my own forms. I bought tracing paper. I gridded images. I obtained a light table and then a pantograph — something like the Venti Vanilla Soy Latte to the standard cup of home brew. New art toys — new ideas — new ways to obsess over form and repetition of form and repetition of form."

"My obsession with nests started innocently enough," says Laura McRae Hitchcock. "I was struggling to work through the heartache of children growing up and leaving home, our nest. My youngest was starting his senior year, and without planning it, I painted a little nest with light glowing through and one feather left inside. I ached as I painted, remembering our house full of children, endless activity, and my safe haven in the backyard studio. And as I painted, I realized that life was about to open up; I just had to look for the light in my empty nest and I would find it. Since that morning I've painted over a hundred nests, and each seems to be a metaphor for my life at that moment. Interesting, isn't it? How life can give you the gift of an 'accidental' obsession to help you figure it all out?"

Mint Hill Town Hall in Mint Hill, NC, Offers Photography Exhibit

Mint Hill Town Hall in Mint Hill, NC, is presenting New Faces in Photography, featuring the work of eight new members of Mint Hill Arts, on view through Oct. 10, 2017.

Mint Hill Arts is pleased to announce its latest exhibit of artists at the Mint Hill Town Hall Gallery, "who express their creative talents through photography. Those featured are Jay Alexander, Carol Hambridge, Sharon Houck, Patricia Joyner, Steve Lindenman, Dale Mayberry, Howie Silinski, and Jacob Thomas. Although all eight work to capture the essence of the subjects they examine photographically, their approaches are far from homogeneous.

Several of the artists, including Alexander, Mayberry and Silinski, are drawn to nature and landscapes and lean toward finding the right lighting and composition to capture nature at its best. Mayberry and Silinski were both inspired by the work of Hugh Morton, photographer and nature conservationist who founded Grandfather Mountain; Silinski has photos on exhibit at Grandfather Mountain's Nature Museum.

About photographing nature, Alexander comments, "I have always found that having a camera in my hand allows me to see things around me that I would otherwise miss, and to see the world from a different perspective," and this is echoed by Silinski, who says photography "allows me to become more intimate with life's delicate beauty."

Jacob Thomas, on the other hand, experiments with photography to create something the world has never seen before. To do this, he uses image enhancement and a lot of different lighting effects such as prisms and fairy lights. Carol Hambridge, who, designed the Matthews Alive Posters for 2013, 2016, and 2017, manipulates light on floral arrangements to capture unimagined images of light, life and color that "narrow the gap between what is real and what is imagined."

Steve Lindenman is a freelance event and commercial photographer. In addition to corporate work, he shoots for variety of publications, which includes professional and college sports. His work has also been published internationally, as he has traveled to Europe and Asia to shoot on assignment. Houck is a professional equine photographer. Thus the subject matter featured in the show ranges from landscapes to floral arrangements to horses to sports images.

The Town Hall Gallery is located in the rear of City Hall, on both the first and second levels, on Mint Hill Village Lane, Mint Hill, NC.

City Art Gallery in Columbia, SC, Features Works by Jan Swanson

City Art Gallery in Columbia, SC, will present The Way I See It, an exhibition of paintings by Jan Swanson, on view from Aug. 3 through Sept. 16, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 3, from 5-8pm.

Swanson says, "I hope that when people see these paintings they will know that I did them. I think they will. Some of them have schoolwork from my great grandparents' house in them, others are just painted from things I've seen around Columbia and other Page 16 - Carolina Arts, August 2017 places. Others are things I remember from childhood, specifically my father selling furniture and fabric and the pearls my mother wore. Hopefully they all reflect my sense of humor which is my favorite quality about myself!"

Swanson is a graduate of Clemson University and a native of Asheville, NC. An artist working in oils, acrylic and collage, she has taken drawing and painting classes

“The 50th anniversary of the South Carolina Arts Commission provides an ideal opportunity to survey the breadth and depth of art made in South Carolina,” says New York art critic and author Eleanor Heartney, who curated SC Fellows Part I & II. “The recipients of the award were selected solely on the basis of artistic merit, and as the works here reveal, they work in media ranging from ceramic, papermaking and textiles to painting, sculpture, photography, installation and assemblage. The work is equally diverse in content. The fellowship winners present private worlds, wrestle with social and political issues, explore the expressive potential of abstraction, and celebrate the complexities and beauties of the natural world.”

Heartney is a contributing editor for Art in America magazine and the author of several books, including Art & Today (2008). In 2004 she curated Thresholds, the traveling exhibition of art from five Southern states organized by the SC Arts Commission. In 2009, she curated The State Art Collection: Contemporary Conversations, a two-part traveling exhibition organized by the commission and 701 CCA.

The McMaster Gallery section of SC Fellows Part I will present work by: Scott Belville (now in Athens, GA), Tarleton Blackwell (Manning, SC), Barbara Duval (Charleston, SC), James Edwards (Columbia, SC), Jamie Davis (Greenville, SC), John Gilliam (Greenville, SC), Jean Grosser (Hartsville, SC), Mana Hewitt (Columbia, SC), James Lawton (South Dartmouth, MA), Linda McCune (Greer, SC), Phil Moody (Rock Hill, SC), Gunars Strazdins (Columbia, SC), Michelle Van Parys (Charleston, SC), Mike Vatalaro (Greenville, SC), and the late Charleston painter Manning Williams.

The 701 CCA section of the first part presents Russell Biles (Greenville, SC),

Arts Council of Henderson County in Hendersonville, NC, Offers Annual Open Exhibition

The Arts Council of Henderson County in Hendersonville, NC, will present the 14th Annual Bring Us Your Best, an all-media visual art exhibition, on view in the Blue Ridge Conference Hall of the TEDC building at Blue Ridge Community College in Flat Rock, NC, opens with a reception on Aug. 4, from 5-7pm. Gathering the work of 100 or more diverse artists, this all-media visual art exhibition will be on display through Aug. 18, 2017.

First ($250), second ($150), and third ($100) place awards will be presented in four categories: 2-dimensional art, 3-dimensional art, fine craft, and photography. In addition, the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Hendersonville will announce the winner of the “One Planet, One World” award. The winning artwork will be the best representation of a world community recognizing the inherent worth and dignity of all beings, and the oneness and interdependence of all life, and the artist will receive $250.

The Artist’s Choice award will also be announced. Sponsored and presented by two local artist patrons, this award is selected by all artists who have work in the show. The Artist’s Choice award winner will receive a $300 cash prize.

The Starving Artist Art Supply and Custom Framing Shop is sponsoring the People’s Choice Award, which will be announced on Friday, Aug. 18, the last day of the exhibition. This award winner will be determined by the votes of all gallery visitors who will be encouraged to cast votes for their favorite piece in the show, and will receive a $250 gift certificate from The Starving Artist. Ten Honorable Mention awardees will receive $25 gift certificates from The Starving Artist at the reception.

The exhibition is sponsored by The Wax Family Memorial Funds, the Dr. Minor F. Watts Fund at the Community Foundation of Henderson County, The Starving Artist Fine Art Supply and Custom Framing Shop, and the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Hendersonville.

The Arts Council of Henderson County is a community organization that promotes, advocates for and nurtures the arts in Henderson County and western North Carolina. The Arts Council is supported in part by the North Carolina Arts Council, a division of the Department of Natural & Cultural Resources; funds administered by the Community Foundation of Henderson County, Henderson County, Henderson County Tourism Development Authority, and the City of Hendersonville.

In 1970, at the young age of 11, Griffin embarked on an artistic journey to Florence, Italy and it changed his life. While attending the American International School of Florence, he lived and apprenticed with fresco artist Ben Long. Griffin's early artistic training was heavily influenced by Italian Renaissance masters.

Griffin attended the North Carolina School of the Arts and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Art. His work has evolved from a deep-rooted understanding and appreciation of the academic approach to a more personal and direct interpretation of his experiences and surroundings. Griffin is a perceptual painter; his work is based on observation and direct response. While he remains faithful to the principles and ideals of his classical training, his work has developed into a looser, more confident voice - a testament not only to his skill, but to his personal vision.

The Art Cellar Gallery focuses on North Carolina artists while including select artists from across the Southeast, showing work from large scale canvases to smaller works on paper as well as sculpture, glass and clay. A High Country arts destination celebrating 25 seasons.

TRAC Galleries in Spruce Pine and Burnsville, NC, Offers Toe River Valley Exhibitions

It's about place. It's about the destination. It's about the art we find when we arrive. And it arrives on Aug. 19 in Burnsville and Aug. 26 in Spruce Pine, NC, when the Toe River Arts Council hosts two community wide exhibitions. Toe River Valley that will run through Sept. 23, 2017, at both galleries, is a unique look at the Toe River and its surrounding countryside from the viewpoint of painters, photographers, and 3-dimensional artists. Even children will have their hand at painting what they see on their rides home from school each afternoon. Receptions will be held in Spruce Pine on Aug. 25, from 5 to 7pm and Burnsville on Sept. 22, from 5 to 7pm.

Roan Mountain range marks the northern point of the region with its windswept, forested paths crossing over the Appalachian Trail to the ridge. Mt. Mitchell marks the south, the highest point this side of the Mississippi River with centuries of awe-inspiring views. And meandering between and predating these 400 million plus-year old peaks is the Toe River, one of the oldest rivers in the world. Along that river,

Work by Jennifer Bueno

along its many tributaries, live the artists who chose to make this place their homes, to value the land on which they create, to protect the waterways that flow beside. The Toe River is what makes our community so precious, so necessary to preserve. This exhibition will highlight the river, the creeks and valleys, a tangible appreciation for and the guardianship of our watershed by highlighting the art of its artists.

These concordant shows will showcase interpretive photography by Doug Sudduth and paintings from Blue Ridge Fine Arts Guild artists. Their work will document life along the river in pencil, paint and digital imagery - a watershed of arctic blues and greens, rusts, clouds of snow along the banks - seemingly endless, ever moving, meandering, cutting through the land like a warm knife through butter. And for that one early fall month, Mitchell and Yancey will applaud the work of the Toe River Valley Watershed, an organization dedicated to creating solutions that will help the local economy grow without compromising one of our most important assets - natural resources. Noted geologist Alex Glover will speak at both galleries. Kids will paint rocks as they learn about the fragility of our ecosystem. They will dip their "Toes in the Toe," and create murals that will be displayed in both counties. Even Hellbender Rocky will slither out of the mud to watch a drones-eye-view of the Valley.

With over 400 artists living and working in the two-county area, Mitchell and Yancey have become a destination for the intrepid traveler, seeker of art and the journey. Spend the day; come for a weekend or a week. Experience the beauty of the Toe River through the eyes of its artists in these two collaborative exhibitions in both Burnsville and Spruce Pine.

Toe River Arts Council is a non-profit organization established in 1976 to connect the arts and the community. It is supported by other organizations, individuals, and businesses that understand the benefit of arts to a thriving region.

Upstairs Artspace in Tryon, NC, Offers Exhibits of Glass, Clay, and Altered Photographs

Upstairs Artspace in Tryon, NC, will present three new exhibits featuring works in glass, clay and altered photographs, on view from Aug. 12 through Sept. 22, 2017, a Walk & Talk will be offered on Aug. 12, at 5pm, with a reception held from 6-7:30pm.

Vitreous Vessels showcases cast glass-and-steel work by Hayden Wilson, a second-generation glassmaker and native North Carolinian, now residing in Asheville. Wilson's sculptural pieces convey an aesthetic of clean lines inspired by modern utilitarian design. He exhibits widely, including the prestigious Blue Spiral 1, and is in many private collections.

American on Edge features haunting mixed media pieces by Sandee Johnson of Asheville. The work embodies paintings, monotypes, photographs and collages, much of which depicts the artist's angst about America's current political and cultural climate. Interpreting through her art, Johnson addresses topics like religion, race and greed. She has an impressive career of exhibiting nationally and internationally. This is her first Upstairs show.

Tides, Totems and Teapots presents well-established artists Diane Hopkins-Hughs, Greenville SC, and Gary Huntoon, Travelers Rest, SC. Hopkins-Hughs's current work reflects her concern about the environment, especially the global water crisis. Often starting with her photographs, she transforms them through processes like gelatin silver print, hand-colored gelatin print or pigmented ink jet print, resulting in beautiful, provocative wall pieces. Hopkins-Hughs has enjoyed more than 200 solo and group exhibits.

Huntoon is a well-rounded potter who does not limit himself to a single clay material, firing, glaze or decorating style. His totems and teapots are more sculptural than functional, and are seen frequently in regional fine craft shows. He is a dedicated teacher on many levels, including instructing at Tryon Arts and Crafts. Huntoon and Hopkins-Hughs, along with Wilson, have exhibited previously at the Upstairs.

Caldwell Arts Council in Lenoir, NC, Offers 32nd Annual Sculpture Celebration - Sept. 9, 2017

Take a fall day in North Carolina's welcoming foothills. Add a colorfully landscaped city park with a paved walking trail hugging a serene lake. To this natural beauty, bring imaginative creations of professional artists and amateurs dabbling purely for enjoyment. Welcome to Caldwell County's Sculpture Celebration, marking its 32nd anniversary in Lenoir, NC, on Sept. 9, 2017.

"The fact that this show has been around for [over] 30 years is testament to its quality," says Mike Roig, a renowned sculptor from Carboro, NC, who has entered his moveable sculptures nearly every year since 1995. His tree-like sculpture on heavily traveled Highway 321 North is one of the most visible in a county ranked exceptionally high for its collection of permanent outdoor artwork. Another famous piece is "Across the Grain," an earth cast sculpture created on site and installed in downtown Lenoir by internationally acclaimed sculptor Thomas Sayre.

Roig says the Celebration is unlike any other. "It is a great collection of art and a good place to make connections." He says the public can meet and talk with artists in a relaxed setting, and artists very often come away with commissions for new work and can connect with each other.

Co-sponsored by the Tri-State Sculptors Association and the Caldwell Arts Council, the event is held in Lenoir's T.H. Broyhill Walking Park.

"Having the sculpture celebration here in the gardens at the Broyhill Walking Park is like a marriage between God and man's creative handiwork. Everyone who attends feels the connection. Sculptures are nestled among the landscaping so that each one is like a new discovery," says Sheila Triplett-Brady, Executive Director of the Broyhill Family Foundation.

"Each year is better than the last, and I marvel that our small community offers such a unique experience. I enjoy watching the sculptors bring in their works, some on trucks so that they are swaying as if on a float in a parade, finding their niches, and displaying their art."

The show has always been known for its high quality, but the caliber of artists keeps notching up. Pieces vary from less than one-foot in size to more than 15 feet, and materials range from polished wood and metal to animal bones, consumer cast-offs and all types of found objects. Subjects range from carved granite statues and serious steel pyramids to creations of pure whimsy. Realistic and contemporary, stationary and movable, indoor and outdoor – all can be found there.

Tom Risser travels from close to South Carolina each year to be part of the show. Every year he says he can't wait until September to participate. "I love the energy," Risser says. "Being around other artists makes me feel supported for taking on this crazy passion. I don't go to sell things – though I do often – I go to see the artists, meet the public, and share stories. I get inspired by the work of so many great artists and I love seeing the joy on display in the work and in the hearts."

Each year, nationally recognized artists exhibit alongside novices competing for coveted merit awards and sales. Sculptors come from all over the eastern United States. And since the show is non-juried, anyone is welcome to compete. This year, about 70 artists are expected to enter up to three pieces of artwork each.

Artists choose a spot lakeside or streamside to install their work. Some artists choose to use canopy tents to protect delicate artwork from sun and possible showers. Most pieces, however, are dotted throughout the landscape, hanging from trees or cradled into the earth, creating a magnificent sculpture-park-for-a-day.

Visitors can take a quick stroll through the park and glimpse all the competition's entries in less than an hour. However, many choose to spend the day wandering slowly from one eye-catching sculpture to another. Although artists are limited to exhibiting three pieces, many bring photographic portfolios of their work so the public can view a fuller range.

After walking and talking, visitors can enjoy festival foods from the food vendors set up at one end of the park. Many bring blankets or lawn chairs to sit back and enjoy regional musicians performing live music. More than 3,000 visitors are expected this year, and shuttles provide convenient free access from parking areas.

For Whitney Claire Brown, the Caldwell Sculpture Celebration is a family affair. Her father, Bill Brown, Jr. and grandfather, Bill Brown, Sr. both participated in the first Celebration in 1985 and she and her mother came to support them. "When I grew up and became a ceramic sculptor. I started showing alongside my father. He has since passed the torch to me. Now I bring my sculptures and he and my mother come and support me."

Whitney calls the Sculpture Celebration a great platform for three-dimensional works of all kinds – large, small and in all media. "The park is a magical place for that day, a perfect platform for sculpture," she says.

Another well-loved tradition is the "Sculptors Welcome Dinner" party on Friday night before the event. This casual, informative evening is open to the public by reservation and includes dinner and live music. The party welcomes the participating sculptors and judge, sponsors and visitors. Many find this preview makes the following day's sculpture event more meaningful.

Work by Keith Bryanht, First Place, 2016

Saturday's show culminates with an awards presentation, followed by the Judge's Walking Tour of Winners. During this popular feature, judges share what piqued their interest and why they chose the winning pieces. "Best of Show," "The Stevens Family Foundation People's Choice," and other cash awards will total about $11,000 in payment to winning artists. Boosting the economy, many works will be sold that day or later in the year as artists complete commissions through contacts made at the event.

Nathaniel Miller moved to Lenoir in 2008 from a similar-sized town in West Virginia. "There wasn't much in the way of arts in my hometown, so I wasn't expecting much when I arrived here. Man, I was wrong." Miller had given up on making sculptures, but still had one of his pieces in his basement when Nancy Crawford, then affiliated with the Caldwell Arts Council, visited and recommended he enter his work. That piece won Best in Show and Miller has earned more awards since then.

"It was stunning for me. Having a place where I can show my work, well, it's made a big difference. I do a show and that same day, I'm thinking about what to create next." Miller says his sculptures are not your standard carved stone or wood pieces. The back end of a Cadillac is transformed into a living environment. The end of a canoe becomes a man.

Sculpture is a transformative art changing a material's form, appearance or character. In other ways, people, too, can be transformed. For your own transformative moment enter this date on your calendar: Sept. 9, 2017. But be forewarned. Once you experience September's Sculpture Celebration, you will want to be back year after year.

The public is reminded that Lenoir has two parks with "Broyhill" in the name. The Sculpture Celebration is now held at The T.H. Broyhill Walking Park.

The Sculpture Celebration was the brainchild of Dr. Henry Michaux, a Lenoir native and retired professor of sculpture at the University of South Carolina in Orangeburg, SC. Sam Sturgis, retired long-time director of the City of Lenoir Parks and Recreation Department, and Liza Plaster, retired Caldwell Arts Council Director.

According to Liza Plaster, former director of the Caldwell Arts Council, during the '80s these visionaries wished to hold an event that would both celebrate sculpture and serve as a catalyst to get more people to enjoy the park. Also involved in the plans was Bill Brown, a Linville Falls sculptor and son of one of the early directors of the Penland School of Crafts.

The early organizers were able to achieve a successful private/public partnership; the City of Lenoir agreed to pay for overhead costs, and private money from the Broyhill Family Foundation would be used to purchase selected works.

"That was the brilliant part," says Plaster. By using private money for purchase, the event successfully avoided the kind of controversy that has plagued many other communities that have found it impossible to garner unanimous public approval of art."

Some years, just one piece was purchased for public display; other years there may be three or more purchases. In all, more than 80 pieces now grace Caldwell County, which claims to hold more sculpture per capita than anywhere else in the country.

In Tandem Gallery in Bakersville, NC, Features Work by Noel Bailey

In Tandem Gallery in Bakersville, NC, will present an exhibit of works by ceramist Noel Bailey, on view from Aug. 1 - 31, 2017.

Bailey, who is a native of Waitsfield, VT, creates amazing work that epitomizes the area he lives. The light to dark color transition, altered contours, and smooth surfaces reminds one of cold, windswept, snow-capped mountains. One of the most unique qualities of Bailey's work is that he will actually cut thin lines in the walls of his pieces and pierces the bottoms which he then fills with glaze and fires. These small, delicate areas of transparency are mainly seen as you empty your mug or hold them up to the light to see the glow pass through. All the pieces are functional and high fired.

Work by Noel Bailey

Bailey writes: "I am a potter. I am in love with the material and the process and my practice and ideas evolve through making. My work is strongly influenced by the natural environment that I live and play in, with the various forms and processes associated with water composing a central, resounding theme. I'm drawn to serene, fluid, and graceful forms, which I find abundant in vertical ice and water-carved rock. What fascinates me are the rhythms of freeze and flux, ebb and flow, erosion and deposition.

My process engages these transformational cycles; the resulting dynamic surfaces convey a narrative of movement and change."

The In Tandem Gallery is fairly new – we're just one year old – and it specializes in studio ceramics and jewelry. It's located in the heart of Bakersville; a small town just outside of the Penland School of Crafts that has more artists per capita than anywhere else in the country. Our dear friend Dan Barron sent us some photos and a little history of the In Tandem Gallery's building.

"The building in which In Tandem is growing was built in 1895 according to official county records. Its history includes the first bank in Mitchell County and has been the home to others including the Merchant's and Farmer's Bank shown in this late 1930's photograph."

"The earliest photograph of the building is one which is estimated to be around the turn of the century. It last served as the Northwestern Bank before a new building was constructed nearby. The French Broad Coop used it for a local office at one time and it has been a studio for other artists before the In Tandem revitalization of both the building and Town of Bakersville," said Barron.

Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, Features Exhibit of Works by Southeastern Native Artists

The Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, has organized a new exhibition titled Home Land, which features a number of southeastern Native artists who honor their ancestral land through their work. The exhibition, which will be on view at the Museum's temporary On the Slope location, will run through Sept. 17, 2017.

Inspired by the Museum's recent acquisition Home Land, a cutting-edge contemporary basket by Eastern Band Cherokee artist Shan Goshorn, Asheville Art Museum Associate Curator Carolyn Grosch and Cherokee Indian Hospital's Lynne Harlan have co-curated an exhibition that explores the connections southeastern Native artists have to their ancestral homelands.

Drawn primarily from the collection of Lambert Wilson, a passionate collector of southeastern Native art for over 30 years, the exhibition brings together artists working in a variety of media whose art addresses the legacy of removal and the enduring ties Native artists and their communities have to their lands of origin.

The basket Home Land, woven in a traditional Cherokee style single-weave technique, features a reproduced letter that Cherokee Chief John Ross wrote to the US War Department in the 1830s, as well as generations-old medicine stories that speak to the healing remedies of indigenous plants and waters. These elements woven together represent the fierce connection Native people have to their land.

Asheville Gallery of Art in Asheville, NC, Features Works by Anne Bonnyman and Jane Snyder

The Asheville Gallery of Art in Asheville, NC, will present True Colors, featuring works by Anne Bonnyman and Jane Snyder, on view from Aug. 1 - 31, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 4, from 5-8pm.

While the artists have different artistic styles, the title reflects their shared history singing in the chorus Womansong of Asheville, and the sense of identity each finds in the lyrics to the 1986 song by Cyndi Lauper:

*And I see your true colors
Shining through
I see your true colors
And that's why I love you
So don't be afraid
To let them show
Your true colors
True colors are beautiful
Like a rainbow*

Anne Bonnyman says the exploration of color has always been a primary motivation for her in painting, both in its application and its relationships. "My work in this show will be a combination of local landscapes and scenes from my travels in other parts of the world. These paintings reflect my fascination with color explored in a variety of contexts. What is 'true' about color for me is that it conveys the power of the scene before me." Bonnyman is a retired Episcopal priest who came to Asheville 6 years ago.

Jane Snyder states, "As an artist, it is not always possible to feel like one's work truly represents the imagination. But this time, the vision and the imagery emerged through a most gratifying process of paint on paper. This current body of work is a most honest representation of my creative optimism - true colors! It's a rare moment that I look forward to sharing in the August show." A well-known teacher of drawing and watercolor living in Asheville, Snyder says, "I can't decide if I love teaching art more than making art."

As well as the paintings of the two artists, those of the other 29 gallery members will be on display and for sale through the month of August.

American Folk Art Gallery in Asheville, NC, Features Works by Gallery Artists

American Folk Art Gallery in Asheville, NC, will present 2017 Coming Home, on view from Aug. 3 - 23, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 4, from 5-8pm.

What images do the words Coming Home evoke for you? Is it a person, a place or a feeling? The answer for all of us is different, as it is for American Folk's artists. Artists were asked to consider Home and create their own interpretations. The potters, of course, have created wonderful tableware as many of us conjure the idea of a meal with family and friends... The painters imagery evokes both reality and hopes and dreams.

The show will include paintings and pottery by a dozen artists of the gallery including Ellen Langford, Chris Bruno, Lucy Hunnicutt, Shawn Ireland, and Kate Johnston.

Woolworth Walk in Asheville, NC, Features Works by Julie Calhoun-Roepnack and Paul Moberg

Woolworth Walk in Asheville, NC, will present Julie Calhoun-Roepnack + Paul Moberg, featuring ceramic works by Julie Calhoun-Roepnack and mixed media works by Paul Moberg, on view in the FW Gallery, from Aug. 1 - 30, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 4, from 5-7pm.

Paying homage to the Arts and Crafts movement of the early 20th century, Calhoun-Roepnack designs a distinctive mid-range (cone 6), lead-free, fully functional pottery collection inspired by the beauty and flora of Western North Carolina. Tall pines, shrubbery, rolling landscape and open sky are all individually hand-carved to create a balanced and soothing nature-scape on each piece; an image that is both familiar and indicative of the stunning scenery and terrain of the Blue Ridge Mountains of Western North Carolina.

Work by Julie Calhoun-Roepnack

Paul Moberg's journey to the arts is deeply linked to his need to build, create and manipulate his environment. At a young age he was drawn to sculpture, carving, and ceramics, later transitioning to woodwork, photography, drawing and even gardening. As a draftsman in several companies, he developed the skills to both express an idea through drawings, and then build the design. Photography, a welcome diversion from the 3 dimensional realm, became a process of seeing less and capturing more; this led to digital imaging. Along the way he studied massage therapy and became a successful therapist working at a resort spa.

In 2010 Moberg's life changed as a movement disorder began to affect his balance, walking, and fine motor skills. No longer able to work in his usual capacity, he turned to his unique mix of skills and chose to follow his lifelong dream to pursue the arts. As the changes unfolded it became apparent that creating art was therapy. The physical act of painting, cutting materials by hand, and using the computer were tasks that benefit his disorder by challenging the nervous system.

Moberg now works in a new studio that is a light and music filled geodesic dome nestled in the gardens. While he is essentially self-taught, each of the techniques that he uses has been studied and repeated to master the limitations of the materials and tools that he employs. His current work is a mixed-media collage of acrylic paint, mulberry fiber paper, and archival inkjet prints. The paint is textured, sanded, and repeatedly layered with many thin glazes to build up the depth and color.

The beauty and texture of the fine art paper is both exposed and absorbed into

the gel mediums. The paper is too thin to be run through a large format printer and so a multi-step hand process is employed. The printed images have been deliberately stripped of all background detail through a unique shooting technique and unconventional editing. The layers are built up on birch ply panels that he constructs himself.

Moberg shares his art with the hope that it brings you a sense of peace that is found when one goes out into nature to explore the mountains around us.

Caldwell Arts Council in Lenoir, NC, Features Group Exhibition

The Caldwell Arts Council in Lenoir, NC, is pleased to announce the art exhibit Modern Traditions, featuring furniture creations by Christina Boy and Richard Prisco; wall artwork by Julia Lawing, Jim Arendt, and Nick DeFord; and photography by Ann Ehringhaus, on view from Aug. 4 through Sept. 30, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 4, from 5-7pm.

Jim Arendt (Conway SC) grew up outside of Flint, MI, birthplace of General Motors and the United Auto Workers Union and creates works of art from denim jeans (white and acid wash jeans are highly prized in his studio).

"My artwork grows out of the need for me to understand our shifting relationship with labor and work," says Arendt. "When I was young and my family was living through the farm crisis of the early 1980s, I remember my father sitting at the sewing machine patching his Wranglers in the evening. He was making do: a concept of thrift and pragmatism that dictates you work with the materials at hand."

"As an artist who is interested in turning stories of suffering into stories of resilience, I enjoy the transformation of something destined for the landfill into a work destined for museums."

Arendt is Assistant Professor of Visual Arts, and Director of the Rebecca Randall Bryan Art Gallery, at Coastal Carolina University.

Christina Boy Design is a one-woman shop located at the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains in Madison, VA.

Original pieces are designed and hand-made from domestic, locally sourced, and salvaged woods. Close attention is paid to every detail using both traditional and modern techniques to craft a piece that will be in your family for many generations.

Work by Richard Prisco

Originally from Germany, Christina Boy attended the Craft and Material Studies program at Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond, VA, followed by a 2-year Core Fellowship at the Penland School of Crafts. Although she works with all kinds of locally sourced lumber and wood, she particularly enjoys working with salvaged articles: old windows, barn wood, tractor seats, etc., converting them into something completely different and beautiful.

"All these pieces carry and tell their own story," Boy explains, "and saving these from the impending doom of the dump and converting them into something fresh and new gives me the opportunity to write another chapter in its story."

Nick DeFord is an artist, educator, and arts administrator who resides in Knoxville, TN. His work explores the visual culture of cartography, occult imagery, game boards, geographical souvenirs, and other structures of information that is altered to examine the relationship of identity, space, and place.

DeFord's artwork for the Caldwell Arts Council exhibit will include several small embroideries on found vintage photographs or paper, mixing text and abstraction. He is the Program Director at Arrowmont School of Arts and Crafts in Tennessee, and works on his fiber art practice from his home studio.

Ann Ehringhaus offered, "For forty years, I have gone almost daily into a National Park one mile from my home on an island off North Carolina. What amazement! Recently I have traveled to spend time in other National Parks and make photographs there too. The images included in this exhibit are from Cape Lookout National Park, just south of my home. In a tiny cabin camp there I have watched the moon grow and shrink, lightning sweep across the beach, early morning shells roll to the shore, and vast empty space and time sing to me of freedom."

After receiving her degrees at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, Ehringhaus spent 12 years in the Artist-in-Schools Program in North Carolina (with North Carolina Arts Council and the Mountain Arts Program), along with attending and teaching several workshops. She has also authored four books.

Julia Lawing is inspired by the places she goes, whether they are near home in Cabarrus County, or in her travels. Taking photos along the way, "I often discover, in retrospect, that the images I am drawn to have an allegorical meaning for me (e.g., freedom, rest, discovery, fruitfulness). I see my work as visual poetry, not literal representation."

After receiving her degree at The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and working several years, Lawing began studying oil painting with nationally renowned artist and teacher Andy Braitman, her mentor. She has twice completed the intensive Artist in Residence program at Braitman Studio. Lawing resides in Concord, NC, with her husband Bruce, four teenage daughters, and black Labrador Lincoln, who are constantly forgiving her for not having dinner ready on time, crowding the garage with canvases, and leaving traces of paint everywhere.

Richard Prisco (Boone, NC) is the Professor of Industrial/Furniture Design and the Concentration Coordinator for Furniture Design at Appalachian State University. His education includes a Bachelor of Science-Industrial Design from the University of Bridgeport, Bridgeport, CT, and Master of Fine Arts-Woodworking and Furniture Design from Rochester Institute of Technology (School for American Crafts, Rochester, NY).

"Structure possesses an aesthetic all its own, unadulterated and unassuming. Tension, compression, shear, and torsion are within the fabric of all structures. My work explores these forces and investigates their potential for expression. Civil and mechanical structures provide influence and inspiration. In addition to wood and traditional joinery techniques much of my work incorporates finely machined metal components, stainless steel cable, and concrete. The connection, conversion, and interaction of one material to the next is fundamental to the development of this aesthetic. By exploring structural solutions the resulting form is one of transformation, movement, and balance."

The Caldwell Arts Council's mission is to establish and maintain an awareness and appreciation of cultural arts in Caldwell County, to encourage participation in art events, and to offer various educational opportunities and administrative services in support of artists, arts agencies, and audiences.

Coastal Carolina University in Conway, SC, Features Works by Margi Weir

Coastal Carolina University in Conway, SC, is presenting Bearing Witness, featuring works by Margi Weir, on view in the Rebecca Randall Bryan Art Gallery, through Aug. 25, 2017.

Weir is currently working on two different, but related bodies of work. Both involve her response to, and engagement with, the world around her. They both employ a process she calls "Snap Line." In her first body of work Weir uses a computer to repeat images that she stitches together visually in order to make an appealing pattern, often resulting in tapestry-like, spatially flattened compositions. Meaning is implied by the juxtaposition of images, not stated in narrative fashion. Conclusions are left to the viewer in the hope that a continued questioning will be inspired by the work of art.

Weir often enlarges these images and combines them with acrylic paint, vinyl, and resin on a panel. Most recently, these paintings have expanded to include cut vinyl designs on the walls or floor of the Gallery.

Work by Margi Weir

Weir's second body of work consists of large ink and wash drawings on rag paper. This body of work depicts the remains of buildings that were once signifiers of culture, which she refers to as "'bones' that speak to the decline of the American Dream . . . the urban and rural ruins across the country."

Coker College in Hartsville, SC, Features Works by Linda McCune

Coker College in Hartsville, SC, will present Structured Emotions, featuring works by Linda McCune, on view in the Cecelia Coker Bell Gallery, from Aug. 28 through Sept. 22, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 28, beginning at 7pm.

Linda McCune received her Bachelors Degree of Fine Art with an emphasis in painting from the University of Tennessee and received her Masters Degree of Fine Art with an emphasis in Drawing and Sculpture from the University of South Carolina. She is currently the Assistant Art Department Head at Greenville Technical College.

McCune is exhibiting two different, but related series of works. The Stress Series and the Pit Series both present artworks that contain veiled emotional responses to unforeseen circumstances. Meaning is implied by the juxtaposition of images and sculptural materials. Small studies are drawn in preparation for the time-consuming larger works. The small studies, larger drawings, and sculptural works demonstrate that visual images can reflect a complexity of emotional states.

The Cecelia Coker Bell Gallery is located in the Gladys C Fort Art Building on the campus of Coker College, Hartsville, SC. Parking entrance, for the art building, is directly across from 306 E. Home Ave.

Coker College upholds and defends the intellectual and artistic freedom of its faculty and students as they study and create art through which they explore the full spectrum of human experience. The college considers such pursuits central to the spirit of inquiry and thoughtful discussion, which are at the heart of a liberal arts education.

NC Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount, NC, Features Works by Wilson Active Artists Association

The NC Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount, NC, will present Diversity in Art - The Wilson Active Artists Association, featuring works by 22 members, on view in the Mims Gallery in the Dunn Center, from Aug. 18 through Sept. 24, 2017. A reception will be held on Sept. 7, beginning at 5pm.

With over a 50 year history the Wilson Active Artists Association today has 75 members with a stated mission "to create, promote, and support an interest in the visual arts through communication and the exchange of artistic ideas and to encourage participation in exhibits in Wilson and other areas."

It was in 1965 that "a group of people coming from a variety of vocational backgrounds including education, manufacturing, nursing, tobacco, and engineering all had a common interest ...ART." We are fortunate not only that some of the charter members are participating in this exhibit, but many new members as well, each working in their personal painting style, pictorial interest and painting mediums.

Over the past twenty-five years the Mims Gallery has shown the artworks of many of the WAAA artists, but this is the first time we are including the entire participating membership. There are painters who work meticulously; there are painters who work loose and painterly; and there are those who prefer the improvisational potential of mixed media. You will see paintings where subject matter comes from careful observation of nature from flowers to hillside landscape; dog portraits are always popular; and there are those paintings that trap us in mystery. Oil, acrylic, watercolor and mixed-media techniques attract attention also.

Most exhibited artworks are for sale and an excellent chance for collectors, novice and experienced, to meet the artists and learn more about the artworks that attracted you.

Dare County Arts Council Presents the 36th Annual New World Festival of the Arts in Manteo, NC - Aug. 16-17, 2017

Over 75 world-class artists will travel to Manteo, NC's waterfront for the 36th annual New World Festival of the Arts, held on Aug. 16-17, 2017.

From 10am-5pm on both days guests can peruse fine art, including painting, photography, printmaking, ceramics, sculpture, jewelry, wood design, leather works, and more.

"Tim and I look forward each year to participating in the New World Festival of the Arts," said pottery artist Janet Gaddy. "Chris Sawin and the crew at Dare County Arts Council do an outstanding job of gathering a phenomenal group of artists to create an amazing show."

This free, outdoor festival has been a Manteo tradition for decades, providing awareness of current trends in the visual arts while acquainting visitors with the historic Town of Manteo.

"I am so glad to be participating in the 2017 New World Festival of the Arts," said jewelry artist Cammie Hall. "For the last six years I have been privileged enough to come along with other artists from College of the Albemarle. It is a great venue and I am excited to be juried on my own this year!"

Mixed media artist Lisa Beth Robinson will judge the show. Robinson makes artist books (letterpress, papermaking, printmaking) broadsides, fine art, curates exhibitions, and is an assistant professor at East Carolina University in Greenville, NC.

This year's Best in Show award recipient will receive a cash prize of $1,000. Second and third place will also receive cash prizes, and merit awards will be given as well.

On the first day of the show (Aug. 16), Dare County Arts Council will host an artist reception at 5pm at their Gallery in downtown Manteo. Guests attending the reception will also be able to view the "Ocean & Earth" Painting Exhibit by 2016 New World Festival of the Arts Best in Show 2D award recipient, Virginia Beach, VA, based acrylic painter Ed Obermeyer.

"I was completely overwhelmed with being chosen as Best in Show 2D last year considering the talent on display during the show," said artist Ed Obermeyer. "I love doing this show just so I can be in the charming atmosphere of Manteo. I am looking forward to this year!"

The New World Festival of the Arts brings an average of 5,000-6,000 attendees to the historic Town of Manteo each year. The festival is presented by PNC Bank, the events sponsor for the third year in a row. Thank you to corporate sponsor SAGA Construction & Development and event partner The Town of Manteo for supporting the show.

This project was supported by the North Carolina Arts Council, a division of the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources. Dare County Arts Council is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit arts organization dedicated to supporting the arts in Dare County.

Airlie Gardens in Wilmington, NC, Offers Works by Matthew J. Leavell

Airlie Gardens in Wilmington, NC, is presenting Imagine, a vibrant and whimsical display of sculptures created by Virginia artist, Matthew J. Leavell, on view through Sept. 30, 2017.

These large scale installments consisting of colorful florals and a variety of artistic creations will spark your curiosity and leave you feeling inspired.

Leavell is a self-taught Mobjack, VA, (Mathews County) based artist currently focusing on the creation of small and medium scale sculpture in steel, cast iron, wood and glass. He primarily utilizes salvaged and recycled materials, preferring raw materials that bring their own history, character, and soul to a new work of art. Born and raised in a small mid-western town, Matthew briefly attended college at Indiana Wesleyan University in Marion, IN, majoring in theology. Matthew spent his summers as a young man traveling in Latin America, volunteering with an NGO in the Darien Jungle region of Panama, Haiti, and the Dominican Republic.

He soon found himself disillusioned by his experiences with modern organized religion, left college, and embarked on a decade long journey of self discovery. Matthew struggled through his early adult years, seemingly unable to wring enough creativity out of any of the projects or career paths he applied himself to. Striving to find himself, he once restored and lived on a vintage sailboat, built a 2200 square foot custom home singlehanded, worked as an electrician, a handyman, and eventually owned and operated a small custom carpentry and fabrication business. All the while he created art in a myriad array of mediums and scales, simply because he knew no other way to exist. Simple repairs often evolved into elaborate, detailed works of functional art.

The personal value of a project was not measured by its practical or financial significance, but by its potential for creative expression. This ramshackle assortment of life experience, work ethic, creative angst, experimentation, and exposure to a variety of trades, crafts, and art forms have culminated to create an emerging artist uncommonly capable of bringing artistic concepts on nearly any scale to fruition.

Matthew's pieces are often created using recycled, salvaged, and upcycled metal components from various sources. He sees a neglected, rusting pile of steel as a literal representation of someone's broken or abandoned dreams. Purchasing these materials and through hard work, inspiration, creativity, and persistence creating an entirely new and beautiful work of art, is not only a personally fulfilling process, but one that stands as an analogy of the nature of life in general.

Sunset River Marketplace in Calabash, NC, Features New Group Exhibition

Sunset River Marketplace in Calabash, NC, will present Take a Little Coast Home With You, a collection of small coastal-themed paintings – all designed for easy transport home, on view from Aug. 1 through Sept. 9, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 3, from 5-7pm.

The exhibition features original works by 24 artists who have been invited to participate in the special event.

According to owner Ginny Lassiter, “Visitors to the area have always played a major role in our gallery, but we’ve never developed an exhibition quite like this for them. The artists in this show are specifically working on canvases small enough to pop in your suitcase and take home with you. The pieces are beautiful and will help create wonderful memories of a trip to the Carolina coast.”

Art mediums for Take a Little Coast Home With You run the gamut from oil, pastel, acrylic and watercolor to metal and gytaku (fish printing). Participating artists include Linda Young, Joseph Bardani, Celia Wester, Freeman Beard, Joyce Vollmer, Irene Beard, Ortrud Tyler, Roseann Bellinger, Nancy Hughes Miller, Roger Tatum, Elaine Bigelow, Mary Smith, Brenda Butka, Brooks Pearce, Sue Coley, Phil Meade, Ruth Cox, Ann Parks McCray, Nancy Guiry, Ann Lees, Rick Steingress

Artworks Gallery in Winston-Salem, NC, Features Works by Seth Moskowitz and Don Green

Artworks Gallery in Winston-Salem, NC, is presenting OH! Naturale - Nudes and Nature, featuring works by Seth Moskowitz and Don Green, on view through Aug. 26, 2017. Receptions will be held on Aug. 4, from 7-10pm and Aug. 6, from 2-4pm.

Seth Moskowitz has always been fascinated by the beauty of organic forms and how shifts in the interplay of hue, tone and texture affect the emotions evoked by his interpretations of the natural world. The nudes and nature scenes in OH! Naturale are intended to create an immediate emotional response that captures the viewers’ attention and helps them discover something new about the subject they think they see.

Moskowitz was born and raised in New York City and moved to Winston-Salem in 1979 after two years in the nation’s capital, working at the Washington Post. He spent three years as a reporter and columnist for the Winston-Salem Journal before joining the public relations department at R.J. Reynolds Industries in 1982. His career with Reynolds has included a two-year assignment in Santa Fe, NM, and he is currently director of communications for RAI Services Company.

In his youth and through his teens, Moskowitz channeled his creative energies primarily into writing poetry, music and contemporary folk songs. In 2005, while taking an “Artist’s Way” course that he hoped would re-energize his interest in creative writing, he discovered a long-hidden passion for playing with photographic images.

“The images I create begin as photographs, but few bear much resemblance to photography when I’m through,” Moskowitz says. “I am not interested in producing pictures that mirror what I see. Rather, I love to layer and alter and play with images – and watch with wonder as the interplay of shape, texture, color and form transforms itself into an emotional vignette that speaks to the viewer in a language beyond words.”

Moskowitz is a member of Artworks Gallery, Associated Artists of Winston-Salem and The Muddy River Art Association. His work has appeared in national juried art exhibits and is often displayed in galler-

Don Green's latest sculpture is based on the cycle of life, death, decay and rebirth. His wood sculptures are created from found trees that have gone through this cycle on life, death and decay and are now reborn as magnificent, sensual sculpture.

Green is a sculptor, artist and craftsman. A fixture for more than 20 years in the Triad art community, his work also graces public and private collections across the nation. Green specializes in metal, wood and stone forms inspired by nature. He lives and works in Winston-Salem. He received his MFA from the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wisconsin in 1966, his BFA from Illinois Wesleyan University in Bloomington, IL, in 1964, and an Advertising Art Degree from the American Academy of Art,

Chicago, Illinois in 1956.

To quote Green, "My art has always been inspired by nature - land, rocks, woods, water and the ongoing processes in nature - erosion, wear, rust and decay. My life is shaped and influenced by my perceptions of the natural world around me. I find proof of the existence of a supreme being and a sense of spiritual renewal and guidance in nature's landscapes. The materials I work with are stone, wood and naturally oxidized steel. My forms are generally organic, inspired by trees or details of them, hills and valleys, rocks, roots, streams and rivers. Much of my sculpture is concerned with massive weight, compression and the resulting distortion apparent in the forms."

Reynolda House Museum of American Art in Winston-Salem, NC, Offers Exhibition Focused on Georgia O'Keeffe

The Reynolda House Museum of American Art in Winston-Salem, NC, will present Georgia O'Keeffe: Living Modern, on view in the Mary and Charlie Babcock Wing Gallery, from Aug. 18 - Nov. 19, 2017.

Reynolda House Museum of American Art will mark its centennial as an estate and its fiftieth anniversary as a museum with an exciting and timely exhibition of the work of Georgia O'Keeffe. The exhibit explores how the artist's modern sensibility saturated her art, her life, her homes, and her carefully fashioned public (and private) personas. Reynolda House is one of only three venues to host the exhibition, and the only venue south of New York.

Georgia O'Keeffe: Living Modern presents a completely new, highly focused, and meticulously researched perspective on the unified modernist aesthetic of O'Keeffe's dress and art. In addition to a number of carefully chosen paintings by O'Keeffe and photographs of her and her homes by Alfred Stieglitz, Ansel Adams, Todd Webb, Philippe Halsman and others, the exhibition will feature selected items from her personal wardrobe that highlight her preference for compact masses, organic silhouettes, and minimal ornamentation. O'Keeffe considered her clothed body as another canvas on which to proclaim her modernism. Freshly conserved and shown in this exhibition for the first time, her understated and carefully designed garments dating from the 1920s to the 1980s will be presented alongside key paintings and photographs of her at various points in her career.

The exhibition was organized to explore key themes that place O'Keeffe's self-fashioning within the history of artistic identity, women's culture, and modernist consumer design. It will look at the ways she confronted and incorporated "masculine" austerity in her wardrobe as well as her deep and abiding appreciation for Asian fashion and aesthetics. Of particular interest are the various "uniforms" O'Keeffe invented throughout her life so that she would look distinctive without spending much time planning her ensemble.

In the first two decades of her career, she made black and white her dominant "colors" of dress and her garments were interchangeable; in those same years, she made black and white significant colors in her painting palette and continued to feature them for the rest of her lifetime. When she moved to New Mexico, she enlarged her palette, introducing strong colors in both her everyday dress and paintings. Immersed in the panoramic sea blue skies of the Southwest, and the arid colors of the geographical formations in the desert, she leaned towards

Gregg Museum of Art & Design in Raleigh, NC, Opens New Facility - Aug. 26, 2017

The Historic Chancellor's Residence, one of NC State University's most historic buildings, located on Hillsborough Street, in Raleigh, NC, along with the 15,000 sq. ft. addition currently under construction will increase the Gregg Museum of Art & Design's visibility while significantly adding to its exhibition and programming space. Construction is currently underway, and the grand opening is slated for August 26, 2017.

Built in 1927, the elegant Georgian mansion housed NC State's chancellors from 1928 until 2011 when Chancellor Randy Woodson and his wife, Susan, moved to the The Point on Centennial Campus. The building was designed by renowned architect Hobart Upjohn, who was also responsible for some of NC State's most handsome buildings, including Brooks Hall (College of Design) and Thompson Hall (University Theatre and the Crafts Center).

The Gregg Museum is often called a hidden gem - according to Indy Week, "the best museum you haven't been going to." Our new venue will make our great exhibitions collection much more accessible to the campus and community.

NC Museum of History in Raleigh, NC, Features Red Cross Exhibition

The NC Museum of History in Raleigh, NC, is presenting American Red Cross: Healing the Warrior's Heart through Art, featuring works by wounded Marines, on view through Jan. 6, 2018.

The Red Cross of Eastern North Carolina, in honor of celebrating their centennial this year, is partnering with the NC Museum of History. "The museum is pleased to partner with the American Red Cross to bring to the public this exhibit of the remarkable art created by these wounded warriors. We hope it will help people realize the incredible sacrifice these soldiers and veterans have made for our country," said Ken Howard, director of the NC Museum of History.

This powerful exhibit features more than 20 paintings and three sculptures created by US Marines who were wounded while serving. The Marines completed the artwork under the guidance of world-renowned artist Craig Bone as part of an art therapy program for Wounded Warrior Battalion-East, based out of Camp Lejeune, NC.

Prior to working under the guidance of Bone, the Marines had no experience creating representational art. The results are astounding, and visitors can expect to be surprised and stirred by what they see.

"[Art] was very therapeutic and soothing for me to fall back on after I got shot up. It's my job as an artist to keep these images in people's minds," said Craig Bone.

The collection of works created from Bone's art therapy program is diverse and compelling, with each piece telling its own story. Some of the paintings harbor a few secrets: hidden pictures that visitors can search for. Heartfelt quotes from the Marines and artists help illustrate the unexpected psychological and emotional recovery many made through this program, and what that recovery meant to their families.

"American Red Cross: Healing the Warrior's Heart through Art is a raw exhibit that tells the story of service members who need our support, whether active-duty or veterans," said Barry Porter, regional CEO of the Red Cross of Eastern North Carolina. "We are honored to bring this powerful exhibit to the public."

North Carolina's proud military tradition is present in these works. This exhibit is a fresh and timely take on a national issue that resonates deeply within our state and affects not just Marines, but all military and their loved ones as well.

Hillsborough Gallery of Arts in NC Offers Works by Lolette Guthrie, Eric Saunders, and Pringle Teetor

Hillsborough Gallery of Arts in Hillsborough, NC, will present Three Perspectives, featuring paintings by Lolette Guthrie, photography by Eric Saunders, and blown glass by Pringle Teetor, on view from Aug. 21 through Sept. 24, 2017. A reception will be held on Aug. 25, from 6-9pm.

Lolette Guthrie writes, "I am primarily a landscape painter, however my viewpoint is different from plein air painters in that I paint largely from memory, striving to discover the essence of the subject rather than the reality. I want to capture the ephemeral nature of light and a mood that is timeless. This has led to increasingly simplified/spare landscapes and at times abstractions derived from them. Resonant color is the core of my process. I juxtapose passages of saturated color with more muted tones and through the application of many layers of pigment and glaze I try to create subtle

"For this show, I concentrated on painting an interesting sky that almost alone would give the viewer a sense of space, light, time of day, temperature, and weather," adds Guthrie. "In most pieces, the foreground is almost an afterthought. In a few, I explored the idea of reality and

Is, therefore, a painting of a recognizable object, landscape or skyscape real? Or is it more like an abstracted memory or dream of reality?"

Photographer Eric Saunders writes of his new work, "With my photographs I try to communicate the beauty and intrigue of abstract art, and transient moments in nature and life. I look to landscapes, natural and urban, and capture them in color, or black and white."

"I am mostly self-taught as a photographer. Previously I studied classical piano, and then worked as a corporate computer programmer. My goal as a photographer is to 'see' abstract compositions and communicate them with precise technical control. I shoot in RAW, and edit using Adobe Bridge and Photoshop CS5. I print my images using an Epson 3880 printer."

Glass artist Pringle Teetor is constantly mesmerized by the dance of color, light, and fluidity in glass. Teetor states, "My forms are mostly functional vessels, but this year I have created pieces with a more sculptural form in mind. My new flattened vases capture multiple colors and are like abstract paintings in glass. I like to play with the chemistry of color to produce unique effects in each piece of blown glass. Then, I incorporate copper, silver and gold to create new reactions between the glass layers. The results are not always predictable, but the outcomes are often exciting."

Some Exhibits That Are Still On View

Our policy at Carolina Arts is to present a press release about an exhibit only once and then go on, but many major exhibits are on view for months. This is our effort to remind you of some of them.

N. C. Wyeth (American, 1882–1945), 1944. Oil on hardboard. Bank of America Collection

The Mint Museum Randolph in Charlotte, NC, is presenting The Wyeths: Three Generations, Works from the Bank of America Collection, on view through Aug. 13, 2017. This exhibition is a testament to the profound artistic impact made by the Wyeth family, providing a window onto the careers of five of the family's artists through more than fifty remarkable paintings and drawings. For more than a century, the members of the Wyeth family have been renowned for creating works of art that fascinate and captivate the imaginations of their viewers, making the Wyeth tradition one of the most enduring and celebrated legacies in all of American art. The Columbia Museum of Art in Columbia, SC, is presenting ReTooled:

Highlights from the Hechinger Collection, an engaging and thought-provoking look at the unexpected subject of tools, on view through Aug. 27, 2017. From the collection of American hardware-store tycoon John Hechinger, the exhibition features more than 40 paintings, sculptures, works on paper, and photographs that provide a dynamic entry point into the rich themes, materials, and processes of 20th-century art. ReTooled celebrates the prevalence of tools in our lives with art that offers affectionate, sometimes playful, tributes to tools as functional objects. It profiles 28 visionary artists including major names such as Arman, Richard Estes, Jacob Lawrence, Fernand Léger, and H.C. Westermann; photographers Berenice Abbott, William Eggleston, and Walker Evans; and pop artists Jim Dine, Claes Oldenburg, and James Rosenquist. For further information check our SC Institutional Gallery listings, call the Museum at 803/799-2810 or visit (www.columbiamuseum.org).

Work by Denise Stewart-Sanabria

The Arts Center of Greenwood in Greenwood, SC, is presenting Food For Thought, a contemporary food-themed exhibition, on view in the Center's main gallery space, through Aug. 31, 2017. Food For Thought will explore food as a motif for artistic study. Fast-food culture, delectable sweets, food-preparation, nourishment, sensuality, repetition, personification and deterioration are all part of the visual narrative. The exhibition will feature a variety of media including photography, paintings in oil, acrylic and watercolor, porcelain sculpture and cardboard constructions. Cedar Creek Gallery in Creedmore, NC, is presenting the National Teapot Show X, continued above on next column to the right featuring over 200 teapots by more than 150 of the most accomplished local, regional and national artisans, on view through Sept. 5, 2017. Cedar Creek Gallery has hosted this show every three years for the past twenty-six years. The show, which has taken place since 1989, is one of the most prestigious craft shows in the nation and is recognized for its gathering of high quality craftsmanship. The range is vast including traditional, contemporary, functional, conceptual, and whimsical teapots of pottery, wood, glass, metal, fiber and mixed media. For further information check our NC Commercial Gallery listings, call the gallery at 919/528-1041 or visit (www.cedarcreekgallery.com).

Installation by Jonathan Brilliant

The Hickory Museum of Art in Hickory, NC, is presenting Hickory Sticks, featuring a new installation by Jonathan Brilliant, on view through Sept. 9, 2017. The artist will laboriously weave 50,000+ wooden coffee stirrers to create a site-responsive, colossal sculpture influenced by the gallery's 25 foot ceiling and unique architectural features – spiral staircases and Palladian windows. Visitors will be able to walk under and around the undulating walls of this structure. The woven stirrers are held in place without the use of adhesives; tension and compression are what gives the structure strength and stability. Complementary smaller installations comprised of coffee cup sleeves, disposable lids and coffee stain wall drawings will also be included in the exhibition. For further information check our NC Institutional Gallery listings, call the Museum at 828/327-8576 or visit (www.HickoryArt.org).

Wofford College in Spartanburg, SC, is presenting Passion for Painting: The Art of Sir Winston Churchill, an exhibition of artwork and objects from National Churchill Museum, on display in the Richardson Family Art Museum, inside the new Rosalind Sallenger Richardson Center for the Arts, through Sept. 16, 2017. Mention the name Winston Churchill, and the picture that immediately comes to mind is that of a skilled statesman who led the British during World War II and inspired a nation during its "finest hour." The Churchill exhibition offers a unique opportunity to view paintings rarely seen in North America. Bringing together 10 paintings from the esteemed collection of the family of the late Julian Sandys, grandson of Churchill, and from the collection of the National Churchill Museum, the exhibition surveys both Churchill's landscapes and seascapes, the artist-statesman's favorite subjects. Work by Douglas Balentine

The Franklin G. Burroughs-Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum in Myrtle Beach, SC, is presenting Beyond the Horizon, a retrospective of 43 works including studies, sketches, paintings in progress and finished paintings, by Douglas Balentine, on view through Sept. 30, 2017. After years of painting in classical style, Charleston, SC-based artist Douglas Balentine felt the need to step away from the work he had been doing. Although born in Charleston, at the age of nine Balentine moved with his family to Paris, France. During the family's two years there, the young artist-to-be found innumerable stimuli in daily Parisian life - in particular, exposure to art in the world-famous Louvre Museum - which proved to be of lasting inspiration. Balentine went on to study art at Parsons School of Design in New York and the Santa Reparata International School of Art in Florence, Italy. Editorial Commentary

Up until last most the only close contender was a cover of a colorful scarf by Edwina Bringle which got 5.904 views, with 121 shares. It didn't look like anyone would dethrone our Queen. And what's really amazing about our July cover is that July is usually an off month, with the launch of the publication taking place on the July 4th weekend and beginning of Summer vacations for many people. And the July cover only got 67 shares.

Of course some credit goes to President Trump and how popular he is or how many people like to hate him. If he ever hears about this he'll probably make himself covers and post them around the White House, his properties, or even his jail cell - showing he was the most viewed cover of "Carolina Arts" - ever. We'll see about that. Only time will tell.

No crown is won without controversy. Some people cried fowl over our cover.

One viewer definitely didn't care for our cover. Their first comment was, "Interesting, Trump on the throne? And Obama kneeling?" (Comments by others will be in Italics).

I guess this person had a hard time remembering what former President Obama looked like, but the person in the image was Cornell West.

After another person tried to explain the image the next response was, "But is that supposed to be President Trump, His name is there. So Is it supposed to mean that he only cares about Money and that is supposed to be the "Beauty of him"? Funny, I see The President as caring about The United States of America and its people... He could have easily just enjoyed his money and not put up with everything he has just to try to help the country... Nice floral borders tho."

Yes, that's the image I've gotten from President Trump - how much he cares about people and has no concern for money - at least that's what I see when he's visiting any of his personal properties with the Secret Service. I'm sure he's picking up the tab every time just so those SS folks can get a first class vacation. He's a caring kind of guy.

Another person contributed, "the quote is taken out of context. During the campaign, Trump said (the quoted text) in reference to funding for his campaign. The point of the statement was to illustrate that he was not bought by donations from special interest groups and was using his own money to fund his campaign - "The beauty of me (a self-funded candidate) is that I am rich (and don't rely on quid pro quo from special interest groups).

"I am sad that this piece was chosen for the cover. So many other beautiful works of art in our area to choose from. It seems that everyone is using Trump and politics for attention or some other gain."

"IMO, this piece is full of irony. It speaks more about those who use Trump for ratings, advertising dollars and/or publicity than the man portrayed in the piece."

I'm thinking that President Trump is thinking - The beauty of me is I get all these other jokers to give me money and all I have to do is appoint them to my cabinet.

Our original commentor added, "So very well said I'm so over Trump bashing art, media, news ... and any other thing that is used to get ratings or attention ... cheap shots in my opinion. Remember "Jumping the Shark" This is it. Pathetic. Jump the shark -----"

"The beginning of the end. Something is said to have "jumped the shark" when it has reached its peak and begun a downhill slide to mediocrity or oblivion. It's said to have been coined by Jon Hein, who has a web site, Jump the Shark, and now a book detailing examples, especially as applied to TV shows. It supposedly refers to an episode of the TV show "Happy Days" in which Fonzie jumps over a shark on water skis, which Hein believes was the point at which the series had lost its touch and was beginning to grasp at straws."

This image did eventually become our most viewed cover on Facebook, but I knew from the minute I saw the image and thought of putting it on our cover that it wouldn't be that great for ratings (yeah Page 30 - Carolina Arts, August 2017

June 2014 cover by Wan Marsh

- Nielson checks us out every month) or improving our readership, if anything it would be another burning bridge episode where I might lose an advertiser or two. There were about a dozen people who asked to be removed from our e-mail list. I look at that as weeding the garden. Every month we have people who ask us to take them off our list and every month we have an equal amount of folks who ask to be added to that list.

Early on I had decided to stay out of these comments and just let the viewers talk but I eventually had to add my 2 cents. After all, this publication has cost me a lot more than 2 cents to keep it going for 30 years - and I hate to tell our upset viewer that we haven't yet gotten to our "Jump the Shark" days. So I chimed in with, "Art that stirs people to make comments - is that not what art is supposed to do?"

The response to that from our upset viewer was, "Good Art yes..... But art that is just jumping on the bandwagon of the buzzwords of the day... Cheap art. with no thoughtfulness behind it at all... give me a break, If I want to see Trump bashing, I can turn on any news channel or read the cover of any paper or news magazine... Just another "Jump the Shark" piece of "art"? guess she thought maybe Time Magazine or some other piece of crap might pick it up for their cover..."

Yes, I know how much our President hates "Time" magazine. So much so that he makes fake covers and posts them in his resort properties.

My response to that was, "I'm sure you've seen much more art in your life than me - being the art critic that you are, but you are welcome to have your opinion. Over 7,000 people have expressed a different opinion than yours this month. Maybe its fake art - like fake news, fake laws, fake morals, and fake patriotism expressed by you and your President."

The response to my comment was, "Nice personal attack there. Guess opinions other than yours deserve insults. Never pretended to be an art critic... voicing my opinions only but you on the other hand find the need to accuse me of having fake patriotism? All because I'm sick of everything and everybody using Trump for ratings? But then again you are also one of those publications. Oh, also when you are hurling insults to a person, it's better if you do it as a person not a troll hiding behind your publications name. Not good business...."

My final response on Facebook was, "good to know I'm not dealing with a regular follower of our publication, but you could have just checked the 'About' section of this page to see where I was hiding." I have my own Facebook page and I don't control how Facebook handles the page layout.

And, if I was concerned with having a "good business" - I would have started a publication about NASCAR in the Carolinas - not the visual arts. And as far as hiding behind my publication's name - my name is on every commentary ever made in this publication unlike other daily papers where people hide behind an editorial board so you never know who is offering the commentary.

At this point I have to admit that part of the 7,524 (as of this writing) who viewed this cover were probably people sent by others who didn't care for our cover to check out our outrageous cover. There was a tone in many of the responses we received about the cover of how dare we mix politics with art. And a few were down right obscene.

If there is anything I've learned in doing an arts publication for 30 years (did you catch that - I've mentioned twice that I've been doing this for 30 years) is that everything has to do with politics - especially the arts. There are so many artists, people who want to be artists, and people who just want to make art, but not be an artist - but there is just so much money to support them, just so many resources and facilities - so decisions have to be made and that's when politics steps in. Many decisions are not made on merit alone, some have nothing to do with merit. A lot of times it comes down to who you know, who you're connected to, or even how you look. That's right - some artists are just not attractive enough to be featured in a glossy magazine profile or to get a major grant.

So don't give me any of that crap about mixing politics with art, because it's all politics.

But, you know what, I expect that something will come along and replace this cover as our most viewed on Facebook. But for now - we have a new Queen. And, we'll never forget our first Queen. We may even have a King one day. Anything is possible in America. We know that now.

Gibbes Museum of Art, 135 Meeting Street, Charleston. Gallery 2, Through Sept. 10 - "Artists Painting Artists". The Gibbes Museum of Art is well known for its extraordinary portrait collection spanning the eighteenth century to the present. This exhibition focuses on a very special type of portrait: artists painted by other artists. These poignant paintings document friendship, respect, and deep admiration shared among fellow artists. Gallery 3, Through Sept. 10 - "Perspectives on Place". The neighborhoods on the east side of the Charleston peninsula above Calhoun Street have experienced significant change over the last 100 years. The exhibit offers the opportunity to gain insight to those changes through the eyes of several artists including Edward Hopper and Andrée Ruellan, who were drawn to depict a specific block through their artwork. Displayed together for the first time, these paintings explore artists' role as documentarians and social commentators. Gallery 8, Through Sept. 24 - "Artist, Scientist, Explorer: Mark Catesby in the Carolinas". Featuring the British Royal Collection, this exhibition explores the incredible life and work of Mark Catesby, the English artist, scientist, and explorer who spent four years documenting the natural habitats of the Carolinas, Florida, and the Bahamas. The exhibition marks the first showing of Catesby's original watercolors in Charleston, and only the second time his watercolors have been on view in the United States. The exhibition features 44 paintings on loan from Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II from the British Royal Collection. Gallery 9, Through Sept. 24 - "Out of the Wild: Animals in Contemporary Art". Animals have occupied an important place in art throughout history. Inspired by works in the Gibbes permanent collection and several private collections, the exhibition showcases works by three contemporary American artists, William Dunlap, Walton Ford, and Grainger McKoy. Working in a variety of media, these artists employ animal imagery to explore contemporary culture, and humans evolving relationship to the natural world. While their works celebrate the form and natural beauty of both wild and domestic species, the artists also examine political, social, psychological, and spiritual themes. 2nd Floor Atrium, Through Mar. 24, 2018 - "Betwixt and Between". Sculptor Patrick Dougherty works with twigs and branches to create site-specific installations. Woven together and held in place by tension, Dougherty's sculptures have a whimsical quality, inspired by his childhood adventures exploring the woods of North Carolina. At the Gibbes, Dougherty has created an installation titled "Betwixt and Between" in the museum's glass atrium, creating a visual connection between the interior gallery space and the lush outdoor garden. Museum Shop - Now offering the inventory of the Tradd Street Press, reproductions of works by Elizabeth O'Neill Verner among other exhibit related art objects. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm & Sun., 1-5pm; closed Mon. Admission: Yes. Contact: 843/722-2706 or at (www.gibbesmuseum.org).

Halsey Institute of Contemporary Art, The Marion and Wayland H. Cato Jr. Center for the Arts, College of Charleston School of the Arts, 161 Calhoun St., Charleston. Aug. 25 - Oct. 7 - "Marc Trujillo: American Purgatory" and "Riccarda de Eccher: Montagna". A reception will be held on Aug. 25, 6:30-8pm. The paintings of Marc Trujillo portray commonplace scenes: fast food restaurants, big box store aisles, the long terminal corridors of airports, and so on. The scenes are remarkably unremarkable. In their ubiquitous nature, the paintings present an anti-place: scenes that refer not to a specific place, but to uncannily similar tableaux that unfold everyday in communities across America. While Trujillo models his paintings after specific locations, usually in the Los Angeles area, his scenes appear strikingly similar to viewers' own relationships with local commerce. On view simultaneously with Marc Trujillo's exhibition features sublime watercolors of mountain peaks also explore familiar scenes. In this case, her works evoke picturesque representations of snow-capped mountains from the Italian Alps. De Eccher's watercolors offer a subversion of our current age in which images are vastly and readily shared online, especially those that are high-resolution and digitally retouched. In a way, they correlate with Trujillo's paintings: though titled, her pictures are cropped as to present anonymous mountains that could exist on almost any continent. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 11am-4pm and open till 7pm on Thurs. Contact: Mark Sloan at 843/953-4422 or at (www.halsey.cofc.edu).

Saul Alexander Foundation Gallery, Charleston County Public Library, 68 Calhoun St., Charleston. Aug. 1 - 31 - "Lost As Sure As Found," featuring works by David R. Warren. Warren was born in Savannah, GA, raised as a Panhandle, Midlands, Lowcountry Southerner. This show is a reflection of a life spent throughout the South. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 9am-8pm; Fri. & Sat., 9am-6pm; and Sun. 2-5pm. Contact: Frances Richardson at 843/805-6803 or at (www.ccpl.org).

The Charleston Museum, 360 Meeting Street, Charleston. Founded in 1773, is America's first museum. Charleston Museum's Lowcountry Image Gallery, Through Oct. 2 - "Forces of Nature: Charleston in the Aftermath," an exhibit curated by Archivist and Collections Manager, Jennifer McCormick. Many meteorological and geological forces of nature have impacted Charleston and the surrounding coastal areas over the years. Beginning with the Cyclone of 1885, the featured images will journey through the Earthquake of 1886, the deadly tornadoes of 1938 and the many unnamed storms and hurricanes that have pounded our coastline until Hurricane Hugo in 1989. Ongoing - Featuring the most extensive collection of South Carolina cultural and scientific collections in the nation, it also owns two National Historic Landmark houses, the Heyward-Washington House (1772) and the Joseph Manigault House (1803), as well as the Dill Sanctuary, a 580-acre wildlife preserve. Admission: Yes. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 9am-5pm & Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 843/722-2996 or at (www.charlestonmuseum.org).

Columbia Museum of Art, Main & Hampton Streets, Columbia. Through Aug. 27 - "ReTooled: Highlights from the Hechinger Collection," an engaging and thought-provoking look at the unexpected subject of tools. From the collection of American hardware-store tycoon John Hechinger, "ReTooled" features more than 40 paintings, sculptures, works on paper, and photographs that provide a dynamic entry point into the rich themes, materials, and processes of 20th-century art. "ReTooled" celebrates the prevalence of tools in our lives with art that offers affectionate, sometimes playful, tributes to tools as functional objects. It profiles 28 visionary artists including major names such as Arman, Richard Estes, Jacob Lawrence, Fernand Léger, and H.C. Westermann; photographers Berenice Abbott, William Eggleston, and Walker Evans; and pop artists Jim Dine, Claes Oldenburg, and James Rosenquist. The exhibition consists of four sections: Objects of Beauty, Material Illusions, Instruments of Satire, and Tools: An Extension of Self. Through Sept. 17 - "That '70s Show," draws on the amusing nostalgia for the "decade that taste forgot," while showing a complicated portrait of art, current events, and identity in America. In contemporary art, the lingering effects of hard-edge modernism rubbed elbows with the messiness of tie-dye while pop art's consumerist legacy existed alongside the simplicity movement. Caroline Guignard Community Gallery, Through Aug. 28 - "Light Beings," featuring a new series of large-scale works from Pakistani artist Sana Arjumand. Steeped in mysticism and spirituality, Arjumand's current body of work focuses on the bird as an energetic being, a symbol suggesting the coexistence of higher dimensions. Galleries 5 & 6, Ongoing - "Modern & Contemporary Art from the Collection". Celebrating some of the CMA's greatest hits, this exhibition features over 30 paintings, drawings, photographs and sculptures from the Museum's collection that have not been on view recently. It offers the visitor experiences both serious and sensual and is designed to both entertain and enlighten. Notable works included are by Jasper Johns, Howard Thomas, Sally Mann and Edward Ruscha, whose famous image of the Hollywood Hills (on view) has become a staple of the art world. Ray Taylor Fair Gallery, Ongoing - Featuring a new and permanent installation of its ancient art collection. The installation includes approximately 50 objects that introduce the major ancient civilizations from the Mediterranean and Near East. Examples of the earliest form of writing from 12th century B.C. Mesopotamia, are shown next to Egyptian scarabs and Greek painted vessels. The world of the ancient Romans is represented by 2nd century glass and bronze items and portrait sculpture. Many of these works have not been seen since the Museum moved to its location on Main Street in 1998. The collection has grown over the last several years with the donation of 12 fine Roman sculptures in 2002 from Pennsylvania collector Dr. Robert Y. Turner. Admission: Yes, but there is no admission charge on Sun. Hours: Tue.-Fri., 11am-5pm; first Fri., till 8pm; Sat., 10am-5pm & Sun., noon-5pm. Contact: 803/799-2810 or at (www.columbiamuseum.org).

McKissick Museum, University of South Carolina, USC Horseshoe, Columbia. 2nd floor, South Gallery, 2nd floor, North Gallery, Through Aug. 5 - "Scenic Impressions: Southern Interpretations from the Johnson Collection". This exhibit from the Johnson Collection features over forty paintings by native Southerners and painters who travelled to the Southern states between the 1880s and the 1940s. These stunning artworks reflect a moment in American art when a strong interest in Impressionism reinvigorated how artists viewed their environment. Expansive landscapes and tender genre scenes became bathed in light. With a loose, painterly style, the artists of Scenic Impressions used warm colors and a fluidity of form to signal their desire to capture atmospheric transience or a "scenic impression." They strived to evoke an experience, not to simply transcribe the natural world, and produced artworks unparalleled within the history of Southern painting. Ongoing - "Diverse Voices: Discovering Community Through Traditional Arts". Dedicated to the late George D. Terry, "Diverse Voices" explores deeply-rooted traditions that help create and maintain the cultural landscape of South Carolina and the surrounding region. Each year the exhibit will focus on a specific theme or tradition. Year one of "Diverse Voices" offers a comprehensive presentation of objects from the museum collection that represent the work of celebrated NEA National Heritage Fellows and Jean Laney Harris Folk Heritage Award recipients. Ongoing - "Highlights from the Permanent Collections of McKissick Museum". Permanent - "Baruch Silver Collection," a collection of the Baruch family silver. And, "Natural Curiosity: USC and the Evolution of Scientific Inquiry into the Natural World". Hours: Mon.-Fri., 8:30am-5pm & Sat., 11am-3pm. Contact: 803/777-7251 or at (<http://artsandsciences.sc.edu/mcks/>).

Columbia Music Festival Association (CMFA), 914 Pulaski Street, Columbia. Ongoing - Fiber and installation artist Susan Lenz has been given a unique opportunity to create new work for a solo exhibition at Waterworks Visual Arts Center in Salisbury, NC, which will be on view from Sept. 9, 2017 through Jan. 3, 2018. The show is called "In Stitches" and will mostly feature works from Lenz's "Stained Glass" and "In Box" fiber series. Waterworks' executive director, Anne Scott Clement challenged Lenz to approach the 24-foot back wall with a totally different series... "CIRCLES", a celestial installation of orbs in response to the coming summer's total solar eclipse. In order to successfully create this installation, Lenz needed a large wall on which to hang the "work-in-progress". CMFA graciously provided their venue. Over the coming weeks, Lenz will be regularly adding new circles, standing back to evaluate the size and relationship between the objects, calculate the number of orbs needed, and experimenting with different finishing techniques. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 10am-6pm. For information e-mail to (cmfasc5678@gmail.com), call 803/771-6303 or call Lenz at 803/254-0923 or visit (www.susanlenz.com).

Museum & Gallery at Heritage Green, Buncombe and Atwood Streets, downtown Greenville. Through Aug. 31 - "The Art of Sleuthing," inviting sleuths of all ages to explore the intrigues of forgery, provenance, steganography and Nazi-looted art. "It's coming to see art in a new way," said M&G curator John Nolan. Nolan's description is accurate as The Art of Sleuthing blends both the creative and scientific aspects of art together in an enticing manner. A primary highlight of the exhibit showcases two stellar examples of forgery, including a loan from the National Gallery of Art in Washington, DC. Titled "The Smiling Girl", this piece was originally attributed to Vermeer until closer investigation proved it a fraud. Continuing the theme, the forged "Still Life with Fruit" on loan from the Nasher Museum of Art at Duke University exemplifies modern art fakes. Admission: Yes. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm and Sun. 2-5pm. Contact: 864/770-1331 or visit M&G's website at (www.bjmg.org).

Moncks Corner

Old Santee Canal Park, Interpretive Center, 900 Stony Landing Rd., off Hwy. 52 By-Pass, Moncks Corner. Through Aug. 24 - "Pirates, Privateers and Buccaneers of the Carolinas". Many myths about pirates are dispelled in this exhibit such as that pirates frequently sank other ships. Perhaps a warship in combat would be sunk, but pirates rarely sank a ship they wanted to capture. Sinking a ship would be counterproductive because their loot and captives would go down with the ship. One of the most feared pirates of all was Blackbeard, who was said to increase his fierce countenance for battle by weaving lit fuses into his beard. The story of Blackbeard can be found in this exhibit, along with the stories of many other pirates. This exhibit was developed by the South Carolina State Museum with research, collaboration and assistance from the North Carolina Museum of History, the Queen Anne's Revenge Project of the North Carolina Office of State Archaeology, and the North Carolina Maritime Museum. Aug. 26 - Sept. 10 - "Annual Juried Fine Arts Exhibition". Franklin G. Burroughs - Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum, 3100 South Ocean Blvd., beside Springmaid Beach, Myrtle Beach. Through Sept. 17 - "Feast / Local: Photography by Brant Barrett". Local photographer Brant Barrett hits the road to highlight the Grand Strand's food scene in unexpected ways not always observed by the millions of tourists who come annually for the area's pristine beaches. With well over 1,800 restaurants (Huffington Post cited us as one of the U.S.'s top 15 "restaurant-crazy cities" a few years back), the Strand's food scene may seem obvious, but a deeper look uncovers the alternative food venues familiar chiefly to locals, like church gatherings, family reunions, mom-and-pop cafes, produce stands, farmers' markets, country stores, backwoods bars and signature food festivals. Barrett's lens will reveal definitive images that speak to our sense of taste, as well as our sense of place. Through Sept. 17 - "Feast Your Eyes / Celebrating the Food of the South - The exhibit will explore our culinary heritage as nourishment and beyond: a form of cultural, political and artistic expression; an enduring source of comfort; sometimes an object of obsession; perhaps a symbol of class, race or gender...and always a cause for celebration. Food and beverage icons, peculiar and particular to the South, will be examined with works in an expansive variety of two and three-dimensional media, including paintings in oil and watercolor; works in pastel; printmaking; photography; sculptures in ceramics, metal, wood and mixed media; textile and fiber arts, and functional art such as handcrafted dining furniture and serving ware. Through Sept. 10 - "Beyond the Horizon," featuring a retrospective by Charleston, SC, based artist, Douglas Balentine. After years of painting in classical style, Balentine felt the need to step away from the work he had been doing. "So I went out to the beach [Sullivan's Island, SC], somewhere I hadn't painted before, except maybe when I was very young," Balentine said. "In classical art you have your verticals and horizontals, structure and geometry, but out there it's just this big empty space, this expansiveness." The exhibition includes 43 works - studies, sketches, paintings in progress and finished paintings. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-4pm & Sun., 1-4pm. Contact: 843/238-2510 or at (www.myrtlebeachartmuseum.org).

View of the Churchill Exhibition

Rosalind Sallenger Richardson Center for the Arts, Wofford College, Spartanburg. Richardson Family Art Museum and Richardson Family Art Gallery, Through Sept. 16 - "Passion for Painting: The Art of Sir Winston Churchill". This exhibition offers a unique opportunity to view paintings rarely seen in North America. Bringing together 10 paintings from the esteemed collection of the family of the late Julian Sandys, grandson of Churchill, and from the collection of the National Churchill Museum, the exhibition surveys both Churchill's landscapes and seascapes, the artist-statesman's favorite subjects. Beginning with his work from the 1920s, the paintings on view represent four of the five decades in which Churchill pursued what was for him the greatest of hobbies. Through Sept. 16 - "The Mountains Are Calling: High Seasons in the Carolinas from the Johnson Collection," presents an exhibition of works by a variety of artists who have sought to capture the South's seasons and sky on canvas. Through Aug. 19 - "Printemps des Arts: Subtleties of Resistance and Renewal," offering an exhibition which challenges ignorance, and misunderstanding. Wofford College sophomore Meghan Curran hopes that an exhibition that she curated of art by three Tunisian artists will go beyond its artistic appeal. She wants to challenge ignorance and misunderstanding. Ongoing - Featuring the Cerise and Amber Persian Ceiling sculptures created by renowned American sculptor Dale Chihuly. Admission: Free. Hours: Tue, Wed, Fri. & Sat., 1-5pm; Thur., 1-9pm; and closed Sun. & Mon. Contact: call Laura Corbin at 864/597-4180, e-mail to (laura.corbin@wofford.edu) or at (www.wofford.edu).

Work by Nancy Warren

FABULON, A Center for Art and Education, 1017 Wappoo Road, West Ashley, Charleston. Through Aug. 10 - "The Quench Project and the mire of desire," featuring works by Robert Maniscalco. Maniscalco is also a social realist, documentarian, and courtroom sketch artist. Addressing racism, and "the role of artists as the visionaries behind the current revolution of mindfulness" is his mission. "The Quench Project," as he affectionately calls his collection, explores the myriad of human longings, often at great cost and sacrifice, in order to quench desires. These desires are often noble, such as those for justice, truth, forgiveness, and safe water. But all too often, they take the form of greed, envy and the desire to spread hate and fear. Aug. 14 - Oct. 6 - "Souvenirs of Summer". A reception will be held on Aug. 16, from 5-8pm. As summer swiftly comes to a close, we transition to new schedules, rituals, and routines. For some it is a new beginning associated with starting school, but for others it is bittersweet evidence that children are growing up and venturing out. Perhaps our parents are in the autumn of their years. Often we are too busy to savor the fleeting moments. Or maybe we are acutely aware that this is the very moment we will miss. We asked artists to share their representation of that concept and these queries: What conjures up a sense of nostalgia? What have you lost? What do you hold most dear? For what do you long? Ongoing - Fabulon is a gallery in West Ashley. We represent: Meyriel J.Edge, Laura McRae Hitchcock, Hampton R. Olfus, Jr., Steven Owen, Susan Irish, Sydney Leighton, Amanda England, Bly Triplett, Lisa Z. Lindahl, Michael Hayes, Vicki Hickman, and Eugene Horne. It is a perfect stop along the way to the Historic Plantations. Fabulon also offers group and private classes for adults, children, and home scholars. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-6pm. Contact: 843/566-3383 or at (www.fabulonart.com).

Work by Jan Swanson

City Art, 1224 Lincoln Street, Columbia. Aug. 3 - Sept. 16 - "The Way I See It," an exhibition of paintings by Jan Swanson. A reception will be held on Aug. 3, from 5-8pm. Swanson says, "I hope that when people see these paintings they will know that I did them. I think they will. Some of them have schoolwork from my great grandparents' house in them, others are just painted from things I've seen around Columbia and other places. Others are things I remember from childhood specifically my father selling furniture and fabric and the pearls my mother wore. Hopefully they all reflect my sense of humor which is my favorite quality about myself!" Ongoing - Featuring works by Jane Aldridge, Jim Arendt, Randolph New Armstrong, Penny Baskin, Jo Dean Bauknight, Robbie Bell, Kimberly Betchman, Tarleton Blackwell, Angela Bradburn, Betty Bramlett, Joe Byrne, Carolita Cantrell, Kathy Casey, Anne Cunningham, Bob Doster, Gerard Erley, Claire Farrell, Amy Fichter, Tim Floyd, Michael Fowler, Teri Goddard, Harriet Goode, Vanessa Grubbs, Randy Hanna, Shelley Hehenberger, Mana Hewitt, David Kessler, Jan Kransberger, Robert Lyon, Rena MacQueen, Doug McAbee, Fred McElveen, Esther Melton, Max Miller, Lee A. and a dining concept. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 1-5pm or by appt. Contact: Neely Verano at (neely@lacaprojects.com) or call 704/609-8487.

Levine Museum of the New South, 200 E. Seventh St., corner of College St & Seventh St., Charlotte. Through Oct. 22 - "K(NO)W Justice K(NO)W Peace," is a community-created exhibit about police-involved shootings throughout the nation and in Charlotte. Co-created with activists and law enforcement, the media, students, clergy and civic leaders, the exhibit explores the historical roots of the distrust between police and community, tells the human stories beyond the headlines, and engages viewers in creating constructive solutions. The exhibition also captures the voices of local police, protesters, emergency personnel, faith leaders and others reflecting on their personal experiences during Charlotte's protests. The exhibit features photographer Alvin C. Jacobs Jr.'s powerful images of local and national protests and compelling displays curated by Dr. Tiffany Packer and students at Johnson C. Smith University. A community-response section looks at the meaning of the Charlotte Protests—highlighting the diverse perspectives held by community stakeholders and others impacted by recent events. Ongoing - "Cotton Fields to Skyscrapers," featuring a permanent exhibition featuring interactive environments that trace the history of the New South from the end of the Civil War until today. Admission: Yes. Free on Sat. Parking: next door in Seventh Street Station. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 10am-5pm & Sun., noon-5pm. Contact: 704/333-1887 or at (www.museumofthenewsouth.org).

Mint Museum Randolph, 2730 Randolph Road, Charlotte. Through Aug. 13 - "The Wyeths: Three Generations, Works from the Bank of America Collection". This exhibition is a testament to the profound artistic impact made by the Wyeth family, providing a window onto the careers of five of the family's artists through more than fifty remarkable paintings and drawings. For more than a century, the members of the Wyeth family have been renowned for creating works of art that fascinate and captivate the imaginations of their viewers, making the Wyeth tradition one of the most enduring and celebrated legacies in all of American art. The Wyeths: Three Generations, Works from the Bank of America Collection is a testament to the profound artistic impact made by the Wyeth family, providing a window onto the careers of five of the family's artists through more than fifty remarkable paintings and drawings. Bridges and Levine Galleries, Ongoing - "Contemporary British Studio Ceramics: The Grainer Collection". Focused on the collection of Diane and Marc Grainer, this installation is a survey of contemporary British studio ceramics. Comprising functional and sculptural objects made between the 1980s and today, the show features work by artists either born or residing in Great Britain, including established "contemporary classics" like Gordon Baldwin and Rupert Spira, and cutting-edge ceramicists such as Julian Stair and Kate Malone. Several recently-gifted works from the Grainers are included. Alexander, Spangler, and Harris Galleries, Ongoing - "Portals to the Past: British Ceramics 1675 - 1825". The Mint Museum's collection of eighteenth-century British pottery and porcelain is widely respected for its scope and quality. The collection numbers over 2,000 objects and includes important examples of both salt-glazed and dry-bodied stoneware from Staffordshire; tin-glazed earthenware from Bristol, Liverpool, and London; and cream-colored earthenware from Derbyshire, Staffordshire, and Yorkshire. Notable eighteenth-century porcelain factories represented include Chelsea, Bow, and Vauxhall in London, Longton Hall in Staffordshire, Worcester, Bristol, and others. Individual works in the collection are exceptional because of their rarity, craftsmanship, provenance, or as representative examples of particular types or methods of production or decoration. Ongoing - "American Glass". The nineteenth and early twentieth centuries represented a time of extraordinary growth for the American glass industry. Such companies as Boston & Sandwich Glass Company in Sandwich, MA; Steubens Glass Works in Corning, NY; and Libbey Glass Company in Toledo, OH, began operation and soon developed notable reputations for producing fashionable wares that were coveted by many middle- and upper-class consumers. "American Glass" showcases objects by these and other American glass companies, illustrating the variety of forms and styles that prevailed during this period. Glass-manufacturing techniques will be another focus of the exhibition, with representative examples of pressed, cut, blown, and molded glass. Nearly all of the works on view are from The Mint Museum's permanent collection of glass, which is second in size only to the ceramics collection in the museum's Decorative Arts holdings. Ongoing - "Arts of Africa". The African continent is remarkable in its geographic, social, political, and cultural diversity. This impressive diversity is reflected in the visual arts through a variety of media and forms including ceramics, masks, textiles, sculptures, prestige staffs, and shrines. With exceptional loans from private collectors and The Mint Museum's own collection of African Art, the museum is pleased to announce the expansion of its presentation of Arts of Africa, thereby providing visitors a more in-depth, meaningful, and exciting overview of African art. Heritage Gallery, Ongoing - Feature works of art, archival documents, and photographs documenting the growth and evolution of the museum, from its beginnings as the original branch of the US Mint to its founding as an art museum to the present and beyond. Ongoing - "Art for the Millions: WPA Prints" and "Carolina Clay," featuring a display of colorful wares made between 1920 and 1950 as potters from NC adapted their works to a market economy. "Art of the United States," featuring contemporary works from the Mint's permanent collection, including works by Romare Bearden, Maud Gatewood, John Biggers Juan Logan, Tarlton Blackwell, Radcliffe Bailey, Kojo Griffin, and others. "Art in the Americas," featuring paintings, precious metalwork, sculpture, furniture and decorative arts from the 17th through the 19th centuries illustrate the unique culture that emerged from the Spanish colonization of the Americas. Crosland Gallery - Featuring a presentation of portraits with many fascinating images presented. Rankin Gallery - Featuring a presentation of the Romare Bearden Collection, including two "new" Beardens. Delhom Gallery, Ongoing - The European Collection of ceramic works. Admission: Yes. Hours: Wed., 11am-9pm (free admission 5-9pm); Thur.-Sat., 11am-6pm; & Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 704/337-2000 or at (www.mintmuseum.org).

Mint Museum Uptown, Levine Center for the Arts, 500 South Tryon St., Charlotte. Through Sept. 3 - "State of the Art: Discovering American Art Now." Consisting of approximately 75 remarkable works, the exhibition seeks to de-mystify contemporary American art. In 2013, representatives from the Crystal Bridges Museum of Art embarked on a coast-to-coast curatorial road trip. Their objective: to discover new and intriguing works of art existing outside of typical metropolitan venues. Former Director Don Bacigalupe and Curator Chad Aligood traveled 100,000 miles and conducted nearly 1,000 studio visits with artists who had been recommended by their colleagues in each state. Their findings formed the basis for "State of the Art: Discovering American Art Now", an unprecedented nationwide survey of contemporary American art. Ongoing - The Mint Museum Uptown will house the world renowned collections of the Mint Museum of Craft + Design, as well as the American Art and Contemporary Art collections and selected works from the European Art collection. Self Portrait by Richard Fennell

GreenHill, a space for NC art, 200 North Davie Street, Greensboro Cultural Center, Greensboro. Main Gallery, Through Aug. 20 - "The Edge of Perception: Richard Fennell Retrospective". On Aug. 16, the artists will give a talk and demo from 6-7pm. Fennell is most widely known for the luminous landscapes, interiors and still lifes he has painted during the past four decades while based in the communities of Whitsett and Grassy Creek, NC. The vivid palette and Impressionist paint handling that are most often associated with Fennell's style are the result of a lifelong aesthetic drive. Fennell explains, "My work, as personal as it is, is basically the study of light upon form and space. In pursuit of this study, I try to merge a visual truth of what is seen with basic abstract elements inherent in both painting and nature." InFocus Gallery, Through Aug. 20 - Presenting an exhibition highlighting artists affiliated with the North Carolina Glass Center. Organized in partnership with the NCGC, visitors can experience handmade glass worked in a variety of techniques and forms, purchase one-of-a-kind pieces, as well as obtain information on the Asheville-based art center throughout the summer. Weatherspoon Art Museum, University of North Carolina - Greensboro, Cone Building, Tate and Spring Garden Streets, Greensboro. Through Oct. 15 - "Red-Hot and Newly Acquired: Recent Additions to the Collection". Last year the Weatherspoon celebrated its 75th anniversary and showcased many outright and promised gifts to the collection as part of the festivities. Not all recent additions to the collection, however, could be included. This exhibition focuses on those that the museum purchased through established art acquisition endowments or using donated funds. These purchases, along with four gifts of art, allow us to acknowledge that the museum's broad collection and steady growth and innovation result in part from many kinds of civic generosity. Artwork by Ai Weiwei, Mickalene Thomas, Tony Oursler, and Rozeal are but a few new additions highlighted. The exhibition is organized by Elaine D. Gustafson, Curator of Collections. Through Aug. 20 - "Single-Channel Catalyst II". In his video, Better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all (2014), Mexican artist Alejandro Almanza Pereda creates a surreal scene: a still life—that traditional artist's subject of objects on a surface—becomes animated. Playing cards, fruit, and vases move with unexpected buoyancy. Suddenly one sees these objects not as games, food, or containers, but as living things with distinct personalities and individual agency. In the companion exhibition, Almanza Pereda's video serves as the catalyst for an installation of artworks from the Weatherspoon's collection. Each selection features common things—a cup, a shirt, a box. Like the objects in the video, these ordinary items take on poetic meaning when featured as artistic subjects. Collectively, the video, paintings, drawings, prints, and sculptures provide an opportunity to pause and reconsider the role of things in our lives. How do we use them? Which do we treasure and which do we discard? What do things mean to us? The project is organized by Dr. Emily Stamey, Curator of Exhibitions. The Bob & Lissa Shelley McDowell Gallery, Through Sept. 3 - "Art on Paper 2017: The 44th Exhibition". The exhibition celebrates contemporary art in which the use of paper—either as surface or material—is a primary concern. Longstanding support from xpedx (formerly the Dillard Paper Company) and, today, the Dillard Fund has allowed the Weatherspoon to acquire work from each "Art on Paper" exhibition since 1965. This significant support has fostered the growth of the Weatherspoon's nationally recognized Dillard Collection of Art on Paper. Today its holdings number some 600 works of art. Following a slate of exhibitions timed to celebrate the Weatherspoon's 75th anniversary, this biennial exhibition will shift seasons and open in May of 2017. As with "Art on Paper" 2014, the installation will include several works by each artist, rather than a single representative piece. This approach aims to provide greater context for individual artworks and a broader understanding of each artist's practice. Space limitations will again make the selection process highly competitive. The Gregory D. Ivy Gallery and The Weatherspoon Guild Gallery, Through Aug. 6 - "Affinities & Variations". This exhibition pairs paintings in the museum's collection to show visual affinities in structure, theme, technique, emphasis or palette, as well as distinct variations between the two works. While none of the artists were responding to each other's work, it is fascinating to see how they tackled similar issues in their own personal way, sometimes decades apart. Visitors will be challenged to look closely at each pairing and consider to what extent the paintings cohere and/or vary. Atrium and Lobbies - Featuring works of art complementing current gallery exhibitions which are rotated in the atrium and public areas throughout both floors of the gallery. Tom Otterness' site-specific work, "The Frieze" is permanently installed in the atrium. Sculpture Courtyard - Featuring selections of American sculpture from 1900 to the present from the Weatherspoon Collection and on loan works from contemporary artists. Admission: Free. Hours: Tue., Wed. & Fri., 10am-5pm, Thur., 10am to 9pm and Sat. & Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 336/334-5770 or at (<http://weatherspoon.uncg.edu/>).

Hendersonville/ Flat Rock

Work by Veronika Hart

Henderson County, Sept. 23 & 24 - "6th Annual Open Studio Tour of Henderson County," sponsored by Hunter Automotive Group. Already one of the largest meet-the-artist events in the Carolinas, this year's Tour will feature 66 artists in 36 studios, including 12 new studios and 19 first-time artists. Also new this year many of the studios will be open Friday evening Sept. 22 with special demonstrations and buying opportunities. Artists retain 100% of all proceeds from sales made during the event. The Open Studio Tour is an opportunity for artists and craftsmen to bring their work to a new audience of art enthusiasts eager to interact with the creators. The free driving tour is self-guided and takes visitors on a scavenger hunt for great art into the gorgeous nooks and crannies of the Western North Carolina mountains. Henderson County is easily accessible on Interstate 26, one half hour south of Asheville and one-half hour north of Greenville. Map/booklets lead the way and identify artists by studio and medium - acrylics, watercolors, oil, clay, wood, metal, fiber, glass, jewelry, and mixed media. The guide can be found in the Visitor Center and at businesses across Henderson County or downloaded directly from the Tour website at (www.HCOST.org). Studios will be open between 10am and 5pm. On Thursday evening Sept. 21 from 5-8pm the public can preview the work of all artists at the Preview Party on Main Street in Hendersonville. The kick-off party for the Henderson County Open Studio is part of Downtown Hendersonville's free outdoor music series, Rhythm & Brews. Each studio will donate artwork for a raffle where all monies raised benefit the Backpacks for Kids Program in Henderson County. Come join the fun and look for the bright yellow signs. For more info visit (www.HCOST.org).

Hickory Museum of Art, Arts and Science Center, 243 Third Avenue NE, Hickory. Coe Gallery, Through Sept. 9 - "HICKORY STICKS: Jonathan Brilliant Installation". HMA invites North Carolina artist Jonathan Brilliant for a week-long residency to create a site-specific installation in the Museum's Coe Gallery using to-go coffee accoutrements as his art materials. The artist will laboriously weave 50,000+ wood coffee stirrers to create a site-responsive, colossal sculpture influenced by the gallery's 25 foot ceiling and unique architectural features—spiral staircases and Palladian windows. Visitors will be able to walk under, in and around the undulating walls of this structure. The woven stirrers are held in place without the use of adhesives; tension and compression are what gives the structure strength and stability. Complementary smaller installations comprised of coffee cup sleeves, disposable lids and coffee stain wall drawings will also be included in the exhibition. Shuford Gallery, Gifford & Regal Galleries, Through Sept. 17 - "PAST LIVES: Installation by Brian Lackey." An installation by Hickory, NC, native Brian Lackey of photographic prints including a rare body of work using Polaroid type 55 film; original music; and film projections. High Point

Theatre Art Galleries, High Point Theatre, 220 East Commerce Avenue, High Point. Main and Hallway Galleries, Through Aug. 4 - "URBAN EXPRESSIONS". Public art is exactly that, art in public spaces. The term "public art" may conjure images of historic bronze statues of a soldier on horseback in a park. Today, public art can take a wide range of forms, sizes, and scales—and can be temporary or permanent. Public art can include murals, sculpture, memorials, integrated architectural or landscape architectural work, community art, digital new media, and even performances and festivals! Upstairs Gallery, Through Aug. 4 - "Summerball: a month with the Torrington Twisters". In 2005, Laurie and Blair Pessemier, fine art painters, set out to follow a baseball team during the summer. They found the Torrington Twisters, an NECBL team, not far from where Laurie grew up. The Pessemiers spent 30 days documenting the team in paintings, sketches and writing. Kaleidoscope Youth Gallery, Through Aug. 4 - "Annual Middle School Art Exhibition". Hours: Tue.-Sat., noon-5pm. Contact: 336/887-2137 or at (www.tagart.org).

North Carolina Museum of Art, 2110 Blue Ridge Road, Raleigh. East Building, Level B, Video Gallery, Through Aug. 13 - "Quayola: Pleasant Places". The exhibition consists of a series of digital paintings exploring the boundary between representation and abstraction. Inspired by the work of Vincent van Gogh, U.K.-based artist Quayola traveled to Provence, France, 125 years after Van Gogh famously painted there. As a nod to that painter's expressionist style, Quayola's own Provence landscapes morph from realistic images of windblown trees to abstracted scenes of color and texture, as the natural forms begin to bleed into one another in swirls of disintegrating pixels. Simultaneously, the audio of rustling leaves and wind becomes distorted and abstracted. East Building, Level B, Julian T. Baker Jr. Photography Gallery, Through Sept. 3 - "Looking South: Photographs by Eudora Welty". This exhibition features a portfolio of 18 photographs by the acclaimed American novelist and short story writer Eudora Welty (1909-2001), produced by the Mississippi Department of Archives and History in 1992 (with Welty selecting the images and printing techniques) to represent the range of her photographs from the 1930s and early 1940s. Welty's iconic images of the South during this time bring to mind the photographs of Helen Levitt, Dorothea Lange, and Walker Evans, among others. In comparing Welty's work to Levitt's photographs of New York, critic John Szarkowski wrote, "Like those of Levitt, Welty's photographs do not show us the only truths of her subjects' lives; perhaps they show us only the rarest and most evanescent truths, in which case we are the more grateful for these proofs of their existence." East Building, Level B, Allen G. Thomas Jr. Photography Gallery, Through Sept. 3 - "You + Me". The photographs featured in this exhibit reveal the complexities of relationships, particularly those between two people: mother and daughter, a married couple, two friends, colleagues, multiple generations, and neighbors. Each photograph shows the gray spaces among independence and dependence, vulnerability and resistance, or compassion and indifference. An even more complicated relationship is that of the photographer and his or her subjects. The camera calls into question the candidness of the relationship in the portrait, whether it changes because it is seen through a lens. Artists in the exhibition include Ralph Burns, Sue de Beer, Harry Callahan, Carolyn DeMeritt, Sarah Anne Johnson, Deborah Luster, Danny Lyon, Barbara Morgan, Caroline Vaughan, Alec Soth, and Luis Rey Velasco. African Art Gallery, East Building, Level A, Ongoing - Featuring African creativity spanning 16 centuries. The new gallery will be three times as large as the old West Building gallery, allowing the Museum to display nearly twice as many works - including some that have not been on view in a decade, and others that are newly acquired and have never before been on display. The new gallery will feature improved light control so that light-sensitive works of art, such as textiles and works on paper, can be given more visibility, shown in curated rotations. The gallery will include a designated space to highlight North Carolina collections of African art from private collectors and public institutions, beginning with work from Bennett College. It will also incorporate African and African Diasporic modern and contemporary art, including a site-specific wall drawing by Nigerian-American artist Victor Ekpuk. NCMA Park - The North Carolina Museum of Art (NCMA) announces new works of art to be installed in the 164-acre NCMA Park. The works include a bronze tree by Italian artist Giuseppe Penone, a playful pair of benches designed by Hank Willis Thomas, and a 10-day installation of 23-foot-tall illuminated rabbits by Australian artist Amanda Parer. The sculptures will be featured at the NCMA's Park Celebration on Nov. 6, when the public is invited to experience the newly expanded Park with a variety of outdoor activities. Ongoing - Featuring 10 additional sculptures by the celebrated French artist Rodin on loan from Iris Cantor's private collection. Ongoing - "John James Audubon's The Birds of America". The state has owned this treasured volume since 1848, but it has never been exhibited. Ongoing - The North Carolina Museum of Art has an outstanding permanent collection of more than 5,000 objects spanning antiquity to the present day. On the occasion of the expansion, the Museum has acquired more than 100 new works of art. Representing commissions, gifts, and purchases, the new works encompass important and diverse examples of historic and contemporary art from around the world, and will be installed in the Museum's new building and the surrounding landscape. Highlights include a gift of 28 sculptures by Auguste Rodin, and work by such internationally acclaimed artists as Roxy Paine, Ursula von Rydingsvard, El Anatsui, Jaume Plensa, Jackie Ferrara, Ellsworth Kelly, and David Park, among others. Admission: Yes for some exhibits. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 9am-5pm; Sun., 10am-5pm; & open until 9pm on Fri. Contact: 919/839-6262 or at (www.ncartmuseum.org).

North Carolina Museum of History, 5 East Edenton Street, (between Salisbury and Wilmington Streets), Raleigh. Through Jan. 6, 2018 - "American Red Cross: Healing the Warrior's Heart through Art." "The museum is pleased to partner with the American Red Cross to bring to the public this exhibit of the remarkable art created by these wounded warriors. We hope it will help people realize the incredible sacrifice these soldiers and veterans have made for our country," said Ken Howard, director of the NC Museum of History. This powerful exhibit features more than 20 paintings and three sculptures created by US Marines who were wounded while serving. Ongoing - Featuring exhibits dealing with North Carolina's history as a theme. Admission: Free. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 9am-5pm & Sun., noon-5pm. Contact: 919/807-7900 or at (<http://www.ncmuseumofhistory.org/>).

Upstairs Artspace, 49 South Trade Street, Tryon. Through Aug. 4 - "AMONG FRIENDS," featuring works by sixteen from the ArtBomb studios in Greenville, SC. Ten years have passed since the ArtBomb has exhibited at the Upstairs Artspace and it is exciting to see what this cohesive group of sixteen artists have created in the last decade. Encaustic, oil on panel, ceramic, jewelry, sculpture, photography and more grace the walls and floors of the gallery in this exciting show and the work reflects well on this cooperative effort. Aug. 12 - Sept. 22 - Offers three new exhibits. A reception will be held on Aug. 12, from 6-7:30pm. "Vitreous Vessels," showcases cast glass-and-steel work by Hayden Wilson, a second-generation glassmaker and native North Carolinian, now residing in Asheville; "American on Edge," features haunting mixed media pieces by Sandee Johnson of Asheville. The work embodies paintings, monotypes, photographs and collages, much of which depicts the artist's angst about America's current political and cultural climate; and "Tides, Totems and Teapots," presents well-established artists Diane Hopkins-Hughs, Greenville SC, and Gary Huntoon, Travelers Rest, SC. Hopkins-Hughs's current work reflects her concern about the environment, especially the global water crisis. Huntoon is a well-rounded potter who does not limit himself to a single clay material, firing, glaze or decorating style. His totems and teapots are more sculptural than functional, and are seen frequently in regional fine craft shows. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 11am-5pm. Contact: 828-859-2828 or at (www.upstairsartspace.org).
